15 MINERS DIE IN GAS EXPLOSION

Anglo-French Alliance Will Be Concluded

Protection Against New German 'Menace'

LONDON, Jan. 15. (AP)—Britain announced tonight that she and France had agreed to conclude a treaty of alliance "at the earliest possible moment"—thus continuing the historic partnership which has bound them as allies in two wars in this century.

An announcement from Prime Minister Attlee's residence said the decision was reached during the past 48 hours during the visit of French Premier Leon Blum.

"It was recognized," the statement said, "that the two countries, having been twice attacked by Germany in a period of 25 years, have equal interest in protecting themselves against a fresh German menace.

Within U. N. Framework

"It was therefore agreed that in these circumstances a treaty of alliance should be concluded between them at the earliest possible moment within the framework of Article 52 of the Charter of the United Nations and with the object of preventing any further aggression by Germany and of preserving peace and security."

The announcement added that the "two governments were furthermore convinced that the conclusion of such a treaty would facilitate the settlement, in a spirit of mutual understanding, of all questions arising" between them.

While the announcement was interpreted as being directed primarily at the military aspects of the alliance, the possibility of closer economic links between the two western European powers also was suggested in this section of the statement:

London Hails Alliance

"In view of the close links which exist between the two countries in the commercial and industrial fields, it was agreed that directions should be given to the French and British representatives on the Anglo-French Economic Committee to press on urgently with their task of examining their respective reconstruction and modernization plans with a view to preventing conflicts between them."

Britain and France recently abolished the use of the visa for residents of the two countries travelling across the 22 miles of channel which separate them at Dover.

British diplomatic circles were enthusiastic in their comment on the announcement.

"It makes a magnificant triangle in postwar treaties linking Eastern and Western Europe," a Foreign Office spokesman said. "There is the Anglo-Soviet pact of 1942, the French-Soviet pact of 1944 and now, to complete the triangle, the Anglo-French alliance of 1947."

Fay Acquitted Of Tax Evasion

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 15 (AP) — A jury of 11 persons acquitted Joseph S. Fay, AFL construction trades union leader, of income tax evasion tonight after deliberating two hours and 39 minutes.

The jury returned the verdict at 9:54 p. m. (EST).

A scattering of applause rippled through the crowd of 100 persons in the federal court room, and Judge Thomas F. Meaney ordered quiet and announced he would clear the court room and hold offenders in contempt of court if there were any further demonstrations.

Members of the jury said they reached a verdict on the fourth ballot.

One of the 12 jurors who started to hear the trial was excused because of a former affiliation with Fay's union, the International Union of Operating and Hoisting Engineers.

The government charged Fay with failure to report $118,879 in income in 1940-42. Two witnesses testified to paying him $180,000, but Fay admitted receiving only $80,000, which he said was spent on union activities and was not taxable.

Austin Asks Security Council To Postpone Disarmament Action

Procedure Accord Eludes U. S., Russia

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Jan. 15—(AP)—The United States advised the United Nations Security Council tonight that it was not ready to discuss any arms reductions proposals at this time and pleaded for postponement of the whole question until February 4.

The Soviet Union strongly opposed the move and the council adjourned after six hours of debate without voting. Another session was called for Friday for a decision on the American request for delay.

Austin Officially Takes Seat

Herschel V. Johnson, deputy United States delegate, said he was "merely requesting that these complicated questions be deferred for further consideration." He added that he felt that private consultations between now and February 4 would bring a wider area of agreement.

"The United States delegation is not prepared to discuss substantive matters (on arms reduction) at this time either in the council or in a committee," Johnson declared.

Warden R. Austin, new United States delegate who officially took his seat today, put forward the surprise proposal after failing to reach agreement with Russia on procedure at a 30-minute private parley.

Lange Opposes Postponement

Austin originally had insisted that the council give priority to the problem of control of atomic energy and the Soviet delegate, Andrei A. Gromyko, had in turn insisted on immediate setting up of a commission to start work on implementing the General Assembly's basic arms reduction resolution.

The postponement plea also was opposed by Oscar Lange, Polish delegate, who said that the question of disarmament was of "such paramount importance that it should not be subjected to the usual tangles of diplomatic procedure."

"To hell with small diplomatic procedure, to hell with high power politics, to hell with all technical obstacles," Lange shouted in an appeal for action.

New York Revokes Automobile License Of Mrs. Roosevelt

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 15 (AP) —New York State tonight revoked the automobile license of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt as the result of an accident at Yonkers last August, but an official pointed out that the license could be reinstated after 30 days.

Howard P. Miles, deputy commissioner of motor vehicles, announced that notice of revocation had been sent to Mrs. Roosevelt yesterday.

President Asks For New Weapons To Fight Bigotry

Outbreak Of 1922 Is Recalled By Truman

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP) — President Truman, recalling the sheet wearers and fiery crosses of 1922, today asked help to prevent a new outbreak of "religious bigotry."

Addressing his recently-established Civil Rights Committee, which will seek means for extending greater protection to racial and religious minorities, the President declared:

"This country could very easily be faced with a situation similar to the one with which it was faced in 1922."

Fought Ku Klux Klan

He did not mention the Ku Klux Klan by name but recalled that when he was running for county judge of Jackson county, Mo., in 1922, "there was an organization in that county that met on hills and burned crosses and worked behind sheets."

"There is a tendency in this country for that situation to develop again, unless we do something tangible to prevent it," he said.

During his 1944 campaign for the vice presidency, President Truman related he had fought the Ku Klux Klan in his home state and helped defeat it.

Wilson Heads Committee

The Civil Rights Committee, headed by Charles E. Wilson, president of the General Electric Company, heard the President's appeal for new weapons to fight intolerance after Attorney General Tom Clark told them of his difficulties in the enforcement of civil rights.

The President, asserting he wanted the "Bill of Rights implemented in fact" said this country was not making progress fast enough in that direction.

He said that what happened in 1922 was impressed on his mind because that was the year he was running for his first elective office.

"I don't want to see any race discrimination. I don't want to see any religious bigotry break out in this country as it did then."

Answer In Laraine Day Divorce Case Withdrawn

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 15 (AP)—The sensational answer in the Laraine Day-Ray Hendricks divorce case, in which Hendricks charged Baseball Manager Leo (Lippy) Durocher with stealing the actress' love, will be withdrawn and her divorce suit will not be contested, her attorney announced today.

Attorney Bernard Silbert, representing Miss Day, said a stipulation of the parties would be filed today providing for the withdrawal of the answer and stating that a property settlement has been reached. Silbert said Miss Day will be given custody of an adopted child, Christopher, 13 months.

British Foreign Secretary Accused Of Repudiating Alliance With USSR

MOSCOW, Jan. 15—(AP)—A commentator in Pravda, Communist Party organ, in one of the most outspoken declarations on British-Soviet relations since the war, flatly accused British Foreign Secretary Bevin today of repudiating the Anglo-Soviet treaty of alliance of 1942.

The commentator, signing merely the initials "N.N.," reminded Pravda's readers that Bevin, in a speech December 22, had declared Britain "does not tie herself to anybody," asked if he had forgotten the treaty of alliance and asserted that his proposal to extend the 20-year treaty to 50 years was not meant seriously.

(The Soviet monitor in London first translated a Moscow broadcast of the article, as saying Bevin had "renounced" the treaty and then changed it to "disavowed."

(A British Foreign Office spokesman in London quickly denied that Bevin had "disavowed" the pact in answering criticism of some British Laborites that Britain's foreign policy was too closely linked with the United States.

(The spokesman said the commentator had taken out of its context the statement that Britain "does not tie herself to anybody."

(London dispatches said the attack caused considerable concern in British government circles where it was noted that Pravda had chosen a time for its blast just when the return of Field Marshal Lord Montgomery from a visit to Moscow had raised hopes of strengthened relations with the Soviet Union. One British source said the attack could indicate Russia was preparing to demand revision of the pact and other treaties.)

While the Pravda article was an assault on Bevin and the foreign policy of the Labor government, it appeared in truth to be a definite bid for strengthening the mutual aid pact.

Georgia Attorney General Requests Court To Decide Governors' Battle

Injunction Against Talmadge Is Sought

ATLANTA, Jan. 15 (AP)—Georgia's battle of the two Governors entered the courts late today when Attorney General Eugene Cook filed suit to enjoin Herman Talmadge from functioning as Governor on the basis of his election by the Legislature several hours earlier.

After a day in which both Talmadge, 33, and 39-year-old Ellis Arnall, completing a four-year term, had performed the duties of Governor, Cook filed a petition for the injunction in Fulton Superior Court at Arnall's direction. The suit asked Judge Walter C. Hendrix to decide title to the office, leading to a Supreme Court appeal.

Throughout the day Arnall and Talmadge had operated as Governor from offices less than 20 yards apart at the Capitol and engaged in battle for control of the state militia to bolster their claims to the office.

Talmadge had left the Capitol when the suit was filed but his secretary, Benton Odom, described the action as "merely a maneuver."

"In accepting the order from Gov. Arnall directing me to file a petition for a declaratory judgment in this matter, and in filing this petition, I am recognizing Gov. Arnall as the lawful Governor," Cook said. "I feel that the Supreme Court of Georgia should have an opportunity to pass on it," Cook added.

Each Names Adjutant General

Judge Hendrix directed Talmadge to show cause February 7 why he should not be barred from the office.

Arnall contends a legislative election is illegal. Talmadge says a constitutional provision required such an election and that he should take over for his father, the late Eugene Talmadge, who died 23 days before his scheduled inauguration yesterday.

Each appointed an Adjutant General to command the militia but at the day's end there had been no development to determine whom the troops would heed should the commanders-in-chief call for assistance.

Marvin Griffin, who has served under the Arnall administration as Adjutant General, resigned and was promptly re-commissioned by Talmadge. Arnall countered by naming Col. R. W. Collins Adjutant General. Then Talmadge issued an executive order dissolving the State Guard on the grounds it had served its purpose and that the reorganized National Guard, with Griffin in command, was in position to take over if needed.

"Just wait and see whose orders the State Guard and the National Guard will take if they get orders that are conflicting," commented Arnall, who vested Collins with

Senators To Open Labor Legislation Hearings Jan. 23

March 1 Is Deadline For Ending Inquiry

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—The Senate Labor Committee set up a March 1 target today for completion of its inquiry into what new labor laws may be needed. Something may be ready then for Senate action.

Chairman Taft (R-Ohio) said after the first meeting of the Republican-dominated group that the intervening weeks will be filled with an ambitious program of public hearings. These will start January 23.

The March 1 date may be significant. In calling off the big coal strike last month, President John L. Lewis directed members of the United Mine Workers to stay on the job until March 31.

Public hearings will cover the varied and sometimes conflicting legislative proposals dumped in the Senate hopper to date.

Committee To Be Kept Busy

Taft told reporters he planned to keep the eight Republican and five Democratic members of his committee working all day on Tuesdays and Thursdays and forenoons of Wednesday and Friday, when the Senate meets at noon.

When the hearings are concluded, the chairman said, the committee should have something ready for Senate action. He declined to forecast whether this would be an "omnibus" bill, covering all matters involved in the hearings, or separate bills on various segments of labor-management relations.

Taft sad that President Truman's Cabinet adviser on labor, Secretary Schwellenbach, would be invited to open the hearings.

He added that the first measures for consideration would be the comprehensive Taft-Ball-Smith bill and a proposal by nine Democrats that a 20-member commission be set up to make an overall study of causes of industrial strife. The latter proposal would carry out President Truman's recommendation to Congress.

Would Revive Case Bill Features

The bill introduced by Sens. Taft, Ball (R-Minn) and Smith (R-NJ), would revive many features of the Case bill which President Truman vetoed last session.

It would set up a federal media-

"High Pressure" Portal Pay Suits Hit By Capehart

Steel Union Assailed For "Racketeering"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP) — Sen. Capehart (R-Ind.) accused a big CIO union today of conducting "a high pressure sales campaign" in pushing suits for portal-to-portal pay.

Naming the union as the United Steel Workers, he said its activities might be called racketeering.

Capehart was urging a Senate Judiciary Committee to approve legislation aimed at erasing liability for the bulk of more than $4,000,000,000 in back pay claims.

The suits were inspired by a Supreme Court decision that employers are liable for pay for time required to be spent on their premises as well as for actual work.

Eastland Poses Question

Sen. Eastland (D-Miss.), a member of the subcommittee, posed the question whether the steel workers practiced "racketeering" in using methods described by Capehart.

Eastland referred to a questionnaire which Capehart said the union had circulated to its members dealing with the portal issue. Capehart said one question asked was: "Do you normally take a shower before leaving company property?"

This indicates, Capehart said, that the unions are out on a fishing expedition and don't know whether they have a case or not.

Commented Eastland: "Isn't that more like racketeering?"

Capehart agreed that it might be called that. "It is a high pressure sales campaign," he added.

The Senator also related that in Chicago unions are filing portal suits on prepared forms and that "this has taken on the aspects of a wholesale business." Capehart explained that the forms require only filling in such information as names and amounts.

Jeopardize Tax Cuts

At Capehart's urging, Chairman Donnell (R-Mo.) announced that federal officials would be called to describe the effect of the suits on their departments.

The Indiana lawmaker contended that the suits involve such a potential loss to the Treasury that Congress can not "even consider reducing the tax burden now" unless legislation is passed to curb them.

Capehart and Sen. Wiley (R-Wis.) are authors of bills to define what the wage-hour law means by work—an omission in the statute which resulted in the Supreme Court writing a definition of its own. The bills would confine it to productive activity.

Girl's Mutilated Nude Body Found In Los Angeles

Severed At Waist; Apparently Tortured

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15—((AP))—The mutiliated nude body of a young girl, about 17, was found today in a vacant lot beside a frequently-traveled sidewalk near the Los Angeles Coliseum.

Police later discovered a bundle of clothing two miles away they said may have belonged to the slain girl. There were no marks of identification on the body, authorities reported, but laundry marks on the clothing bore the name "Miss Ceal" of Los Angeles. The police chemist, Ray Pinkert, said the victim apparently had been tortured before death. He said there were rope burns on the wrists, knees, ankles and neck. The face had been terribly beaten.

The body had been severed at the waist. There were numerous slashes as though the killer had attempted to remove any identifying body marks. The parts of the body lay adjacently.

Radio Patrol Policemen P. S. Perkins and W. K. Fitzgerald reported the body had been placed near a sidewalk presumably about dawn.

In the bundle of clothing, wrapped in a black crepe dress, were brown alligator shoes, a green scarf, a gold metal choker, a pair of nylon stockings, undergarments and personal items.

Police said the girl was about five feet, two inches tall, weighed about 118 pounds and had reddish brown hair.

Young Woman Killed In Street Shooting

BALTIMORE, Jan. 15 (AP) — A young woman was killed today and her husband, a seaman, critically wounded by a bullet in a street shooting.

The woman was identified by police as Mrs. Helen F. Szvkiewicz, 22. She was pronounced dead on arrival at John Hopkins Hospital, where her husband, identified as Walter Szvkiewicz, also was brought with a bullet wound in his chest.

Police Sgt. John McKenna said the couple had been separated. He reported the shootings occurred in front of a bakery, and that he found a pistol on the sidewalk there.

Wage Bill Hearing

BALTIMORE, Jan. 15 (AP)—The Maryland League of Women Voters and the Maryland branch of the American Association of University Women today announced a joint public hearing here January 25 on the proposed state wage-hour bill.

Parents Protest

Schoolgirls Are Ordered Back Into Swimming Togs

DETROIT, Jan. 15—((AP))—Chaste swim suits wrapped the girlish figures of the Liberty Elementary School's gym class today after irate mothers protested their daughters' nude bathing in the school pool.

The 150 Liberty girls, ages from nine to 13, were given permision six weeks ago to doff their suits to speed their class routine and give them more time to splash in the pool.

The optional system was modeled after that followed by boys at the school for several years. The two sexes are completely segregated during physical education classes, Dr. H. L. Shibler, superintendent of Highland Park Schools, emphasized.

Similar nude bathing is permitted in two other Highland Park elementary schools where 200 young girls paddle twice weekly.

A delegation of mothers, claiming to represent 117 parents of Liberty girls, protested against the nude bathing at Tuesday's Board of Education.

Mrs. Leo Wessinger claimed the custom would lower the girls' moral standards "and get them off on the wrong foot."

Mrs. Alma Vickers told the board she had forbidden her daughter to go to the pool without a suit and suggested nude bathing was akin to participating in nudist colonies.

Dr. Shibler, "in deference to the mothers," ordered the Liberty girls back into their suits, adding "I don't care either way, myself."

Excise Tax Extension Now Backed By GOP

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP) — Rep. Grant (R-Ind) announced today he would introduce tomorrow his bill to continue beyond July 1 the so-called luxury taxes on liquor, furs, jewelry, lipstick and other items.

Promptly, Chairman Knutson (R-Minn), of the tax-framing House Ways and Means Committee, announced Grant's measure would be given priority over all other tax legislation, and might be approved at the first committee meeting on Friday.

Meanwhile, House Democrats, with statements chiding Republicans who previously favored letting the wartime excise rates die July 1, swung into step with the GOP's surprise drive to continue them indefinitely.

Three Killed In Carolina Plane Crash

Civilian Craft Is Consumed By Fire

WAKE FOREST, N. C., Jan. 15—(AP)—At least three men were killed in the crash of a private plane near here tonight. Earlier reports placed the death toll at four but a Wake Forest mortuary later reported that only three bodies were recovered from the burning wreckage.

From effects found in the crash area, about five miles west of Wake Forest, the mortuary narrowed the tentative list of dead to:

Charles Allen Sherwin, 39, Washington, owner of the plane; Jarnett G. Gregg, 28, Washington, and Comdr, William Helvestine, United States Coast Guard reserve, no address.

James F. Walker, Jr., whose address was listed as Gaithersburg, Md., earlier was thought to have been one of the victims through effects recovered from the plane. Washington friends later reported that Walker was not aboard the plane.

Following the crash, the Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington reported that the craft, a twin-engine five-place Cessna, was registered in the name of "Al Sherwin" and was based in Washington. The CAB said the plane was en route back to Washington from the air races in Miami.

The plane reportedly made several passes at the Raleigh-Durham airport but continued without landing. It crashed at about 7:30 p. m., shortly after bypassing the airport.

Police Officer W. O. Nuckles, Wake Forest, one of the first to arrinve at the wreckage, placed the scene of the crash four and a half miles west of Wake Forest and 18 miles east of Durham.

Bilbo Calls His Book A "Message"

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 15 (AP) — Sen. Theodore G. Bilbo, of Mississippi, perched in the middle of his Touro Infirmary bed today, awaited a mouth operation, and enjoyed one of his favorite dishes—chicken 'n dumplings.

"Take a look at this," he said, smacking his lips. "It's a message to every white man and woman in this country."

Bilbo referred to his forthcoming book "Take Your Choice—Segregation or Mongrelization," which is to be released this month.

The Senator's book, to put it in his own words, is a "history and study of countries where separate races have tried to live together which covers a period of some 30,000 years.

"The man" points out that he holds no hatred against any race as such, for, as he says, "God made them that way." But he does hold to his contention that the white and negro races cannot live together and maintain their individuality. "The book is a message to every right thinking white or negro person in the country," Bilbo asserted, adding that "both races must be saved from mongrelization by segregation."

London Dock Workers Join Truckers' Strike

LONDON, Jan. 15 (AP)—London's 10-day old truck strike spread among dock workers and Thames lighter-men today and prospects for an early settlement dimmed.

At least 42,000 men were idle — more than half of them in protest against the use of troops to supplant the truckers in moving food—and observers said that the walkout threatened to involve all of the Port of London's 24,000 union workers.

Dead Twin Helps Sister

Three Injured; Rescue Crews Battle Fumes

Plymouth, Pa., Blast Occurs 850 Feet Down

PLYMOUTH, Pa., Jan. 15. (AP)—Edward Griffith, president and general manager of Glen Alden Coal Company, announced tonight 15 miners were known dead in a gas explosion at the company's Nottingham colliery.

Griffith said names of the men were not available.

The blast was discovered by an unidentified foot tender at the bottom of a shaft who saw clouds of dust and sounded an alarm to the outside, Griffith reported.

He said the bodies of the dead men were still in the mine.

Three miners were removed, two of them badly injured.

Timbers Are Shattered

Griffith said the explosion occurred in the Top Ross vein, about 850 feet below the surface. Miners expressed belief the blast resulted from an accumulation of gas.

The blast was about 2,000 feet from the shaft entrance where the Carey avenue bridge crosses the Susquehanna river.

About 700 feet of gangways leading into the mine workings were affected, Griffith said, adding most of the bodies were in one of the gangways which was struck violently. Tracks were torn up and mine timbers shattered.

Rescue crews battled fumes to get to the bodies while on the surface hundreds of anxious relatives and friends gathered at the colliery entrance, some weeping. A police cordon was formed quickly to expediate the work of the rescue crews.

The three injured men were reported by rescuers to have been working on a chamber off the adjoining gangway not as seriously affected. Two were taken to Wilkes-Barre general hospital and the third was sent home.

Hospitals Alerted

As soon as the alarm was sounded hospitals were alerted and ambulances sent to the colliery.

Miners at Scranton, Pa., recalled the last major gas explosion in the hard coal belt, the Lackawanna and Wyoming valleys — was, to the best of their knowledge, about seven years ago when 11 were killed in a small operation in the lower end of the anthracite field.

Ten miners lost their lives in an explosion in the Volpe Coal Company mine near Pittston, Pa., in the upper end of the belt on June 10, 1938, the Scranton miners said.

Ford Cuts Prices On Current Models

DETROIT, Jan. 15 (AP) — Henry Ford II, president of the Ford Motor Company, today announced price reductions ranging from $15 to $50 on current models of Ford passenger cars and said the action was intended as "shock treatment" to halt "the insane spiral of mounting costs and rising prices."

The action, first of its kind since the end of the war, brought an immediate commendation from Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman, who wired young Ford:

"Your announcement of price reductions is good news for the country and I believe good business for your company."

Walter P. Reuther, president of the CIO United Automobile Workers, declined immediate comment, saying he desired to further study the announcement. The UAW-CIO recently indicated it planned to ask 23½ cent hourly wage increases throughout the industry.

Breaks Fall of Wife

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 15 (AP) — Frank Sheps, 38, braced himself on a lawn beneath a second-story window of his home early today and broke the fall of his wife, Sophie, who had leaped from the blazing house despite his pleas for her to make a sheet-rope to escape the flames.

Sen. Wiley Wants Congressional Record On Nation's Newsstands

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—Be patient, you 99 out of 100 United States citizens who never have seen a copy of the Congressional Record.

If Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.) has his way, the Record will go on sale at all the better newsstands.

Wiley used a page and a half of the Record today to repeat an article he had prepared for the magazine "Future."

And in this article he said that:

A. The Record is the world's most important publication; but

B. Only one out of 100 have ever seen as much as a single issue.

This makes Wiley very sad. And why?

Because it's a faithful story of the doings—and the undoings—of congress.

Because it has stuff that affects "every businessman, farmer, housewife, veteran, wage earner,"

Because it mirrors "rhetoric, wit, humor, pathos, strategy, and, yes, boredom now and then."

Right now, the Record reaches only 43,000 subscribers, mostly libraries, politicians, friends of congressmen (who get it free).

Wiley insisted that the Record isn't as dry as dust.

"It can frequently be touched with humor," he said.

And he gave this sample, an exchange he had with Sen. Charles Tobey (R-NH) during a debate on Bretton Woods:

"Mr. Tobey. The correct pronounciation is 'Bretton'—with a short 'E.' Will the Senator please pronounce it correctly? It jangles my nerves to hear it called 'Bray-ton' Woods.

"Mr. Wiley. I thank the Senator, but I am not so sure he is correct. It depends upon whether one is in Wisconsin, New Hampshire, on the high seas, or in Britain, Brittany, or elsewhere. I am sorry the Senator's nerves are so tender.

"Mr. Tobey. If the Senator were to call it 'Bray-ton' Woods in New Hampshire, he might not come out alive."

Anglo-French Alliance Will Be Concluded

Protection Against New German 'Menace'

LONDON, Jan. 15. (AP)—Britain announced tonight that she and France had agreed to conclude a treaty of alliance "at the earliest possible moment"—thus continuing the historic partnership which has bound them as allies in two wars in this century.

An announcement from Prime Minister Attlee's residence said the decision was reached during the past 48 hours during the visit of French Premier Leon Blum.

"It was recognized," the statement said, "that the two countries, having been twice attacked by Germany in a period of 25 years, have equal interest in protecting themselves against a fresh German menace.

Within U. N. Framework

"It was therefore agreed that in these circumstances a treaty of alliance should be concluded between them at the earliest possible moment within the framework of Article 52 of the Charter of the United Nations and with the object of preventing any further aggression by Germany and of preserving peace and security."

The announcement added that the "two governments were furthermore convinced that the conclusion of such a treaty would facilitate the settlement, in a spirit of mutual understanding, of all questions arising" between them.

While the announcement was interpreted as being directed primarily at the military aspects of the alliance, the possibility of closer economic links between the two western European powers also was suggested in this section of the statement:

London Hails Alliance

"In view of the close links which exist between the two countries in the commercial and industrial fields, it was agreed that directions should be given to the French and British representatives on the Anglo-French Economic Committee to press on urgently with their task of examining their respective reconstruction and modernization plans with a view to preventing conflicts between them."

Britain and France recently abolished the use of the visa for residents of the two countries travelling across the 22 miles of channel which separate them at Dover.

British diplomatic circles were enthusiastic in their comment on the announcement.

"It makes a magnificant triangle in postwar treaties linking Eastern and Western Europe," a Foreign Office spokesman said. "There is the Anglo-Soviet pact of 1942, the French-Soviet pact of 1944 and now, to complete the triangle, the Anglo-French alliance of 1947."

Fay Acquitted Of Tax Evasion

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 15 (AP) — A jury of 11 persons acquitted Joseph S. Fay, AFL construction trades union leader, of income tax evasion tonight after deliberating two hours and 39 minutes.

The jury returned the verdict at 9:54 p. m. (EST).

A scattering of applause rippled through the crowd of 100 persons in the federal court room, and Judge Thomas F. Meaney ordered quiet and announced he would clear the court room and hold offenders in contempt of court if there were any further demonstrations.

Members of the jury said they reached a verdict on the fourth ballot.

One of the 12 jurors who started to hear the trial was excused because of a former affiliation with Fay's union, the International Union of Operating and Hoisting Engineers.

The government charged Fay with failure to report $118,879 in income in 1940-42. Two witnesses testified to paying him $180,000, but Fay admitted receiving only $80,000, which he said was spent on union activities and was not taxable.

British Foreign Secretary Accused Of Repudiating Alliance With USSR

Austin Asks Security Council To Postpone Disarmament Action

New York Revokes Automobile License Of Mrs. Roosevelt

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 15 (AP) —New York State tonight revoked the automobile license of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt as the result of an accident at Yonkers last August, but an official pointed out that the license could be reinstated after 30 days.

Howard P. Miles, deputy commissioner of motor vehicles, announced that notice of revocation had been sent to Mrs. Roosevelt yesterday.

President Asks For New Weapons To Fight Bigotry

Outbreak Of 1922 Is Recalled By Truman

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP) — President Truman, recalling the sheet wearers and fiery crosses of 1922, today asked help to prevent a new outbreak of "religious bigotry."

Addressing his recently-established Civil Rights Committee, which will seek means for extending greater protection to racial and religious minorities, the President declared:

"This country could very easily be faced with a situation similar to the one with which it was faced in 1922."

Fought Ku Klux Klan

He did not mention the Ku Klux Klan by name but recalled that when he was running for county judge of Jackson county, Mo., in 1922, "there was an organization in that county that met on hills and burned crosses and worked behind sheets."

"There is a tendency in this country for that situation to develop again, unless we do something tangible to prevent it," he said.

Wilson Heads Committee

The Civil Rights Committee, headed by Charles E. Wilson, president of the General Electric Company, heard the President's appeal for new weapons to fight intolerance after Attorney General Tom Clark told them of his difficulties in the enforcement of civil rights.

The President, asserting he wanted the "Bill of Rights implemented in fact" said this country was not making progress fast enough in that direction.

He said that what happened in 1922 was impressed on his mind because that was the year he was running for his first elective office.

"I don't want to see any race discrimination. I don't want to see any religious bigotry break out in this country as it did then."

Answer In Laraine Day Divorce Case Withdrawn

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 15 (AP)—The sensational answer in the Laraine Day-Ray Hendricks divorce case, in which Hendricks charged Baseball Manager Leo (Lippy) Durocher with stealing the actress' love, will be withdrawn and her divorce suit will not be contested, her attorney announced today.

Attorney Bernard Silbert, representing Miss Day, said a stipulation of the parties would be filed today providing for the withdrawal of the answer and stating that a property settlement has been reached. Silbert said Miss Day will be given custody of an adopted child, Christopher, 13 months.

Procedure Accord Eludes U. S., Russia

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Jan. 15—(AP)—The United States advised the United Nations Security Council tonight that it was not ready to discuss any arms reductions proposals at this time and pleaded for postponement of the whole question until February 4.

The Soviet Union strongly opposed the move and the council adjourned after six hours of debate without voting. Another session was called for Friday for a decision on the American request for delay.

Austin Officially Takes Seat

Herschel V. Johnson, deputy United States delegate, said he was "merely requesting that these complicated questions be deferred for further consideration." He added that he felt that private consultations between now and February 4 would bring a wider area of agreement.

"The United States delegation is not prepared to discuss substantive matters (on arms reduction) at this time either in the council or in a committee," Johnson declared.

Warden R. Austin, new United States delegate who officially took his seat today, put forward the surprise proposal after failing to reach agreement with Russia on procedure at a 30-minute private parley.

Lange Opposes Postponement

Austin originally had insisted that the council give priority to the problem of control of atomic energy and the Soviet delegate, Andrei A. Gromyko, had in turn insisted on immediate setting up of a commission to start work on implementing the General Assembly's basic arms reduction resolution.

The postponement plea also was opposed by Oscar Lange, Polish delegate, who said that the question of disarmament was of "such paramount importance that it should not be subjected to the usual tangles of diplomatic procedure."

"To hell with small diplomatic procedure, to hell with high power politics, to hell with all technical obstacles," Lange shouted in an appeal for action.

Girl's Mutilated Nude Body Found In Los Angeles

Severed At Waist; Apparently Tortured

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15—((AP))—The mutiliated nude body of a young girl, about 17, was found today in a vacant lot beside a frequently-traveled sidewalk near the Los Angeles Coliseum.

Police later discovered a bundle of clothing two miles away they said may have belonged to the slain girl. There were no marks of identification on the body, authorities reported, but laundry marks on the clothing bore the name "Miss Ceal" of Los Angeles. The police chemist, Ray Pinkert, said the victim apparently had been tortured before death. He said there were rope burns on the wrists, knees, ankles and neck. The face had been terribly beaten.

The body had been severed at the waist. There were numerous slashes as though the killer had attempted to remove any identifying body marks. The parts of the body lay adjacently.

Radio Patrol Policemen P. S. Perkins and W. K. Fitzgerald reported the body had been placed near a sidewalk presumably about dawn.

In the bundle of clothing, wrapped in a black crepe dress, were brown alligator shoes, a green scarf, a gold metal choker, a pair of nylon stockings, undergarments and personal items.

Police said the girl was about five feet, two inches tall, weighed about 118 pounds and had reddish brown hair.

Young Woman Killed In Street Shooting

BALTIMORE, Jan. 15 (AP) — A young woman was killed today and her husband, a seaman, critically wounded by a bullet in a street shooting.

The woman was identified by police as Mrs. Helen F. Szvkiewicz, 22. She was pronounced dead on arrival at John Hopkins Hospital, where her husband, identified as Walter Szvkiewicz, also was brought with a bullet wound in his chest.

Police Sgt. John McKenna said the couple had been separated. He reported the shootings occurred in front of a bakery, and that he found a pistol on the sidewalk there.

Wage Bill Hearing

BALTIMORE, Jan. 15 (AP)—The Maryland League of Women Voters and the Maryland branch of the American Association of University Women today announced a joint public hearing here January 25 on the proposed state wage-hour bill.

RIVALS SWEAR IN OFFICIALS—Ellis Arnall (right in left frame), incumbent governor of Georgia who refused to recognize the legislative election of Herman Talmadge early yesterday, swears in Col. R. W. Collins, Atlanta, as his new adjutant general in his office in the Capitol. In the right frame, Talmadge, other claimant, administers oath of office to Charles D. Redwine, Fayetteville, as state commissioner of revenue.

Georgia Attorney General Requests Court To Decide Governors' Battle

March 1 Is Deadline For Ending Inquiry

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—The Senate Labor Committee set up a March 1 target today for completion of its inquiry into what new labor laws may be needed. Something may be ready then for Senate action.

Chairman Taft (R-Ohio) said after the first meeting of the Republican-dominated group that the intervening weeks will be filled with an ambitious program of public hearings. These will start January 23.

The March 1 date may be significant. In calling off the big coal strike last month, President John L. Lewis directed members of the United Mine Workers to stay on the job until March 31.

Public hearings will cover the varied and sometimes conflicting legislative proposals dumped in the Senate hopper to date.

Committee To Be Kept Busy

Taft told reporters he planned to keep the eight Republican and five Democratic members of his committee working all day on Tuesdays and Thursdays and forenoons of Wednesday and Friday, when the Senate meets at noon.

When the hearings are concluded, the chairman said, the committee should have something ready for Senate action. He declined to forecast whether this would be an "omnibus" bill, covering all matters involved in the hearings, or separate bills on various segments of labor-management relations.

Taft sad that President Truman's Cabinet adviser on labor, Secretary Schwellenbach, would be invited to open the hearings.

He added that the first measures for consideration would be the comprehensive Taft-Ball-Smith bill and a proposal by nine Democrats that a 20-member commission be set up to make an overall study of causes of industrial strife. The latter proposal would carry out President Truman's recommendation to Congress.

Would Revive Case Bill Features

The bill introduced by Sens. Taft, Ball (R-Minn) and Smith (R-NJ), would revive many features of the Case bill which President Truman vetoed last session.

It would set up a federal media-

Injunction Against Talmadge Is Sought

ATLANTA, Jan. 15 (AP)—Georgia's battle of the two Governors entered the courts late today when Attorney General Eugene Cook filed suit to enjoin Herman Talmadge from functioning as Governor on the basis of his election by the Legislature several hours earlier.

After a day in which both Talmadge, 33, and 30-year-old Ellis Arnall, completing a four-year term, had performed the duties of Governor, Cook filed a petition for the injunction in Fulton Superior Court at Arnall's direction. The suit asked Judge Walter C. Hendrix to decide title to the office, leading to a Supreme Court appeal.

Throughout the day Arnall and Talmadge had operated as Governor from offices less than 20 yards apart at the Capitol and engaged in battle for control of the state militia to bolster their claims to the office.

Talmadge had left the Capitol when the suit was filed but his secretary, Benton Odom, described the action as "merely a maneuver."

"In accepting the order from Gov. Arnall directing me to file a petition for a declaratory judgment in this matter, and in filing this petition, I am recognizing Gov. Arnall as the lawful Governor," Cook said. "I feel that the Supreme Court of Georgia should have an opportunity to pass on it," Cook added.

Each Names Adjutant General

Judge Hendrix directed Talmadge to show cause February 7 why he should not be barred from the office.

Arnall contends a legislative election is illegal. Talmadge says a constitutional provision required such an election and that he should take over for his father, the late Eugene Talmadge, who died 23 days before his scheduled inauguration yesterday.

Each appointed an Adjutant General to command the militia but at the day's end there had been no development to determine whom the troops would heed should the commanders-in-chief call for assistance.

Marvin Griffin, who has served under the Arnall administration as Adjutant General, resigned and was promptly re-commissioned by Talmadge. Arnall countered by naming Col. R. W. Collins Adjutant General. Then Talmadge issued an executive order dissolving the State Guard on the grounds it had served its purpose and that the reorganized National Guard, with Griffin in command, was in position to take over if needed.

"Just wait and see whose orders the State Guard and the National Guard will take if they get orders that are conflicting," commented Arnall, who vested Collins with

"High Pressure" Portal Pay Suits Hit By Capehart

Steel Union Assailed For "Racketeering"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP) — Sen. Capehart (R-Ind.) accused a big CIO union today of conducting "a high pressure sales campaign" in pushing suits for portal-to-portal pay.

Naming the union as the United Steel Workers, he said its activities might be called racketeering.

Capehart was urging a Senate Judiciary Committee to approve legislation aimed at erasing liability for the bulk of more than $4,000,000,000 in back pay claims.

The suits were inspired by a Supreme Court decision that employers are liable for pay for time required to be spent on their premises as well as for actual work.

Eastland Poses Question

Sen. Eastland (D-Miss.), a member of the subcommittee, posed the question whether the steel workers practiced "racketeering" in using methods described by Capehart.

Eastland referred to a questionnaire which Capehart said the union had circulated to its members dealing with the portal issue. Capehart said one question asked was.

"Do you normally take a shower before leaving company property?"

This indicates, Capehart said, that the unions are out on a fishing expedition and don't know whether they have a case or not.

Commented Eastland: "Isn't that more like racketeering?"

Capehart agreed that it might be called that. "It is a high pressure sales campaign," he added.

The Senator also related that in Chicago unions are filing portal suits on prepared forms and that "this has taken on the aspects of a wholesale business." Capehart explained that the forms require only filling in such information as names and amounts.

Jeopardize Tax Cuts

At Capehart's urging, Chairman Donnell (R-Mo.) announced that federal officials would be called to describe the effect of the suits on their departments.

The Indiana lawmaker contended that the suits involve such a potential loss to the Treasury that Congress can not "even consider reducing the tax burden now" unless legislation is passed to curb them.

Capehart and Sen. Wiley (R-Wis.) are authors of bills to define what the wage-hour law means by work—an omission in the statute which resulted in the Supreme Court writing a definition of its own. The bills would confine it to productive activity.

Excise Tax Extension Now Backed By GOP

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP) — Rep. Grant (R-Ind) announced today he would introduce tomorrow his bill to continue beyond July 1 the so-called luxury taxes on liquor, furs, jewelry, lipstick and other items.

Promptly, Chairman Knutson (R-Minn), of the tax-framing House Ways and Means Committee, announced Grant's measure would be given priority over all other tax legislation, and might be approved at the first committee meeting on Friday.

Meanwhile, House Democrats, with statements chiding Republicans who previously favored letting the wartime excise rates die July 1, swung into step with the GOP's surprise drive to continue them indefinitely.

Parents Protest

Schoolgirls Are Ordered Back Into Swimming Togs

DETROIT, Jan. 15—((AP))—Chaste swim suits wrapped the girlish figures of the Liberty Elementary School's gym class today after irate mothers protested their daughters' nude bathing in the school pool.

The 150 Liberty girls, ages from nine to 13, were given permision six weeks ago to doff their suits to speed their class routine and give them more time to splash in the pool.

The optional system was modeled after that followed by boys at the school for several years. The two sexes are completely segregated during physical education classes, Dr. H. L. Shibler, superintendent of Highland Park Schools, emphasized.

Similar nude bathing is permitted in two other Highland Park elementary schools where 200 young girls paddle twice weekly.

A delegation of mothers, claiming to represent 117 parents of Liberty girls, protested against the nude bathing at Tuesday's Board of Education.

Mrs. Leo Wessinger claimed the custom would lower the girls' moral standards "and get them off on the wrong foot."

Mrs. Alma Vickers told the board she had forbidden her daughter to go to the pool without a suit and suggested nude bathing was akin to participating in nudist colonies.

Dr. Shibler, "in deference to the mothers," ordered the Liberty girls back into their suits, adding "I don't care either way, myself."

Three Killed In Carolina Plane Crash

Civilian Craft Is Consumed By Fire

WAKE FOREST, N. C., Jan. 15—(AP)—At least three men were killed in the crash of a private plane near here tonight. Earlier reports placed the death toll at four but a Wake Forest mortuary later reported that only three bodies were recovered from the burning wreckage.

From effects found in the crash area, about five miles west of Wake Forest, the mortuary narrowed the tentative list of dead to:

Charles Allen Sherwin, 39, Washington, owner of the plane; Jarnett G. Gregg, 28, Washington, and Comdr, William Helvestine, United States Coast Guard reserve, no address.

James P. Walker, Jr., whose address was listed as Gaithersburg, Md., earlier was thought to have been one of the victims through effects recovered from the plane. Washington friends later reported that Walker was not aboard the plane.

Following the crash, the Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington reported that the craft, a twin-engine five-place Cessna, was registered in the name of "Al Sherwin" and was based in Washington. The CAB said the plane was en route back to Washington from the air races in Miami.

The plane reportedly made several passes at the Raleigh-Durham airport but continued without landing. It crashed at about 7:30 p. m., shortly after bypassing the airport.

Police Officer W. O. Nuckles, Wake Forest, one of the first to arrinve at the wreckage, placed the scene of the crash four and a half miles west of Wake Forest and 18 miles east of Durham.

Bilbo Calls His Book A "Message"

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 15 (AP) — Sen. Theodore G. Bilbo, of Mississippi, perched in the middle of his Touro Infirmary bed today, awaited a mouth operation, and enjoyed one of his favorite dishes—chicken 'n dumplings.

"Take a look at this," he said, smacking his lips. "It's a message to every white man and woman in this country."

Bilbo referred to his forthcoming book "Take Your Choice—Segregation or Mongrelization," which is to be released this month.

The Senator's book, to put it in his own words, is a "history and study of countries where separate races have tried to live together which covers a period of some 30,000 years.

"The man" points out that he holds no hatred against any race as such, for, as he says, "God made them that way." But he does hold to his contention that the white and negro races cannot live together and maintain their individuality. "The book is a message to every right thinking white or negro person in the country," Bilbo asserted, adding that "both races must be saved from mongrelization by segregation."

London Dock Workers Join Truckers' Strike

LONDON, Jan. 15 (AP)—London's 10-day old truck strike spread among dock workers and Thames lighter-men today and prospects for an early settlement dimmed.

At least 42,000 men were idle — more than half of them in protest against the use of troops to supplant the truckers in moving food—and observers said that the walkout threatened to involve all of the Port of London's 24,000 union workers.

Dead Twin Helps Sister

Three Injured; Rescue Crews Battle Fumes

Plymouth, Pa., Blast Occurs 850 Feet Down

PLYMOUTH, Pa., Jan. 15. (AP)—Edward Griffith, president and general manager of Glen Alden Coal Company, announced tonight 15 miners were known dead in a gas explosion at the company's Nottingham colliery.

Griffith said names of the men were not available.

The blast was discovered by an unidentified foot tender at the bottom of a shaft who saw clouds of dust and sounded an alarm to the outside, Griffith reported.

He said the bodies of the dead men were still in the mine.

Three miners were removed, two of them badly injured.

Timbers Are Shattered

Griffith said the explosion occurred in the Top Ross vein, about 850 feet below the surface. Miners expressed belief the blast resulted from an accumulation of gas.

The blast was about 2,000 feet from the shaft entrance where the Carey avenue bridge crosses the Susquehanna river.

About 700 feet of gangways leading into the mine workings were affected, Griffith said, adding most of the bodies were in one of the gangways which was struck violently. Tracks were torn up and mine timbers shattered.

Rescue crews battled fumes to get to the bodies while on the surface hundreds of anxious relatives and friends gathered at the colliery entrance, some weeping. A police cordon was formed quickly to expediate the work of the rescue crews.

The three injured men were reported by rescuers to have been working on a chamber off the adjoining gangway not as seriously affected. Two were taken to Wilkes-Barre general hospital and the third was sent home.

Hospitals Alerted

As soon as the alarm was sounded hospitals were alerted and ambulances sent to the colliery.

Miners at Scranton, Pa., recalled the last major gas explosion in the hard coal belt, the Lackawanna and Wyoming valleys — was, to the best of their knowledge, about seven years ago when 11 were killed in a small operation in the lower end of the anthracite field.

Ten miners lost their lives in an explosion in the Volpe Coal Company mine near Pittston, Pa., in the upper end of the belt on June 10, 1938, the Scranton miners said.

Ford Cuts Prices On Current Models

DETROIT, Jan. 15 (AP) — Henry Ford II, president of the Ford Motor Company, today announced price reductions ranging from $15 to $50 on current models of Ford passenger cars and said the action was intended as "shock treatment" to halt "the insane spiral of mounting costs and rising prices."

The action, first of its kind since the end of the war, brought an immediate commendation from Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman, who wired young Ford:

"Your announcement of price reductions is good news for the country and I believe good business for your company."

Walter P. Reuther, president of the CIO United Automobile Workers, declined immediate comment, saying he desired to further study the announcement. The UAW-CIO recently indicated it planned to ask 23½ cent hourly wage increases throughout the industry.

Breaks Fall of Wife

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 15 (AP) — Frank Sheps, 38, braced himself on a lawn beneath a second-story window of his home early today and broke the fall of his wife, Sophie, who had leaped from the blazing house despite his pleas for her to make a sheet-rope to escape the flames.

Sen. Wiley Wants Congressional Record On Nation's Newsstands

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—Be patient, you 99 out of 100 United States citizens who never have seen a copy of the Congressional Record.

If Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.) has his way, the Record will go on sale at all the better newsstands.

Wiley used a page and a half of the Record today to repeat an article he had prepared for the magazine "Future."

And in this article he said that:

A. The Record is the world's most important publication; but

B. Only one out of 100 have ever seen as much as a single issue.

This makes Wiley very sad. And why?

Because it's a faithful story of the doings—and the undoings—of congress.

Because it has stuff that affects "every businessman, farmer, housewife, veteran, wage earner."

Because it mirrors "rhetoric, wit, humor, pathos, strategy, and, yes, boredom now and then."

Right now, the Record reaches only 43,000 subscribers, mostly libraries, politicians, friends of congressmen (who get it free).

Wiley insisted that the Record isn't as dry as dust.

"It can frequently be touched with humor," he said.

And he gave this sample, an exchange he had with Sen. Charles Tobey (R-NH) during a debate on Bretton Woods:

"Mr. Tobey. The correct pronounciation is 'Bretton'—with a short 'E.' Will the Senator please pronounce it correctly? It jangles my nerves to hear it called 'Bray-ton' Woods.

"Mr. Wiley. I thank the Senator, but I am not so sure he is correct. It depends upon whether one is in Wisconsin, New Hampshire, on the high seas, or in Britain, Brittany, or elsewhere. I am sorry the Senator's nerves are so tender.

"Mr. Tobey. If the Senator were to call it 'Bray-ton' Woods in New Hampshire, he might not come out alive."

WAA Expediter, Ex-Convict Held In Alleged Fraud

Involves Alteration Of Sales Documents

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP) — FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover today disclosed the arrest of a War Assets Administration official and an ex-convict trapped in an alleged plot to defraud the government of $72,000 in surplus war materials.

Hoover said the federal worker, Louis V. Dionne, 38-year-old WAA expediter, received $7,000 as his share.

The ex-convict was identified as George A. Gormley, 50. Hoover said Gormley was sentenced in Washington on November 27, 1933, to serve a four to eight year sentence for grand larceny and that the sentence was later changed to a straight eight-year term.

Scheme Concocted In Bar

Hoover said in a statement that both men were charged with violation of the "fraud against the government" statute for causing a forged document to be presented to the United States government.

The scheme was concocted in a Washington bar last November, Hoover said, and involved the "alteration of sales documents" obtained in a genuine purchase of surplus war materials sold at Alexandria, Va.

"Thep lan called for Dionne to raise or increase the yardage figures on the shipping order when it crossed his desk in routine fashion," Hoover said.

Textiles Are Recovered

"The investigation thus far has resulted in the recovery of textiles costing the government $144,000. This amount of goods was seized in a New York storage firm after being traced from a terminal of a trucking firm."

Hoover said Gormley purchased 10,000 yards of wool clothing material from a WAA salesman in Alexandria last December 6, paying $24,000 for the goods which originally cost the government $3.60 per yard, or $36,000.

"The sales document was altered during routine processing to reflect Gormley's purchase as 40,000 yards and the amount paid to the government as $96,000," Hoover said.

POSTER GIRL — Nancy Drury, 4, Louisville, Ky., poster girl for the 1947 March of Dimes drive against polio, carries her teddy bear and luggage through Grand Central Terminal on her arrival in New York. Nancy, who was stricken with infantile paralysis and has virtually recovered, will participate in the start of the national March of Dimes campaign.

"complete, full and absolute" control of both the State and National Guards.

Talmadge made several appointments to state offices during the day but when his appointees moved to take over, the Arnall men on the job sat tight. The rival appointees chatted amiably, pending a court decision to settle the question of who is governor.

Lieutenant Governor-elect M. E. Thompson, balked in his fight to succeed Arnall by the Legislature's election of Talmadge, visited the Capitol and said "the politics of this is over; now it's a question of law." He said he had turned his claim to the office over to a lawyer.

Arnall retained the keys to the massive stone executive mansion but Talmadge's secretary commented that "Gov. Talmadge will wait a few days until this little disturbance has settled down, then he'll move in."

Entrenched in his private office, Arnall said he was "glad" to have Talmadge "visit us."

Talmadge, who had moved into the office of Arnall's executive secretary across the reception chamber, said he had no objection to Arnall remaining "if he desires to hang around a while."

The rivals did not face each other after their dramatic 2:15 a. m., encounter when the Legislature, after 12 hours of debate and canvassing of the general election returns, inaugurated Talmadge.

"I presume that you have been informed that I have been elected as Governor by the General Assembly of Georgia," said Talmadge as he preceded scores of his followers into Arnall's Capitol suite.

Arnall shot back:

"I understand the General Assembly allegedly has elected you, but the General Assembly cannot elect a Governor. Accordingly, I respectfully but firmly refuse to yield the office to you, whom I consider a pretender."

London Challenges Reds' Claims On Spitsbergen

LONDON, Jan. 15 (AP)—A Foreign Office spokesman challenged today any reassertion of Russian claims in the strategic Spitsbergen archipelago, and said that Britain had no knowledge of a Soviet-Norwegian "understanding" on joint defense of the Arctic islands.

Commenting on a Soviet announcement of such an understanding, the spokesman said that Russia was bound by a 1920 international treaty which gave Spitsbergen to Norway and prohibited the use of the islands for "warlike purposes."

The official Russian statement issued in Moscow said Bear island "actually was a Russian island" and that the treaty of 1920 which specifically included the island in the Spitsbergen group awarded to Norway, "cannot remain valid."

Minister, Choir Singer Charged With Adultery

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Jan. 15 (AP)—A middle-aged Methodist minister and a 40-year-old choir singer in his church were sought today on a warrant charging them with adultery.

Police Judge Edward G. Burleson issued the warrant naming as defendants Rev. Daniel L. Reedy, 54, a grandfather, and Mrs. Marquerite Cowles, mother of a son in college.

Complaint was made by Mrs. Cowles' husband, Paul.

Dallas, Tex., police were asked to look for the couple after Assistant Detective Inspector Frank J. Bielicki said they were reported in that southern city.

Miles Reelected State Treasurer By Legislature

Baltimore Delegate's Vote Is Not Counted

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 15—(AP)—Still going through routine business, the Maryland Legislature conducted brief sessions of the Senate and House today, formally re-elected Hooper S. Miles as state treasurer, then adjourned until tomorrow.

The House and Senate, by individual ballot, announced the unanimous election of Miles for a fourth, four-year term by a vote of 137 to 0, although there was one ballot that wasn't counted—the vote of Delegate Reed (D-Balto 5th).

House officials announced 111 votes for Miles, and the Senate gave him 26 votes—the number of members answering roll call.

Indicating the bitter factional battle that has split the Baltimore City delegation and prevented it so far from electing a chairman was the ballot of Delegate Reed. The ballot read:

"Jack Pollack to complete the job. Del. J. Reed, 5 Dis., Balto."

Pollack Supported Lane

James H. (Jack) Pollack, Democratic party leader in the Baltimore Fourth District, supported Lane for governor, and his forces are battling those of William Curran for chairmanship of the city group.

"They will kick a man off his committee, will they?" Reed said as he passed the press table on his way to cast the vote. The tellers set the ballot aside without calling the name, as they did with the other ballots bearing Miles' name.

Majority Floor Leader Pumphrey (D-Prince George's) said that Reed's vote was not considered because Miles was the only name placed in nomination at the Democratic caucus yesterday.

Reed was chairman of the House Labor Committee in the 1943 and 1945 sessions, but was not placed on that committee this session. Delegate Mrozifski (D-Balto 1st) was named chairman this year.

Thirteen Bills Introduced

Thirteen bills were introduced, seven in the House and six in the Senate, bringing the total to 251 at mid-week in the third week of the 1947 session. With a scattering of bills reported from committee, none has yet come up for final passage.

Major attention today was attracted to the Chesapeake Bay and Tributaries Committees in the Senate and House which met jointly to hear a denunciation of Virginia and its enforcement of oyster laws on the Potomac river.

Edwin Warfield, Jr., chairman of the Maryland Natural Resources Board, told the hearing that this state had been "unduly patient with our neighboring state, but the time has come" for Maryland to take some action.

Naval Academy Has New Superintendent

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 15 (AP) — A youngish rear admiral, already an expert in training young officers, took over today as superintendent of the Naval Academy.

Rear Adm. James L. Holloway, Jr., 48, and a native of Fort Smith, Ark., relieved Vice Adm. Aubrey W. Fitch in a ceremony accompanied by booming salute guns and the traditional lowering and raising of command flags.

The academy's 2,963 midshipmen were drawn up in blue-unformed ranks in Dahlgren Hall, along with their 382 officers and 153 civilian instructors, when Adm. Fitch stepped forward on the balcony and read orders transferring him to duty in Washington as a special assistant to Undersecretary of Navy John L. Sullivan.

GI Divorces War Bride Who Wants "All-English" Son

CHICAGO, Jan. 14. (AP)—An Army sergeant today divorced his English war bride who, he said, refused to join him in this country because she wanted their son brought up "wholly and absolutely English."

Sgt. Robert D. Robinson, 34, Camp Lee, Va., said his wife Edna, 27, Nottingham, England, had written him that she no longer loved him, that their son was "the thrill" of her life, and that "I don't want my boy raised as an American; I want him to be mine, wholly and absolutely English."

The sergeant told Judge Leonard C. Reid in Circuit Court he had never seen his son, Neil Stuart, 18 months old.

Older Section Of Motor Vehicle Act Is Upheld

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 15 (AP)—Maryland's motor vehicle act of 1943 does a number of things but it does not repeal an older section of the statute dealing with unauthorized use of automobiles, the Court of Appeals ruled in deciding a close point of law today.

The case involved an appeal by Warden L. Leroy Wright, of the House of Correction, from the release under habeas corpus proceedings of John Sas, Jr., and Robert DeHaven, Baltimore from three-year prison terms.

After their sentence, the men were freed on order of Judge C. Gus Grason, of the Baltimore County Circuit Court, on their contention that the 1943 motor vehicle act repealed Section 397 of Article 27 of the state code dealing with taking and carrying away of automobiles.

The Court of Appeals, in reversing the lower court and remanding the men to custody, held that the 1943 act and the old section had much in common but were not the same, so Section 397 was not repealed by implication.

Statue To Ritchie Is Proposed In Md. House

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 15 (AP)—A proposal for funds to erect a statue to the late Gov. Albert C Ritchie at the southern terminus of the Ritchie highway was offered to the House of Delegates today.

Delegate McKewen (D-Balto. 3rd) sponsored the resolution asking Gov. Lane to include an appropriation in the budget for the monument. McKewen said privately the cost would be $75,000.

There is a lookout site for the statue already overlooking Annapolis at the end of the highway. A memorial commission was created in 1936 to raise funds but not enough money has been raised.

Bill To Raise Educational Standards Is Given Senate

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP) — Legislation to boost average educational standards in the nation and to permit increases in teachers salaries was introduced today by Sen. Aiken (R-Vt.)

His measure would fix a uniform national minimum of expenditures annually for each child in either public or private schools, rising gradually from $50 in 1948 to $100 in 1953. Federal grants ranging from $20 for each pupil in 1948 to $60 in 1953 and thereafter would be provided to supplement state and local funds.

Aiken, in a statement accompanying his bill, declared that establishment of a floor under expenditures for education—there would be no maximum in amounts states and localities could provide — would "have the effect of contributing markedly to the equalization of educational opportunities."

He added that it "would enable the states to deal with the increasingly critical shortage of qualified teachers, which is attributable in large measure to the shamefully low salaries paid teachers."

The bill would authorize appropriation of approximately $400,000,000 for the year ending June 30, 1948, equaling $20 a pupil; $600,000,000 for 1949, or $30 a pupil; $800,000,000 for 1950, or $40 for a pupil; $1,000,000,000 for 1951, or $50 a pupil, and $1,200,000,000 for 1952, and thereafter, or $60 a pupil.

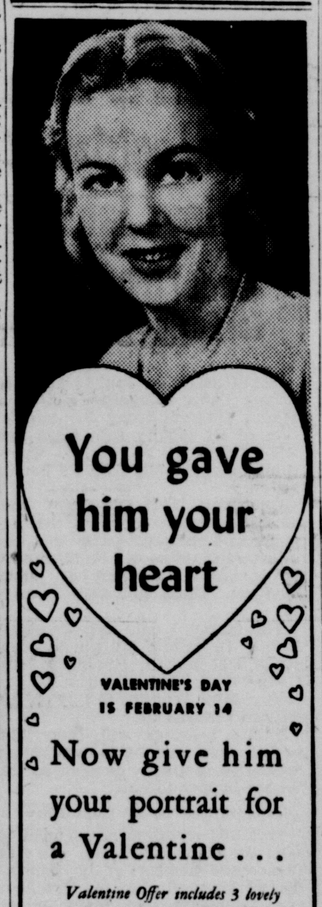

Private schools would be reimbursed in amounts not to exceed 60 per cent of expenditures for transportation services, school health examinations, and related school health services, and non-religious instructional supplies and equipment, including books.

No direct or indirect controls of the operations of either the public or private schools would be provided, Aiken said. The only conditions would be checks to safeguard public money and that states spend from their own resources at least as much as they have spent in the current year, or $100 per pupil, whichever is the lesser amount.

Farmers Form Committee To Oppose Co-op Tax Bill

BALTIMORE, Jan. 15 (AP)—About 100 representatives of Maryland farm co-operatives and organizations met here today and formed the "Maryland's Farmers Defense Committee" to oppose a bill now before the Legislature which would levy an income tax on patronage refunds of co-operatives.

The bill was introduced during the opening days of the session under sponsorship of the Legislative Council.

It also would require unions to file financial reports, deprive supervisors and foremen of collective bargaining rights, prevent payments by employers to welfare funds dominated by unions, and make it easier for unions to be sued for breaking contracts.

Taft said the hearing then would deal with all other bills "having the object of reducing industrial strife in the United States."

WAA Expediter, Ex-Convict Held In Alleged Fraud

Involves Alteration Of Sales Documents

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP) — FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover today disclosed the arrest of a War Assets Administration official and an ex-convict trapped in an alleged plot to defraud the government of $72,000 in surplus war materials.

Hoover said the federal worker, Louis V. Dionne, 38-year-old WAA expediter, received $7,000 as his share.

The ex-convict was identified as George A. Gormley, 50. Hoover said Gormley was sentenced in Washington on November 27, 1933, to serve a four to eight year sentence for grand larceny and that the sentence was later changed to a straight eight-year term.

Scheme Concocted In Bar

Hoover said in a statement that both men were charged with violation of the "fraud against the government" statute for causing a forged document to be presented to the United States government.

The scheme was concocted in a Washington bar last November, Hoover said, and involved the "alteration of sales documents" obtained in a genuine purchase of surplus war materials sold at Alexandria, Va.

"Thep lan called for Dionne to raise or increase the yardage figures on the shipping order when it crossed his desk in routine fashion," Hoover said.

Textiles Are Recovered

"The investigation thus far has resulted in the recovery of textiles costing the government $144,000. This amount of goods was seized in a New York storage firm after being traced from a terminal of a trucking firm."

Hoover said Gormley purchased 10,000 yards of wool clothing material from a WAA salesman in Alexandria last December 6, paying $24,000 for the goods which originally cost the government $3.60 per yard, or $36,000.

"The sales document was altered during routine processing to reflect Gormley's purchase as 40,000 yards and the amount paid to the government as $96,000," Hoover said.

Georgia Attorney

"complete, full and absolute" control of both the State and National Guards.

Talmadge made several appointments to state offices during the day but when his appointees moved to take over, the Arnall men on the job sat tight. The rival appointees chatted amiably, pending a court decision to settle the question of who is governor.

Lieutenant Governor-elect M. E. Thompson, balked in his fight to succeed Arnall by the Legislature's election of Talmadge, visited the Capitol and said "the politics of this is over; now it's a question of law." He said he had turned his claim to the office over to a lawyer.

Arnall retained the keys to the massive stone executive mansion but Talmadge's secretary commented that "Gov. Talmadge will wait a few days until this little disturbance has settled down, then he'll move in."

Entrenched in his private office, Arnall said he was "glad" to have Talmadge "visit us."

Talmadge, who had moved into the office of Arnall's executive secretary across the reception chamber, said he had no objection to Arnall remaining "if he desires to hang around a while."

The rivals did not face each other after their dramatic 2:15 a. m., encounter when the Legislature, after 12 hours of debate and canvassing of the general election returns, inaugurated Talmadge.

"I presume that you have been informed that I have been elected as Governor by the General Assembly of Georgia," said Talmadge as he preceded scores of his followers into Arnall's Capitol suite.

Arnall shot back:

"I understand the General Assembly allegedly has elected you, but the General Assembly cannot elect a Governor. Accordingly, I respectfully but firmly refuse to yield the office to you, whom I consider a pretender."

POSTER GIRL — Nancy Drury, 4, Louisville, Ky., poster girl for the 1947 March of Dimes drive against polio, carries her teddy bear and luggage through Grand Central Terminal on her arrival in New York. London Challenges Reds' Claims On Spitsbergen

LONDON, Jan. 15 (AP)—A Foreign Office spokesman challenged today any reassertion of Russian claims in the strategic Spitsbergen archipelago, and said that Britain had no knowledge of a Soviet-Norwegian "understanding" on joint defense of the Arctic islands.

Commenting on a Soviet announcement of such an understanding, the spokesman said that Russia was bound by a 1920 international treaty which gave Spitsbergen to Norway and prohibited the use of the islands for "warlike purposes."

The official Russian statement issued in Moscow said Bear island "actually was a Russian island" and that the treaty of 1920 which specifically included the island in the Spitsbergen group awarded to Norway, "cannot remain valid."

Minister, Choir Singer Charged With Adultery

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Jan. 15 (AP)—A middle-aged Methodist minister and a 40-year-old choir singer in his church were sought today on a warrant charging them with adultery.

Police Judge Edward G. Burleson issued the warrant naming as defendants Rev. Daniel L. Reedy, 54, a grandfather, and Mrs. Marquerite Cowles, mother of a son in college.

Complaint was made by Mrs. Cowles' husband, Paul.

Dallas, Tex., police were asked to look for the couple after Assistant Detective Inspector Frank J. Bielicki said they were reported in that southern city.

Miles Reelected State Treasurer By Legislature

Baltimore Delegate's Vote Is Not Counted

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 15—(AP)—Still going through routine business, the Maryland Legislature conducted brief sessions of the Senate and House today, formally re-elected Hooper S. Miles as state treasurer, then adjourned until tomorrow.

The House and Senate, by individual ballot, announced the unanimous election of Miles for a fourth, four-year term by a vote of 137 to 0, although there was one ballot that wasn't counted—the vote of Delegate Reed (D-Balto 5th).

House officials announced 111 votes for Miles, and the Senate gave him 26 votes—the number of members answering roll call.

Indicating the bitter factional battle that has split the Baltimore City delegation and prevented it so far from electing a chairman was the ballot of Delegate Reed. The ballot read:

"Jack Pollack to complete the job. Del. J. Reed, 5 Dis., Balto."

Pollack Supported Lane

James H. (Jack) Pollack, Democratic party leader in the Baltimore Fourth District, supported Lane for governor, and his forces are battling those of William Curran for chairmanship of the city group.

"They will kick a man off his committee, will they?" Reed said as he passed the press table on his way to cast the vote. The tellers set the ballot aside without calling the name, as they did with the other ballots bearing Miles' name.

Majority Floor Leader Pumphrey (D-Prince George's) said that Reed's vote was not considered because Miles was the only name placed in nomination at the Democratic caucus yesterday.

Reed was chairman of the House Labor Committee in the 1943 and 1945 sessions, but was not placed on that committee this session. Delegate Mrozifski (D-Balto 1st) was named chairman this year.

Thirteen Bills Introduced

Thirteen bills were introduced, seven in the House and six in the Senate, bringing the total to 251 at mid-week in the third week of the 1947 session. With a scattering of bills reported from committee, none has yet come up for final passage.

Major attention today was attracted to the Chesapeake Bay and Tributaries Committees in the Senate and House which met jointly to hear a denunciation of Virginia and its enforcement of oyster laws on the Potomac river.

Edwin Warfield, Jr., chairman of the Maryland Natural Resources Board, told the hearing that this state had been "unduly patient with our neighboring state, but the time has come" for Maryland to take some action.

Naval Academy Has New Superintendent

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 15 (AP) — A youngish rear admiral, already an expert in training young officers, took over today as superintendent of the Naval Academy.

Rear Adm. James L. Holloway, Jr., 48, and a native of Fort Smith, Ark., relieved Vice Adm. Aubrey W. Fitch in a ceremony accompanied by booming salute guns and the traditional lowering and raising of command flags.

The academy's 2,963 midshipmen were drawn up in blue-uniformed ranks in Dahlgren Hall, along with their 382 officers and 153 civilian instructors, when Adm. Fitch stepped forward on the balcony and read orders transferring him to duty in Washington as a special assistant to Undersecretary of Navy John L. Sullivan.

GI Divorces War Bride Who Wants "All-English" Son

CHICAGO, Jan. 14. (AP)—An Army sergeant today divorced his English war bride who, he said, refused to join him in this country because she wanted their son brought up "wholly and absolutely English."

Sgt. Robert D. Robinson, 34, Camp Lee, Va., said his wife Edna, 27, Nottingham, England, had written him that she no longer loved him, that their son was "the thrill" of her life, and that "I don't want my boy raised as an American; I want him to be mine, wholly and absolutely English."

The sergeant told Judge Leonard C. Reid in Circuit Court he had never seen his son, Neil Stuart, 18 months old.

Older Section Of Motor Vehicle Act Is Upheld

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 15 (AP)—Maryland's motor vehicle act of 1943 does a number of things but it does not repeal an older section of the statute dealing with unauthorized use of automobiles, the Court of Appeals ruled in deciding a close point of law today.

The case involved an appeal by Warden L. Leroy Wright, of the House of Correction, from the release under habeas corpus proceedings of John Sas, Jr., and Robert DeHaven, Baltimore from three-year prison terms.

After their sentence, the men were freed on order of Judge C. Gus Grason, of the Baltimore County Circuit Court, on their contention that the 1943 motor vehicle act repealed Section 397 of Article 27 of the state code dealing with taking and carrying away of automobiles.

The Court of Appeals, in reversing the lower court and remanding the men to custody, held that the 1943 act and the old section had much in common but were not the same, so Section 397 was not repealed by implication.

Vandenberg Gives General Marshall Guidance Blueprint

A demand by Senator Vandenberg for a broader base for the nation's bipartisan foreign policy, and his proposals that our policies toward China and the Latin-American republics be brought into line with our firm position on European problems are sound and timely. His Cleveland speech several nights ago was just as explicit on the issue of the atom bomb.

We must have "an effective system of continuous inspection and control which makes certain that no international brigand shall hereafter break faith with us and the world," he said. That is our protection against treachery. And the control plan the United States has offered the rest of the world is a "fixed price" which must be paid. Thus the United Nations Security Council is on notice not to attempt any sabotage of the Baruch security program.

The Michigan Republican emphasized that he was not speaking only for himself in his review of world problems. But he is chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, and an official spokesman in this field for the new majority in Congress. Remarking that China under Chiang Kai-shek's leadership, adopted a new constitution, Senator Vandenberg said we should encourage this movement by the non-Communist forces toward representative government. This should end the State Department's outmoded Communist-coalition program.

Equally to the point was his demand that the frequently postponed Pan-American Conference, promised since 1945, be held without delay. While we have neglected our "good-neighborly contacts," he warned, the American republics have been drifting apart, and there has been a Communist upsurge.

The principal friction in the Western Hemisphere is due to the United States controversy with Argentina over that nation's alleged failure to fulfill Chapulepec pledges to purge itself of Nazi influences. Yet if the complaints against the Peron government have real basis, the situation is of concern to all the American republics. And, as Mr. Vandenberg said, the decision concerning it should be made by all of them, "not influenced or dictated by us alone." We should take the initiative in renewing "the joint New World authority which is the genius of our New World unity."

Senator Vandenberg has given General Marshall a blueprint for his guidance as Secretary of State. We think an overwhelming majority of Americans can support the sort of program it contemplates.

Congress Ready To Try Reorganization Act

It is pleasant to note that the Eightieth Congress has started on its career by confounding the cynics who predicted that the Congressional Reorganization Act passed last year would prove to be a meaningless gesture or worse. Instead of justifying prophecies that it would jettison the reforms while keeping the salary increase and retirement benefits, it has made the measure fully effective.

Both branches of Congress have organized according to the blueprint set forth in the legislation. In the House, when the question came up, the necessary resolution was adopted without debate and by voice vote. In the Senate the ratio of Republicans to Democrats on a number of important committees came under criticism from Senator Barkley, the minority leader, but there was never much doubt that the provisions of the act would be made effective.

So the expected revolt against the unquestionably drastic changes required by the law never materialized. Opponents recognized that they had no chance of scuttling the act and decided to make the best of it. Possibly they are biding their time, hoping for a favorable opportunity to attack, but that is only another way of saying that they see no opening at the moment. As a result, the experiment begins under favorable auspices.

It might fail. The act deprives individual members of some of the power and prestige they have enjoyed in the past. It could happen that in time dissatisfaction will bring about a real rebellion. But for the moment senators and representatives alike are prepared to give it a thorough trial.

Ben Franklin Will Always Stand Among Great Americans

Perhaps there could be no more significant tribute to the fame of Benjamin Franklin than the circumstances that in this year, 157 years after his death, his birthday is being celebrated throughout the country. He was born January 17, 1706.

Franklin has been described as the most versatile man that the country has produced. Printers have a claim to him, for he was a superior printer. Newspapermen believe that his great service as a patriot really sprang from an experience, when he was fifteen, with tyranny. In that year, his brother, James, a printer and editor of a newspaper, the New England Courant, was jailed for a month by the speaker of the Massachusetts Assembly for "a too liberal exercise of his critical faculties." Benjamin deeply resented this restraint on freedom of discussion. He became a crusading champion of all kinds of liberty.

His story is familiar to the American people. His discoveries in science were quickly acclaimed—especially in England—as among the most important of all time. His writings revealed an imposing literary stature. His contribution to the diffusion of learning was in itself enough to secure for him a lasting place in history.

But the country will ever honor him above all else for his success in persuading France to come into the war for liberation on the side of the colonies. Without France, the colonies might have won their freedom; with France, they were sure to win. Franklin did that—at the age of 71. He will stand always among the greatest Americans.

Pancho And Petrillo

In 1916 Pancho Villa irritated the United States enough that an expeditionary force was sent into Mexico after him. Thirty years late James Caesar Petrillo irritated Mexican musicians enough that they are threatening to block a Mexican appearance of an American symphony orchestra.

The times have changed, and bullets have been replaced by edicts, but bad boys on both sides of the border still can stir up trouble.

Ten best-dressed women recently selected will not be remembered as long as Sally Rand.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

A PLAN FOR GAINING WEIGHT

MOST of us try to maintain an ideal weight altho slight variations are not uncommon. But marked deviations may call for medical care. The physician is likely to be concerned about obesity as the condition is a forerunner of many chronic ailments.

Yet the thin person frequently presents a greater problem and the answer may be more than a matter of additional calories. On the other hand, many lifelong "greyhounds" are hale and hearty and no more susceptible to infection than any one else. In such persons heredity is a factor and the appetite is usually good.

A loss of poundage is customary among individuals recuperating from acute or prolonged illness. In these circumstances the condition is hazardous, for reserve is low and they are subject to colds and other respiratory diseases. There is another type who suffers from poor appetite and constantly below par and nervous. As a rule, he is vivacious, and extremely emotional; works hard but eats less in proportion to his expenditure of energy. No organic disease is present and a long life is in the offing.

Some are classified as neurasthenics and exhibit overactivity of the stomach and intestines altho the metabolism rate is often low. Unless they can be toned down from the inside, the prospects of adding avoirdupois are slim.

In general, by stimulating appetite, more food will be consumed. No less than three meals daily are required and each should be ingested in peaceful surroundings without being harassed by annoying questions, bickering, or loud noises. Meals should be attractive and tempting, and the eater must not leave the table until he has finished. This is a far cry from grabbing a cup of coffee and a sandwich and running off to work or a date.

Moderate out of door exercise is helpful and walking, swimming, bowling, light gymnastics, or massage are advocated. Furthermore, such procedures lead to muscular development and body strength. Care should be taken, however, not to overindulge as strenuous exertion will burn up too many calories and few will be stored. Nine to 10 hours of sleep should be the rule. To start the ball rolling, a sedative may be prescribed for the first week or two. If the colon is spastic, roughage must be eliminated.

Nevertheless, the much needed pounds must still be obtained thru eating. One-sided menus are taboo and the regimen should include a variety and quantity as well as quality. Some require a formal diet containing a large number of calories; others will be successful by doubling their former intake. Under this plan a month or more may pass before an increase is noted. By going at it in a leisurely fashion, the subject does not have to force himself. At the end of the year he should be in good flesh.

(Send a stamped self-addressed envelope for gain in weight diet.)

IMPROBABLE

Mrs. E. B. writes: My husband suffers from dizziness and head noises. Could this result from tweezing the hair on his face?

REPLY

Tweezing and the symptoms mentioned are about as compatible as oil and water or pickles and whipped cream. He should consult a physician to discover whether his manifestations are amenable to treatment.

HAIR REMOVAL

F. J. writes: How many electrolysis treatments are necessary to clear the face?

REPLY

This depends upon the amount of hair that is to be removed. Bristles on the lips usually call for five to 10 weekly treatments; chin involvement, 10 to 15. The texture of the hair and the fine sensitivity of the skin must also be taken into consideration.

FALLEN-ORGANS

R. J. writes: Would one dropped kidney drag the other one down?

REPLY

No. They are held up by independent structures. On the other hand, "falling" of the organs occurs frequently in thin individuals because there is an insufficient amount of fat to hold them up. If one drops, therefore, it is likely that the other may follow suit.

ACROPHOBIA

E. J. writes: Is fear of height due to a physical or mental disturbance?

REPLY

If the condition represents a true phobia, the origin is mental. Now and then an individual develops dizziness as a result of some physical ailment and is afraid to ascend a ladder or look down from a tall building.

HEMORRHOIDS

R. C. writes: As a rule, is more than one hemorrhoid present in piles?

REPLY

Yes. There are three groups of hemorrhoidal veins, each connecting with a number of smaller blood vessels. Naturally, whatever disturbs one will affect all. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on hemorrhoids.

UNLIKELY

D. S. writes: Could gas cause pain in the arms and legs?

REPLY

Hardly, unless the distention is so great as to cause pressure on the diaphram. In these circumstances, distress may be felt in the shoulders and arms.

PROMIZOLE

J. W. writes: What are the relative values of promin and promizole in the treatment of leprosy?

REPLY

Promin, so far, has proved too dangerous for continuous administration. Promizole, a newer compound, has been used in a few cases and apparently is tolerated better. Both drugs are still in the experimental stage.

CIO Attitude May Stiffen Congress On Labor Actions

By MARK SULLIVAN

During the second week of the new Congress, that body, through its leaders and committees, was examining and comparing the many labor bills that have been introduced. The spirit in which this was being done was one of not favoring such proposals as seemed extreme or impracticable. The atmosphere, as expressed in words frequently used, was that the legislation should not be "punitive" or unnecessarily "repressive." The determination to write new labor legislation was firm, but equally firm was the determination that it be reasonable and carefully thought out.

To this atmosphere a contribution of a sort, was made by CIO on January 10. It came in the form of a letter addressed to every member of Congress by CIO President Philip Murray, accompanied by a pamphlet entitled "The Drive Against Labor." These, with the current copy of the official CIO News, reflect the spirit of CIO.

The pamphlet "The Drive Against Labor" opens with an introduction by Mr. Murray. Within the space of slightly over a page occur these phrases: "Handful of bankers . . . monopoly interests . . . legislation to destroy American unionism . . . tactics of tyranny . . . wilful distortion . . . calumnies and falsehoods . . . tissue of fabrications . . . false issues . . . attack of reaction."

Oppose Any Labor Legislation

The attitude of CIO, inferable from these and other evidence seems one of opposition to any labor legislation whatever. Certainly the impression is created that the CIO part of labor is not prepared for any objective or dispassionate discussion of the pending legislation. Of those who propose legislation, CIO says, "they conceal their intent in meaningless and misleading slogans." Disapproval of slogans, coming from CIO, may at least contribute the solvent of ironic humor to a contentious atmosphere.

CIO's "The Drive Against Labor," in the words of Mr. Murray," covers the types of legislative restrictions proposed." Among these, CIO strongly condemns measures which aim toward a "cooling off" period before a strike.

This is the very type of legislation that most reflects the spirit and intent of Congress. No proposal to forbid all strikes utterly has any serious standing in Congress. But the aim of seeing that strikes take place in an atmosphere of reason, removed from emotion, is practically universal in Congress. It is reflected in measure after measure which look to setting up processes of negotiation and conciliation that tend toward postponement and the cooling off of emotions.

Wants No Cooling Off

But CIO wants no cooling off, and the reasons it gives are illuminating. CIO says that "the power of the union to organize and conduct a strike . . . depends in large measure on the morale and organizational spirit" among the union members. "That morale and organizational spirit is not a thing of the moment; it is not something that can be built up and turned on or off overnight simply at the beck and call of the leaders of the union"; it requires "detailed preparation"; the union must be able "to time its strike action properly and effectively."

One infers that CIO regards the creation of the right emotion as an essential part of the strike strategy.

Similarly, one of the most prevailing aims in Congress is to prevent industry-wide strikes which injure the public welfare such as the recent coal strike or last spring's railroad strike. And similarly CIO resists a preventive proposed by Senator Ball of Minnesota. CIO says, "a prohibition of industry-wide negotiations would destroy the economic pressure which makes possible the uniform settlements."

Nothing in what CIO says suggests that it looks upon nation-wide strikes in any other light than as a help to its strategy.

From the whole of CIO's attitude one would infer that it does not consider that anything happened in the November election. Congress thinks something did happen. And the manner in which Congress carries out the mandate of the election is likely to be stiffened by CIO's present spirit.

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Sec. Byrnes Employed Unique Strategy In Winning Russia To Friendlier Terms; Byrnes' Patience Gradually Broke Down Molotov; How Byrnes Outsmarts Yugoslavs

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—When the history of post-war peace is finally written, one of the most important chapters will deal with the sudden improvement of American-Russian relations in the late fall of 1946.

And with the resignation of the one man who sat all through those negotiations, it is now possible to reveal some of the gripping, day-to-day drama by which Jimmie Byrnes, almost single-handed, accomplished this improvement.

All during the sessions of the Paris Peace Conference, Molotov was nasty. He was deliberately, consistently, almost unbearably nasty. This writer, who watched part of the Paris Peace Conference, marveled at the way Jimmie Byrnes smiled back at the goading of the Soviet Foreign Minister.

Byrnes, however, surmised what probably was true; namely, that Molotov was acting under instructions from Moscow—instructions to make the peace negotiations as difficult as possible.

Despite Molotov's pin-pricking, however, he and Byrnes continued the social amenities, and once every week or so they dined together—a very small dinner attended only by their two interpreters, Pavlov and Chip Bohlen, and their two chief advisers, Ben Cohen and Vice Commissar Vishinsky.

Nasty as Molotov was during the early days of the Conference, his nastiness increased toward the end. Finally as Byrnes gave his last dinner to Molotov and it was the latter's turn to return the invitation, the usually punctilious Molotov did not do so. This Byrnes interpreted as a sign that things were getting even worse.

The Last Dinner

Finally, Molotov proposed that all negotiations be terminated by the next night, and simultaneously invited Byrnes to dinner on the closing night—a clear indication that he didn't want to expose himself to Byrnes' contagious charm before staging his last burst of temperament at the wind-up of the Paris Conference.

The last session closed at 9:30 so Byrnes and Molotov did not sit down to dinner until 10 p. m. And as the two tired statesmen relaxed over their brandy, Byrnes said to the man who had so bitterly opposed him:

"Why didn't you tell me at the start there were certain things you couldn't discuss? It's obvious that you have instructions not to discuss certain points. Why didn't you tell me so? Instead, you have called us names, wasted a lot of time and got everybody mad. If you had told us that you couldn't discuss certain things, we wouldn't have bothered you."

"That's a good idea," replied Molotov, still unbending.

But later, as the Russian mellowed a bit more, Byrnes approached him again.

What Moscow Really Wants

"What is it that Russia really wants?" he asked. "Behind all this argument and conversation, what are you really driving at?"

"Ten billion dollars reparations from Germany," Molotov shot back.

"But you know you can't get it."

"But it was agreed to at Yalta," argued Molotov.

"No, it was agreed at Yalta that Russia's claim would be a point for discussion," countered Byrnes. "President Roosevelt made that very clear. And later, at Potsdam, we wasted a lot of time debating that and Truman and Stalin finally agreed this was to be only a point for discussion."

The Secretary of State then asked Molotov what other backstage motive lurked behind Russia's disagreeable tactics at the Paris Conference.

"What else do you want?" he inquired.

"The Ruhr," replied Molotov.

Again Byrnes said no.

It was on this very sour and negative note that the Paris Conference closed. Neither side had budged an inch and behind the Soviet policy of studied insults, it was obvious they were aiming at important economic goals.

It was in this same atmosphere that the Big Four conference talks first began in New York. Only significant development between Paris and New York was Molotov's quick trip back to Moscow, where it was reported he got fresh instructions from the Politburo. What these instructions were nobody definitely knows, though it was believed the friendly advice Molotov received from Byrnes during their dinner in Paris may have been relayed back to Moscow and sunk home.

Yugoslavs Outbluffed

Though more agreeable, the Russians yielded on nothing basic, and the climax of the New York talks came when Yugoslav Vice Premier Kardelj quit the Conference altogether. Yugoslavia would not yield on Trieste, Kardelj said, and walked out.

Since Trieste was the heart of the entire Italian treaty, this looked like the end. Next day, however, Yugoslav delegate Kardelj came to see Byrnes and suggested a compromise. Byrnes listened carefully but found that the compromise was all in Yugoslavia's favor. He replied that it was unacceptable.

"Don't you want a treaty?" asked the puzzled Yugoslav.

"No," replied the Secretary of State. "We have given up all thought of a treaty. You walked out on us yesterday, and since then we have given up any idea of signing a treaty.

"We have talked it over with the Italians," Byrnes continued, "and they are quite agreeable to waiting until next year. Next year they say they'll be stronger and will be able to take care of the situation by themselves.

"We're going to leave our troops in Trieste, of course," Byrnes informed the now pop-eyed and bewildered Yugoslav. "You won't have to worry about policing the city. We'll take care of that.

"No," concluded the Secretary of State. "We've simply decided that there are too many headaches in getting a peace treaty, so we just won't worry about it any more."

The Yugoslav delegate looked very crestfallen. Jimmie Byrnes' trump diplomatic card was beginning to work.

(Ed. note—Another column on Secretary Byrnes' strategy in improving Russian relations will follow shortly.)

Capital Chaff

Several Democratic Senators met with Senator Murray of Montana last week to draft a moderate labor law curbing jurisdictional strikes and secondary boycotts but otherwise not cracking down on labor.... The Soviet Politburo has approved a new Argentine-Russian economic treaty. . . . Harold Smith, former Director of the Budget, may replace Jack Hutson as Assistant Secretary General of the United Nations .... The Polish Government will formally request the Moscow Conference that the German peace treaty be signed in Poland. It was Hitler's invasion of Poland that started the war, and they want the end of the war to be commemorated in Poland.

Rank And File Of Workers Held To Favor Restrictive Labor Measures

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15. — An amazing parallel is being revealed in the labor problems of Great Britain and the United States.

For nearly twenty years — from 1927 to 1946—the people of Great Britain were protected against the "general strike" menace, but when the Labor Government came into power the statute was promptly repealed. There was no crisis in 1946, and the Labor Government spokesman said they resented the presence of the law on the statute books. They forgot that, in 1926, a general strike had paralyzed the economic life of Great Britain and that Labor Governments were unpopular from that time on. In fact, the Labor Government of Clement Attlee came into office after a long lapse and won on a negative wave as a protest against the wartime controls of the Churchill government and its failure to make the social transitions from war to peace necessary to placate a post-war electorate.

Now Faced With Crisis

Today the British Labor Government is face to face with crisis after crisis. The use of troops to move food by truck is a drastic measure which no labor government would apply except in case of dire necessity. It may be that the so-called "Trades Disputes Act" will have to be re-enacted. Certainly during the two decades it was law in England, there was no serious labor disturbance that threatened the life of the country. Sympathy strikes were illegal. In this statute it was declared:

"(A) that any strike is illegal if it (1) has any object other than or in addition to the furtherance of a trade dispute within the trade or industry in which the strikers are engaged; and (2) is a strike designed or calculated to coerce the government either directly or by inflicting hardship upon the community."

There was a similar provision with respect to lockouts by employers, and also a provision saying, "it is further declared that it is illegal to commence, or continue, or to apply any sums in furtherance or support of, any such illegal strike or lockout."

One provision fixed a penalty of fines and imprisonment for any person who "declares, instigates, incites others to take part or otherwise acts in furtherance of a strike or lockout, declared by this act to be illegal." But it was also stipulated that "no person shall be deemed to have committed an offense under this section or at common law by reason of his having ceased work or refused to continue to work or accept employment."

Other provisions outlawed "intimidation," especially by picketing and the financial liability of unions for wrongful acts of their officers was declared in connection with violations of the trades dispute act.

British-U. S. Parallel Plans

The parallel between the British legislation, now repealed, and the efforts of American legislators to outlaw sympathetic strikes and secondary boycotts is plain. But the most significant analogy is with respect to the powers given the British government itself, which apparently were to be exercised primarily against strikes that threatened the economic life of the community. In America, the controversy with the United Mine Workers concerned the power of the federal government to issue an injunction against the coal stoppage which occurred when the mines were in the government's hands.

In both the United States and Great Britain — the two biggest democracies of the world—the tolerance by the public as a whole of special groups with vote-getting potentiality has led to a situation in which, in the absence of statutes, there emerges a usurpation of economic power in defiance of the people's interest.

Much as the vote-conscious administrations in both Britain and the United States may dislike it, the pendulum is swinging toward restrictive legislation which the rank and file of workers themselves wish to see adopted as a means of bringing order out of economic chaos. The theory that strikes injure only the employers is being proved fallacious by the devastating nature of the strikes that are occurring in both Britain and the United States as a result of unrestrained acts by labor union leaders.

PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

I've only met two men in my life who impressed me. I've admired hundreds for their talent, wit, judgment and ethics, but only twice have I felt about a guy as all France must have felt about Joan of Arc.

It's hard to put on paper what I mean. Maybe Gertrude Stein said it when she wrote that a bell rang inside her head when she met Picasso. If you were to pin me down to one word that would describe the quality I'm talking about, I would have to come up with a word that looks fakey in print. Certainly fakey and far from home in a ragtime column like this. That word is godliness.

Billy Rose

The first man who rocked me with a deep-down impression of greatness was my old boss, Bernard M. Baruch. I used to write shorthand for him and fetch him his chocolate sodas when he was chairman of the War Industries Board in 1917. After 30 years, he's still a hero to his valet.

During these 30 years, I've been in businesses where you can't help meeting the people you read about on page one. If you produce shows, somewhere along the line the Duke of Windsor wants a pair down front. If you stage a benefit rally at the Garden, you're apt to find yourself talking exits and entrances with Wendell Willkie and Herbert Hoover. Around World's Fairs, you're liable to be discussing admission prices with House of Morgan partners. And in the saloon business, you meet just about everybody.

But it was a quarter of a century after I met Mr. Baruch before I heard the little bell ring again. I'd like to tell you about that second tinkle.

I heard it on August 15, 1943. I had gone to Washington for Mr. Baruch's birthday party at the Carlton Hotel. I was down in the empty ballroom, fussing with potted palms, and telling the orchestra leader when to play "Happy Birthday," when the big double doors opened and an Army officer and his wife came in.

The couple looked around the empty room uncertainly. Evidently they had goten their signals crossed. It was about six o'clock— the party wasn't due to start till seven. As they were about to leave, I went over and introduced myself. I told the officer Mr. Baruch was upstairs and that I would phone him.

"Don't disturb him," said the officer. "He's probably busy. We'll wait."

I hunted up a waiter and ordered some drinks. "You're in show business, aren't you?" the officer said. "You people are doing a good job entertaining the troops."

For the next hour I told him how I thought we could do a better job. I sounded off on some pet theories I had about overseas entertainment. The U.S.O. and Red Cross couldn't do the whole job, I told him. I outlined a plan for organizing self-entertainment for soldiers in remote posts and in rest areas behind the lines.

The officer listened good. In fact, he listened better than anyone I had ever talked to. He asked some questions, and he asked them like a pro. More than any Army officer I had met, he savvied how important a little fun was to the kids in O.D.'s. We talked about 16-mm. movies, truck shows, juke boxes. He kept discussing the problem in terms of the buck private. The way he talked about little guys gave me the feeling he was a very special sort of fellow.

It got to be seven. Guests were beginning to arrive. "I'd like to talk to you some more about this," he said. "Could you see me tomorrow at eight-thirty?"

"Isn't that going to cut into your dinner hour?" I asked.

"I mean eight thirty in the morning," he smiled.

By waiting up for the appointment, I got to his office promptly, and was just as promptly sent in to see him. He was sitting behind the cleanest desk I had ever seen outside a furniture store. He was relaxed and easy. There was no hollering over intercommunication systems, no pressing of buttons. We talked quietly for half an hour. Again I sensed the big-heart line, the big concern for the little man.

There was nothing extraordinary about this clean-shaven man with the blue eyes—and yet there was. He was generating a kind of light and heat I had only felt once before. It had to do with goodness, selflessness, and what for the want of a better word I've called godliness.

He finished the interview by asking me to put my plan on paper and send it to him.

As I got up to leave, he said, "How does the war look to you?"

I laughed, and so would you, had you been asked that question by General George Catlett Marshall, Chief of Staff of the United States Army.

I'm awfully glad he's our new Secretary of State.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

Down the Street—In and Out

I have watched him with his uniform cap, pushed to the back of his head, in the big office, where selecting and assortment of mail goes on. And I have watched him, with his big bag hung over his shoulder, and looked upon him, as he went down the street—delivering his route of mail. A segment of the Government on duty!

Down the street, in and out, up stairs, elevators, and down again. That strap pulling upon the shoulder. Year in and Year out—in sunshine, rain, storm—no matter—faithfully he performs. The Government can't get tired.

Sometimes it's on a bicycle, sometimes in a wagon, but mostly it's on foot—tread, tread, hour after hour. "Is the mail in?" "Did I get a letter?" "Has the Postman been here yet?" "I don't see why I don't get that letter." "I'm sorry, ma'am, perhaps I'll have one for you tomorrow." Up the street, in and out, short-cuts, across lots, through crowds, into buildings, banks, grocery stores, little cottages, big offices, meeting the trains, hurrying from the air fields—the Government at work—the mail must be delivered.

Is he down-in-the-mouth, is he grumpy, discourteous, or full of complaints? Not he, not the mail-man. He is pleasant, kindly, and happy, when people smile at getting their mail, and he hopes it is always pleasant news, and good news. He's on Governmental business, and the Government is good, he thinks, but he wishes it would pay him better—and oftener, raises for his faithful service. And so do everyone else of us.

Dow nthe street, across the road, in the rain, through the snow, under the heat, there he comes—the pack is heavy, but he doesn't complain. It's his job, and he's a Government man, doing his duty, delivering letters, packages, and good will. Doors open. He gets a smile. People like his calls. They bless him. They wish they were his employer. They are his empoyer, but he never senses it, nor hardly do they who gain his services.

In and out, day by day, in storm, stress, war, peace, as people are born and as people die, through it all, the people's friend, from door to door, from office to office, up and down, again and again—delivering the mail—he, a human instrument of the Government, but what an important one! Bless him forever—he who delivers the mail!

Vandenberg Gives General Marshall Guidance Blueprint

A demand by Senator Vandenberg for a broader base for the nation's bipartisan foreign policy, and his proposals that our policies toward China and the Latin-American republics be brought into line with our firm position on European problems are sound and timely. His Cleveland speech several nights ago was just as explicit on the issue of the atom bomb.

We must have "an effective system of continuous inspection and control which makes certain that no international brigand shall hereafter break faith with us and the world," he said. That is our protection against treachery. And the control plan the United States has offered the rest of the world is a "fixed price" which must be paid. Thus the United Nations Security Council is on notice not to attempt any sabotage of the Baruch security program.

The Michigan Republican emphasized that he was not speaking only for himself in his review of world problems. But he is chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, and an official spokesman in this field for the new majority in Congress. Remarking that China under Chiang Kai-shek's leadership, adopted a new constitution, Senator Vandenberg said we should encourage this movement by the non-Communist forces toward representative government. This should end the State Department's outmoded Communist-coalition program.

Equally to the point was his demand that the frequently postponed Pan-American Conference, promised since 1945, be held without delay. While we have neglected our "good-neighborly contacts," he warned, the American republics have been drifting apart, and there has been a Communist upsurge.

The principal friction in the Western Hemisphere is due to the United States controversy with Argentina over that nation's alleged failure to fulfill Chapulepec pledges to purge itself of Nazi influences. Yet if the complaints against the Peron government have real basis, the situation is of concern to all the American republics. And, as Mr. Vandenberg said, the decision concerning it should be made by all of them, "not influenced or dictated by us alone." We should take the initiative in renewing "the joint New World authority which is the genius of our New World unity."

Senator Vandenberg has given General Marshall a blueprint for his guidance as Secretary of State. We think an overwhelming majority of Americans can support the sort of program it contemplates.

Congress Ready To Try Reorganization Act

It is pleasant to note that the Eightieth Congress has started on its career by confounding the cynics who predicted that the Congressional Reorganization Act passed last year would prove to be a meaningless gesture or worse. Instead of justifying prophecies that it would jettison the reforms while keeping the salary increase and retirement benefits, it has made the measure fully effective.

Both branches of Congress have organized according to the blueprint set forth in the legislation. In the House, when the question came up, the necessary resolution was adopted without debate and by voice vote. In the Senate the ratio of Republicans to Democrats on a number of important committees came under criticism from Senator Barkley, the minority leader, but there was never much doubt that the provisions of the act would be made effective.

So the expected revolt against the unquestionably drastic changes required by the law never materialized. Opponents recognized that they had no chance of scuttling the act and decided to make the best of it. Possibly they are biding their time, hoping for a favorable opportunity to attack, but that is only another way of saying that they see no opening at the moment. As a result, the experiment begins under favorable auspices.

It might fail. The act deprives individual members of some of the power and prestige they have enjoyed in the past. It could happen that in time dissatisfaction will bring about a real rebellion. But for the moment senators and representatives alike are prepared to give it a thorough trial.

Ben Franklin Will Always Stand Among Great Americans

Perhaps there could be no more significant tribute to the fame of Benjamin Franklin than the circumstances that in this year, 157 years after his death, his birthday is being celebrated throughout the country. He was born January 17, 1706.

Franklin has been described as the most versatile man that the country has produced. Printers have a claim to him, for he was a superior printer. Newspapermen believe that his great service as a patriot really sprang from an experience, when he was fifteen, with tyranny. In that year, his brother, James, a printer and editor of a newspaper, the New England Courant, was jailed for a month by the speaker of the Massachusetts Assembly for "a too liberal exercise of his critical faculties." Benjamin deeply resented this restraint on freedom of discussion. He became a crusading champion of all kinds of liberty.

His story is familiar to the American people. His discoveries in science were quickly acclaimed—especially in England—as among the most important of all time. His writings revealed an imposing literary stature. His contribution to the diffusion of learning was in itself enough to secure for him a lasting place in history.

But the country will ever honor him above all else for his success in persuading France to come into the war for liberation on the side of the colonies. Without France, the colonies might have won their freedom; with France, they were sure to win. Franklin did that—at the age of 71. He will stand always among the greatest Americans.

Pancho And Petrillo

In 1916 Pancho Villa irritated the United States enough that an expeditionary force was sent into Mexico after him. Thirty years late James Caesar Petrillo irritated Mexican musicians enough that they are threatening to block a Mexican appearance of an American symphony orchestra.

The times have changed, and bullets have been replaced by edicts, but bad boys on both sides of the border still can stir up trouble.

Ten best-dressed women recently selected will not be remembered as long as Sally Rand.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

A PLAN FOR GAINING WEIGHT

MOST of us try to maintain an ideal weight altho slight variations are not uncommon. But marked deviations may call for medical care. The physician is likely to be concerned about obesity as the condition is a forerunner of many chronic ailments.

Yet the thin person frequently presents a greater problem and the answer may be more than a matter of additional calories. On the other hand, many lifelong "greyhounds" are hale and hearty and no more susceptible to infection than any one else. In such persons heredity is a factor and the appetite is usually good.

A loss of poundage is customary among individuals recuperating from acute or prolonged illness. In these circumstances the condition is hazardous, for reserve is low and they are subject to colds and other respiratory diseases. There is another type who suffers from poor appetite and constantly below par and nervous. As a rule, he is vivacious, and extremely emotional; works hard but eats less in proportion to his expenditure of energy. No organic disease is present and a long life is in the offing.

Some are classified as neurasthenics and exhibit overactivity of the stomach and intestines altho the metabolism rate is often low. Unless they can be toned down from the inside, the prospects of adding avoirdupois are slim.

In general, by stimulating appetite, more food will be consumed. No less than three meals daily are required and each should be ingested in peaceful surroundings without being harassed by annoying questions, bickering, or loud noises. Meals should be attractive and tempting, and the eater must not leave the table until he has finished. This is a far cry from grabbing a cup of coffee and a sandwich and running off to work or a date.

Moderate out of door exercise is helpful and walking, swimming, bowling, light gymnastics, or massage are advocated. Furthermore, such procedures lead to muscular development and body strength. Care should be taken, however, not to overindulge as strenuous exertion will burn up too many calories and few will be stored. Nine to 10 hours of sleep should be the rule. To start the ball rolling, a sedative may be prescribed for the first week or two. If the colon is spastic, roughage must be eliminated.

Nevertheless, the much needed pounds must still be obtained thru eating. One-sided menus are taboo and the regimen should include a variety and quantity as well as quality. Some require a formal diet containing a large number of calories; others will be successful by doubling their former intake. Under this plan a month or more may pass before an increase is noted. By going at it in a leisurely fashion, the subject does not have to force himself. At the end of the year he should be in good flesh.

(Send a stamped self-addressed envelope for gain in weight diet.)

IMPROBABLE

Mrs. E. B. writes: My husband suffers from dizziness and head noises. Could this result from tweezing the hair on his face?

REPLY

Tweezing and the symptoms mentioned are about as compatible as oil and water or pickles and whipped cream. He should consult a physician to discover whether his manifestations are amenable to treatment.

HAIR REMOVAL

F. J. writes: How many electrolysis treatments are necessary to clear the face?

REPLY

This depends upon the amount of hair that is to be removed. Bristles on the lips usually call for five to 10 weekly treatments; chin involvement, 10 to 15. The texture of the hair and the fine sensitivity of the skin must also be taken into consideration.

FALLEN-ORGANS

R. J. writes: Would one dropped kidney drag the other one down?

REPLY

No. They are held up by independent structures. On the other hand, "falling" of the organs occurs frequently in thin individuals because there is an insufficient amount of fat to hold them up. If one drops, therefore, it is likely that the other may follow suit.

ACROPHOBIA

E. J. writes: Is fear of height due to a physical or mental disturbance?

REPLY

If the condition represents a true phobia, the origin is mental. Now and then an individual develops dizziness as a result of some physical ailment and is afraid to ascend a ladder or look down from a tall building.

HEMORRHOIDS

R. C. writes: As a rule, is more than one hemorrhoid present in piles?

REPLY

Yes. There are three groups of hemorrhoidal veins, each connecting with a number of smaller blood vessels. Naturally, whatever disturbs one will affect all. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on hemorrhoids.

UNLIKELY

D. S. writes: Could gas cause pain in the arms and legs?

REPLY

Hardly, unless the distention is so great as to cause pressure on the diaphram. In these circumstances, distress may be felt in the shoulders and arms.

PROMIZOLE

J. W. writes: What are the relative values of promin and promizole in the treatment of leprosy?

REPLY

Promin, so far, has proved too dangerous for continuous administration. Promizole, a newer compound, has been used in a few cases and apparently is tolerated better. Both drugs are still in the experimental stage.

CIO Attitude May Stiffen Congress On Labor Actions

By MARK SULLIVAN

During the second week of the new Congress, that body, through its leaders and committees, was examining and comparing the many labor bills that have been introduced. The spirit in which this was being done was one of not favoring such proposals as seemed extreme or impracticable. The atmosphere, as expressed in words frequently used, was that the legislation should not be "punitive" or unnecessarily "repressive." The determination to write new labor legislation was firm, but equally firm was the determination that it be reasonable and carefully thought out.

To this atmosphere a contribution of a sort, was made by CIO on January 10. It came in the form of a letter addressed to every member of Congress by CIO President Philip Murray, accompanied by a pamphlet entitled "The Drive Against Labor." These, with the current copy of the official CIO News, reflect the spirit of CIO.

The pamphlet "The Drive Against Labor" opens with an introduction by Mr. Murray. Within the space of slightly over a page occur these phrases: "Handful of bankers . . . monopoly interests . . . legislation to destroy American unionism . . . tactics of tyranny . . . wilful distortion . . . calumnies and falsehoods . . . tissue of fabrications . . . false issues . . . attack of reaction."

Oppose Any Labor Legislation

The attitude of CIO, inferable from these and other evidence seems one of opposition to any labor legislation whatever. Certainly the impression is created that the CIO part of labor is not prepared for any objective or dispassionate discussion of the pending legislation. Of those who propose legislation, CIO says, "they conceal their intent in meaningless and misleading slogans." Disapproval of slogans, coming from CIO, may at least contribute the solvent of ironic humor to a contentious atmosphere.

CIO's "The Drive Against Labor," in the words of Mr. Murray," covers the types of legislative restrictions proposed." Among these, CIO strongly condemns measures which aim toward a "cooling off" period before a strike.

This is the very type of legislation that most reflects the spirit and intent of Congress. No proposal to forbid all strikes utterly has any serious standing in Congress. But the aim of seeing that strikes take place in an atmosphere of reason, removed from emotion, is practically universal in Congress. It is reflected in measure after measure which look to setting up processes of negotiation and conciliation that tend toward postponement and the cooling off of emotions.

Wants No Cooling Off

But CIO wants no cooling off, and the reasons it gives are illuminating. CIO says that "the power of the union to organize and conduct a strike . . . depends in large measure on the morale and organizational spirit" among the union members. "That morale and organizational spirit is not a thing of the moment; it is not something that can be built up and turned on or off overnight simply at the beck and call of the leaders of the union"; it requires "detailed preparation"; the union must be able "to time its strike action properly and effectively."

One infers that CIO regards the creation of the right emotion as an essential part of the strike strategy.

Similarly, one of the most prevailing aims in Congress is to prevent industry-wide strikes which injure the public welfare such as the recent coal strike or last spring's railroad strike. And similarly CIO resists a preventive proposed by Senator Ball of Minnesota. CIO says, "a prohibition of industry-wide negotiations would destroy the economic pressure which makes possible the uniform settlements."

Nothing in what CIO says suggests that it looks upon nation-wide strikes in any other light than as a help to its strategy.

From the whole of CIO's attitude one would infer that it does not consider that anything happened in the November election. Congress thinks something did happen. And the manner in which Congress carries out the mandate of the election is likely to be stiffened by CIO's present spirit.

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Sec. Byrnes Employed Unique Strategy In Winning Russia To Friendlier Terms; Byrnes' Patience Gradually Broke Down Molotov; How Byrnes Outsmarts Yugoslavs

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—When the history of post-war peace is finally written, one of the most important chapters will deal with the sudden improvement of American-Russian relations in the late fall of 1946.

And with the resignation of the one man who sat all through those negotiations, it is now possible to reveal some of the gripping, day-to-day drama by which Jimmie Byrnes, almost single-handed, accomplished this improvement.

All during the sessions of the Paris Peace Conference, Molotov was nasty. He was deliberately, consistently, almost unbearably nasty. This writer, who watched part of the Paris Peace Conference, marveled at the way Jimmie Byrnes smiled back at the goading of the Soviet Foreign Minister.

Byrnes, however, surmised what probably was true; namely, that Molotov was acting under instructions from Moscow—instructions to make the peace negotiations as difficult as possible.

Despite Molotov's pin-pricking, however, he and Byrnes continued the social amenities, and once every week or so they dined together—a very small dinner attended only by their two interpreters, Pavlov and Chip Bohlen, and their two chief advisers, Ben Cohen and Vice Commissar Vishinsky.

Nasty as Molotov was during the early days of the Conference, his nastiness increased toward the end. Finally as Byrnes gave his last dinner to Molotov and it was the latter's turn to return the invitation, the usually punctilious Molotov did not do so. This Byrnes interpreted as a sign that things were getting even worse.

The Last Dinner

Finally, Molotov proposed that all negotiations be terminated by the next night, and simultaneously invited Byrnes to dinner on the closing night—a clear indication that he didn't want to expose himself to Byrnes' contagious charm before staging his last burst of temperament at the wind-up of the Paris Conference.

The last session closed at 9:30 so Byrnes and Molotov did not sit down to dinner until 10 p. m. And as the two tired statesmen relaxed over their brandy, Byrnes said to the man who had so bitterly opposed him:

"Why didn't you tell me at the start there were certain things you couldn't discuss? It's obvious that you have instructions not to discuss certain points. Why didn't you tell me so? Instead, you have called us names, wasted a lot of time and got everybody mad. If you had told us that you couldn't discuss certain things, we wouldn't have bothered you."

"That's a good idea," replied Molotov, still unbending.

But later, as the Russian mellowed a bit more, Byrnes approached him again.

What Moscow Really Wants

"What is it that Russia really wants?" he asked. "Behind all this argument and conversation, what are you really driving at?"

"Ten billion dollars reparations from Germany," Molotov shot back.

"But you know you can't get it."

"But it was agreed to at Yalta," argued Molotov.

"No, it was agreed at Yalta that Russia's claim would be a point for discussion," countered Byrnes. "President Roosevelt made that very clear. And later, at Potsdam, we wasted a lot of time debating that and Truman and Stalin finally agreed this was to be only a point for discussion."

The Secretary of State then asked Molotov what other backstage motive lurked behind Russia's disagreeable tactics at the Paris Conference.

"What else do you want?" he inquired.

"The Ruhr," replied Molotov. Again Byrnes said no.

It was on this very sour and negative note that the Paris Conference closed. Neither side had budged an inch and behind the Soviet policy of studied insults, it was obvious they were aiming at important economic goals.

It was in this same atmosphere that the Big Four conference talks first began in New York. Only significant development between Paris and New York was Molotov's quick trip back to Moscow, where it was reported he got fresh instructions from the Politburo. What these instructions were nobody definitely knows, though it was believed the friendly advice Molotov received from Byrnes during their dinner in Paris may have been relayed back to Moscow and sunk home.

Yugoslavs Outbluffed

Though more agreeable, the Russians yielded on nothing basic, and the climax of the New York talks came when Yugoslav Vice Premier Kardelj quit the Conference altogether. Yugoslavia would not yield on Trieste, Kardelj said, and walked out.

Since Trieste was the heart of the entire Italian treaty, this looked like the end. Next day, however, Yugoslav delegate Kardelj came to see Byrnes and suggested a compromise. Byrnes listened carefully but found that the compromise was all in Yugoslavia's favor. He replied that it was unacceptable.

"Don't you want a treaty?" asked the puzzled Yugoslav.

"No," replied the Secretary of State. "We have given up all thought of a treaty. You walked out on us yesterday, and since then we have given up any idea of signing a treaty.

"We have talked it over with the Italians," Byrnes continued, "and they are quite agreeable to waiting until next year. Next year they say they'll be stronger and will be able to take care of the situation by themselves.

"We're going to leave our troops in Trieste, of course," Byrnes informed the now pop-eyed and bewildered Yugoslav. "You won't have to worry about policing the city. We'll take care of that.

"No," concluded the Secretary of State. "We've simply decided that there are too many headaches in getting a peace treaty, so we just won't worry about it any more."

The Yugoslav delegate looked very crestfallen. Jimmie Byrnes' trump diplomatic card was beginning to work.

(Ed. note—Another column on Secretary Byrnes' strategy in improving Russian relations will follow shortly.)

Capital Chaff

Several Democratic Senators met with Senator Murray of Montana last week to draft a moderate labor law curbing jurisdictional strikes and secondary boycotts but otherwise not cracking down on labor.... The Soviet Politburo has approved a new Argentine-Russian economic treaty .... Harold Smith, former Director of the Budget, may replace Jack Hutson as Assistant Secretary General of the United Nations .... The Polish Government will formally request the Moscow Conference that the German peace treaty be signed in Poland. It was Hitler's invasion of Poland that started the war, and they want the end of the war to be commemorated in Poland.

Rank And File Of Workers Held To Favor Restrictive Labor Measures

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15. — An amazing parallel is being revealed in the labor problems of Great Britain and the United States.

For nearly twenty years — from 1927 to 1946—the people of Great Britain were protected against the "general strike" menace, but when the Labor Government came into power the statute was promptly repealed. There was no crisis in 1946, and the Labor Government spokesman said they resented the presence of the law on the statute books. They forgot that, in 1926, a general strike had paralyzed the economic life of Great Britain and that Labor Governments were unpopular from that time on. In fact, the Labor Government of Clement Attlee came into office after a long lapse and won on a negative wave as a protest against the wartime controls of the Churchill government and its failure to make the social transitions from war to peace necessary to placate a post-war electorate.

Now Faced With Crisis

Today the British Labor Government is face to face with crisis after crisis. The use of troops to move food by truck is a drastic measure which no labor government would apply except in case of dire necessity. It may be that the so-called "Trades Disputes Act" will have to be re-enacted. Certainly during the two decades it was law in England, there was no serious labor disturbance that threatened the life of the country. Sympathy strikes were illegal. In this statute it was declared:

"(A) that any strike is illegal if it (1) has any object other than or in addition to the furtherance of a trade dispute within the trade or industry in which the strikers are engaged; and (2) is a strike designed or calculated to coerce the government either directly or by inflicting hardship upon the community."

There was a similar provision with respect to lockouts by employers, and also a provision saying, "it is further declared that it is illegal to commence, or continue, or to apply any sums in furtherance or support of, any such illegal strike or lockout."

One provision fixed a penalty of fines and imprisonment for any person who "declares, instigates, incites others to take part or otherwise acts in furtherance of a strike or lockout, declared by this act to be illegal." But it was also stipulated that "no person shall be deemed to have committed an offense under this section or at common law by reason of his having ceased work or refused to continue to work or accept employment."

Other provisions outlawed "intimidation," especially by picketing, and the financial liability of unions for wrongful acts of their officers was declared in connection with violations of the trades disputes act.

British-U. S. Parallel Plans

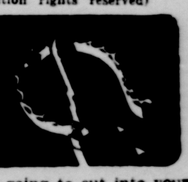

The parallel between the British legislation, now repealed, and the efforts of American legislators to outlaw sympathetic strikes and secondary boycotts is plain. But the most significant analogy is with respect to the powers given the British government itself, which apparently were to be exercised primarily against strikes that threatened the economic life of the community. In America, the controversy with the United Mine Workers concerned the power of the federal government to issue an injunction against the coal stoppage which occurred when the mines were in the government's hands.

In both the United States and Great Britain — the two biggest democracies of the world—the tolerance by the public as a whole of special groups with vote-getting potentiality has led to a situation in which, in the absence of statutes, there emerges a usurpation of economic power in defiance of the people's interest.

Much as the vote-conscious administrations in both Britain and the United States may dislike it, the pendulum is swinging toward restrictive legislation which the rank and file of workers themselves wish to see adopted as a means of bringing order out of economic chaos. The theory that strikes injure only the employers is being proved fallacious by the devastating nature of the strikes that are occurring in both Britain and the United States as a result of unrestrained acts by labor union leaders.

The first man who rocked me with a deep-down impression of greatness was my old boss, Bernard M. Baruch. I used to write shorthand for him and fetch him his chocolate sodas when he was chairman of the War Industries Board in 1917. After 30 years, he's still a hero to his valet.

But it was a quarter of a century after I met Mr. Baruch before I heard the little bell ring again. I'd like to tell you about that second tinkle.

I heard it on August 15, 1943. I had gone to Washington for Mr. Baruch's birthday party at the Carlton Hotel. I was down in the empty ballroom, fussing with potted palms, and telling the orchestra leader when to play "Happy Birthday," when the big double doors opened and an Army officer and his wife came in.

The couple looked around the empty room uncertainly. Evidently they had goten their signals crossed. It was about six o'clock— the party wasn't due to start till seven. As they were about to leave, I went over and introduced myself. I told the officer Mr. Baruch was upstairs and that I would phone him.

"Don't disturb him," said the officer. "He's probably busy. We'll wait."

I hunted up a waiter and ordered some drinks. "You're in show business, aren't you?" the officer said. "You people are doing a good job entertaining the troops."

For the next hour I told him how I thought we could do a better job. I sounded off on some pet theories I had about overseas entertainment. The U.S.O. and Red Cross couldn't do the whole job, I told him. I outlined a plan for organizing self-entertainment for soldiers in remote posts and in rest areas behind the lines.

The officer listened good. In fact, he listened better than anyone I had ever talked to. He asked some questions, and he asked them like a pro. More than any Army officer I had met, he savvied how important a little fun was to the kids in O.D.'s. We talked about 16-mm. movies, truck shows, juke boxes. He kept discussing the problem in terms of the buck private. The way he talked about little guys gave me the feeling he was a very special sort of fellow.

It got to be seven. Guests were beginning to arrive. "I'd like to talk to you some more about this," he said. "Could you see me tomorrow at eight-thirty?"

"Isn't that going to cut into your dinner hour?" I asked.

"I mean eight thirty in the morning," he smiled.

By waiting up for the appointment, I got to his office promptly, and was just as promptly sent in to see him. He was sitting behind the cleanest desk I had ever seen outside a furniture store. He was relaxed and easy. There was no hollering over intercommunication systems, no pressing of buttons. We talked quietly for half an hour. Again I sensed the big-heart line, the big concern for the little man.

There was nothing extraordinary about this clean-shaven man with the blue eyes—and yet there was. He was generating a kind of light and heat I had only felt once before. It had to do with goodness, selflessness, and what for the want of a better word I've called godliness.

He finished the interview by asking me to put my plan on paper and send it to him.

As I got up to leave, he said, "How does the war look to you?"

I laughed, and so would you, had you been asked that question by General George Catlett Marshall, Chief of Staff of the United States Army.

I'm awfully glad he's our new Secretary of State.

Today's Talk

Down the Street—In and Out

I have watched him with his uniform cap, pushed to the back of his head, in the big office, where selecting and assortment of mail goes on. And I have watched him, with his big bag hung over his shoulder, and looked upon him, as he went down the street—delivering his route of mail. A segment of the Government on duty!

Down the street, in and out, up stairs, elevators, and down again. That strap pulling upon the shoulder. Year in and Year out—in sunshine, rain, storm—no matter—faithfully he performs. The Government can't get tired.

Sometimes it's on a bicycle, sometimes in a wagon, but mostly it's on foot—tread, tread, hour after hour. "Is the mail in?" "Did I get a letter?" "Has the Postman been here yet?" "I don't see why I don't get that letter." "I'm sorry, ma'am, perhaps I'll have one for you tomorrow." Up the street, in and out, short-cuts, across lots, through crowds, into buildings, banks, grocery stores, little cottages, big offices, meeting the trains, hurrying from the air fields—the Government at work—the mail must be delivered.

Is he down-in-the-mouth, is he grumpy, discourteous, or full of complaints? Not he, not the mail-man. He is pleasant, kindly, and happy, when people smile at getting their mail, and he hopes it is always pleasant news, and good news. He's on Governmental business, and the Government is good, he thinks, but he wishes it would pay him better—and oftener, raises for his faithful service. And so do everyone else of us.

Dow nthe street, across the road, in the rain, through the snow, under the heat, there he comes—the pack is heavy, but he doesn't complain. It's his job, and he's a Government man, doing his duty, delivering letters, packages, and good will. Doors open. He gets a smile. People like his calls. They bless him. They wish they were his employer. They are his empoyer, but he never senses it, nor hardly do they who gain his services.

In and out, day by day, in storm, stress, war, peace, as people are born and as people die, through it all, the people's friend, from door to door, from office to office, up and down, again and again—delivering the mail—he, a human instrument of the Government, but what an important one! Bless him forever—he who delivers the mail!

Vera Blinn Society Marks Union Of Two Churches

The Vera Blinn Society of World Service held its first meeting since the union of the Evangelical Church and the United Brethren Church, Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. H. L. Nesbitt, Arnett terrace. The program featured a resume of both organizations and a playlet on the union.

Mrs. John Cook giving the history of the former United Brethren Church stressed the definite evidence of the missionary spirit in the early United Brethren congregation. She pointed out that in 1853 the Home, Frontier and Foreign Mission Societies were formed and the following year a missionary was sent to Africa, and the next year, three, including one of pure African descent, sent from the Negro United Brethren Church, Dayton, O. In 1877 the first woman missionary went to Africa.

Stresses Home Missions

When the home missions reached the Pacific coast, interest in the Chinese began and in 1889 two missionaries left for Hong Kong. In the meantime the Parent Board started work in Japan and later in Puerto Rico and Santo Domingo. The Woman's Missionary Association marked its silver anniversary by establishing a new mission in the Philippines. While evangelism through church life was the conspicuous element of the work, educational work through schools and the printing press and medical work through hospital and doctors were powerful agents in the work.

With the merger of the Parent Board and Women's Missionary Association in 1909, the women helped to plan for the total mission program of the denomination. A special program was started among the Spanish Americans in New Mexico in 1912 and followed by mission work in Kentucky and Tampa, Fla.

Outlines Evangelical Work

Mrs. Nina Barnett giving the history of the former Evangelical Church reported the Missionary Society of the denomination was organized in 1838 and efforts were first directed to extending the borders of the church, and soon missionaries were sent to overseas fields.

The Woman's Missionary Society was organized in 1884. Its work included thank offering, stewardship, self-denial, and Day of Prayer. Children's work, begun in 1885 and young people's work in 1889 have grown steadily. The Woman's Missionary Society functioned as a Woman's Board from its beginning in 1930 and at the quadrennial convention action was taken to merge the Women's Board and Board of General Missionary Society, becoming a Woman's department of the General Board of Missions.

Mission fields include 24 home field conference missions; Italian missions in America; and missions in Kentucky. Overseas missions include work in Japan, China and Africa as well as in Europe, which began in Germany and Switzerland and extended to Alsace, Poland and Latvia. However she pointed out since World War II both these fields are under Russian rule, so no word has been received regarding the work or workers.

The playlet, "Our Union a Symbol," was given by Mrs. C. W. Bloss, Mrs. Edward Shaffer and Mrs. Cook. The program, "Partners in a World Mission," was led by Mrs. R. C. Isiminger. The Scripture reading was given by Mrs. H. C. Trenton, and prayers were offered by Mrs. Barnett, Mrs. Edward Shaffer and Mrs. Nesbitt. Mrs. H. J. Rolly was vocalist.

Plan Meetings

At the business session plans were formulated to continue the Red Cross sewing, and the group will meet at the home of Mrs. Cook, Bowling Green, January 29; the Stewardship study class, under the leadership of Mrs. Harold Everline, will meet February 6, at Mrs. Cook's home, beginning with a covered dish supper at 6. Each member will bring a covered dish. Mrs. Harold Bishop and Mrs. Oliver Marton are in charge. The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Edward Shaffer, McMullen highway.

Mrs. John Nine and Mrs. Lester Brotemarkle were co-hostesses with Mrs. Nesbitt. Twenty-one members attended.

Vera Blinn Society Marks Union Of Two Churches

The Vera Blinn Society of World Service held its first meeting since the union of the Evangelical Church and the United Brethren Church, Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. H. L. Nesbitt, Arnett terrace. The program featured a resume of both organizations and a playlet on the union.

Mrs. John Cook giving the history of the former United Brethren Church stressed the definite evidence of the missionary spirit in the early United Brethren congregation. She pointed out that in 1853 the Home, Frontier and Foreign Mission Societies were formed and the following year a missionary was sent to Africa, and the next year, three, including one of pure African descent, sent from the Negro United Brethren Church, Dayton, O. In 1877 the first woman missionary went to Africa.

Stresses Home Missions

When the home missions reached the Pacific coast, interest in the Chinese began and in 1889 two missionaries left for Hong Kong. In the meantime the Parent Board started work in Japan and later in Puerto Rico and Santo Domingo. The Woman's Missionary Association marked its silver anniversary by establishing a new mission in the Philippines. While evangelism through church life was the conspicuous element of the work, educational work through schools and the printing press and medical work through hospital and doctors were powerful agents in the work.

With the merger of the Parent Board and Women's Missionary Association in 1909, the women helped to plan for the total mission program of the denomination. A special program was started among the Spanish Americans in New Mexico in 1912 and followed by mission work in Kentucky and Tampa, Fla.

Outlines Evangelical Work

Mrs. Nina Barnett giving the history of the former Evangelical Church reported the Missionary Society of the denomination was organized in 1838 and efforts were first directed to extending the borders of the church, and soon missionaries were sent to overseas fields.

The Woman's Missionary Society was organized in 1884. Its work included thank offering, stewardship, self-denial, and Day of Prayer. Children's work, begun in 1885 and young people's work in 1889 have grown steadily. The Woman's Missionary Society functioned as a Woman's Board from its beginning in 1930 and at the quadrennial convention action was taken to merge the Women's Board and Board of General Missionary Society, becoming a Woman's department of the General Board of Missions.

Mission fields include 24 home field conference missions; Italian missions in America; and missions in Kentucky. Overseas missions include work in Japan, China and Africa as well as in Europe, which began in Germany and Switzerland and extended to Alsace, Poland and Latvia. However she pointed out since World War II both these fields are under Russian rule, so no word has been received regarding the work or workers.

The playlet, "Our Union a Symbol," was given by Mrs. C. W. Bloss, Mrs. Edward Shaffer and Mrs. Cook. The program, "Partners in a World Mission," was led by Mrs. R. C. Isiminger. The Scripture reading was given by Mrs. H. C. Trenton, and prayers were offered by Mrs. Barnett, Mrs. Edward Shaffer and Mrs. Nesbitt. Mrs. H. J. Rolly was vocalist.

Plan Meetings

At the business session plans were formulated to continue the Red Cross sewing, and the group will meet at the home of Mrs. Cook, Bowling Green, January 29; the Stewardship study class, under the leadership of Mrs. Harold Everline, will meet February 6, at Mrs. Cook's home, beginning with a covered dish supper at 6. Each member will bring a covered dish. Mrs. Harold Bishop and Mrs. Oliver Marton are in charge. The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Edward Shaffer, McMullen highway.

Mrs. John Nine and Mrs. Lester Brotemarkle were co-hostesses with Mrs. Nesbitt. Twenty-one members attended.

Navy College Exam Set For Saturday

Forty-six senior students from tri-state area high schools will take the first Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps and naval aviation college program examinations given in Western Maryland, this Saturday at Allegany High School.

The examinatons are being given by the College Entrance Examination Board which was asked to take over the tests by the Navy. Three cities in Maryland were selected to give the tests on January 18. They are Cumberland, Baltimore and Hagerstown. Allegany High School was selected to give the exam here, and Principal Ralph R. Webster will be in charge with one teacher assisting him.

Webster said that while the board does not furnish the names of the applicants he was given the number and was also informed that some of them are coming from a considerable distance for the tests.

Applicants had to have their formal applications in by December 15 and no student can take the examination who did not submit a formal application by that date, Webster said. However, students who did make application on schedule but who have not as yet received tickets admitting them to the examination room may pick them up at the school, Webster said. All applicants must be between the ages of 17 and 21 with the exception of veterans. Any veteran with advanced standing in college, who is not yet 25, may take the exam.

Winners in the examination will receive college educations at schools designated by the Navy and will be eligible for commissions in the Navy and the Marine Corps.

Widespread Outbreak Of Measles "Possible"

Following reports of several hundred cases of measles in Cumberland during the past few weeks, Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, city and county health officer, said yesterday that a widespread outbreak is possible.

A check with public school officials showed that absenteeism since classes resumed after the holidays had been larger than usual. Parochial school officials report the same trend. Public health nurses reported that the rate of measles is much higher than in the past five years, and Dr. Franklin explained that the disease usually shows a resurgence about every five or six years.

Because of the danger of complications, Dr. Franklin said that a child who has measles should be isolated to prevent the spread of the disease to other children, and put in a darkened room to protect the eyes. A physician should be called, and the Health Department must be notified as required by law.

Robert E. Haines, Vanderlip, W. Va., a veteran of the invasions of Southern France and Anzio, enlisted in the Regular Navy for four years as a seaman first class. His ship shot down two Italian planes during the Anzio and French invasions.

Approximately 2,000 letters have been sent to high school boys 17 to 18½ years of age in Allegany and Garrett counties, and in West Virginia counties of Hardy, Mineral, Grant and Hampshire, Chief Schrader said.

The letters explain the advantages of enlisting in the Naval Reserve for inactive duty, and state that non-veterans between 17 and 18½ are eligible for enlistment.

PE Is Considering Bus Transfer Plan

"A number of obstacles to any early action" were cited yesterday by Henry W. Price, district manager of the Potomac Edison Company, in commenting on requests that have been made of the PE firm for transfer privileges between buses the company operates in its city lines and those operating to and from the Celanese plant.

Price declared that the matter is being studied and investigated from every angle, but pointed out that such an investigation will be necessarily somewhat tedious and lengthy.

The most recent request comes from Celanese staff workers who leave the plant at 5 p. m. They point out that at regular shift change time PE buses run from the plant directly to various parts of the city and feel if such service is not provided them they should be allowed to transfer to city buses.

Price said that Celanese plan service is one which was formerly part of the L. & A. Bus Company and that the changing of ownership did not alter the conditions which prevented the use of transfer privileges. The fares for the local runs and those to Cresaptown which includes the Celanese plant are different due to the types of service, a fact which presents considerable difficulty from the transfer standpoint, the manager explained.

Even greater complications are involved because of the similar conditions in connection with the service to Ridgeley. Price said that the company could hardly, in all fairness to its patrons, grant transfer privileges on one line without permitting the same arrangement on the other. However, the granting of tfansfers to and from the Ridgeley line would put the whole city bus system in interstate business, introducing new rules and regulations involving added restrictions and quite probably requir consideration of a request for a general fare increase.

Price expressed the opinion that the company was far from justified in taking any course which might have such an effect on all riders for the possible benefit to a relatively small number. However, he did state that the company is continuously studying its transportation operation, and as a result of past studies, which included suggestions from the public, the transportation service along the Cresaptown routes has been practically doubled in the two years since the company took over the operation. This includes not only more buses at peak times, but a considerable increase in the original schedules.

Local Policemen March To School

Officers of the City Police Department marched from headquarters to city hall yesterday morning to attend the first of a series of classes being conducted by FBI agents, after a "must" order was issued by Police Commissioner William V. Keegan.

In a letter to the department, Commissioner Keegan emphasized that "all members of the force will attend school," and added that Assistant Chief of Police John J. Treiber would submit a special report showing attendance.

"The budget appropriation for the current fiscal year" Keegan stated, "will not permit payment of wages to officers for attending the school." However, he pointed out that officers not showing up at the sessions would be deemed "insufficiently interested in learning or performing their duties."

Detective Lt. R. Emmet Flynn and Detective Edwin R. Lilya, of the local force, will have charge of the class on traffic control today. Both are graduates of the FBI school.

Firm Withdraws ICC Application

An application of the Steinla Motor and Transportation Company to extend its field of operations to Ohio, West Virginia, Virginia, Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Delaware and the District of Columbia in hauling steel shafts and fittings has been withdrawn by the transportation firm, according to Interstate Commerce Commission officials.

A hearing on the application had been scheduled yesterday, but prior to the opening of the case before an examiner of the ICC a telegram arrived stating that the Steinla firm had withdrawn its application. The petitioning firm would have had to prove "necessity and convenience" in order to obtain a permit for such operations, an ICC official said.

Three railroads, the B. and O., Western Maryland and Pennsylvania, and the Cumberland Motor Express Company planned to oppose the granting of the permit.

Walter C. Capper was retained by the railroads while Frederick A. Puderbaugh was counsel for the latter firm.

Edna Hartsock Files Suit For $1,000 Damage

Edna Hartsock, by her mother, filed suit yesterday in Circuit Court against Joseph C. Stewart, for $1,000 damage charging that she was permanently injured and disfigured because of his negligence in an automobile accident last November near Fort Ashby.

The bill of complaint states that Stewart invited Miss Hartsock to take a ride with him from Cumberland to West Virginia. The girl accepted the ride and contends Stewart drove recklessly without his lights on, and that as a result his car plunged off the road and over a steep embankment on Route 28, five miles north of Fort Ashby.

Navy College Exam Set For Saturday

Forty-six senior students from tri-state area high schools will take the first Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps and naval aviation college program examinations given in Western Maryland, this Saturday at Allegany High School.

The examinatons are being given by the College Entrance Examination Board which was asked to take over the tests by the Navy. Three cities in Maryland were selected to give the tests on January 18. They are Cumberland, Baltimore and Hagerstown. Allegany High School was selected to give the exam here, and Principal Ralph R. Webster will be in charge with one teacher assisting him.

Webster said that while the board does not furnish the names of the applicants he was given the number and was also informed that some of them are coming from a considerable distance for the tests.

Applicants had to have their formal applications in by December 15 and no student can take the examination who did not submit a formal application by that date, Webster said. However, students who did make application on schedule but who have not as yet received tickets admitting them to the examination room may pick them up at the school, Webster said. All applicants must be between the ages of 17 and 21 with the exception of veterans. Any veteran with advanced standing in college, who is not yet 25, may take the exam.

Winners in the examination will receive college educations at schools designated by the Navy and will be eligible for commissions in the Navy and the Marine Corps.

Widespread Outbreak Of Measles "Possible"

Following reports of several hundred cases of measles in Cumberland during the past few weeks, Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, city and county health officer, said yesterday that a widespread outbreak is possible.

A check with public school officials showed that absenteeism since classes resumed after the holidays had been larger than usual. Parochial school officials report the same trend. Public health nurses reported that the rate of measles is much higher than in the past five years, and Dr. Franklin explained that the disease usually shows a resurgence about every five or six years.

Because of the danger of complications, Dr. Franklin said that a child who has measles should be isolated to prevent the spread of the disease to other children, and put in a darkened room to protect the eyes. A physician should be called, and the Health Department must be notified as required by law.

Area Men Re-enlist In Naval Reserve

Several re-enlistments in the Naval Reserve V-6 Inactive are reported by Chief Torpedoman Edgar L. Schrader of the local Navy recruiting station.

James Howard Mitchell, Route 3, Bedford road, re-enlisted for four years as seaman first class. His previous 30 months of naval service included duty in the Philippines.

Others are John Burton Robinson, Jr., 211 South Spruce street, a veteran of 18 months' prior service, who re-enlisted as seaman first class; and John Melvin McMillan, Beechwood street, Lonaconing, who reenlisted as ship's cook second class.

Robert E. Haines, Vanderlip, W. Va., a veteran of the invasions of Southern France and Anzio, enlisted in the Regular Navy for four years as a seaman first class. His ship shot down two Italian planes during the Anzio and French invasions.

Approximately 2,000 letters have been sent, to high school boys 17 to 18½ years of age in Allegany and Garrett counties, and in West Virginia counties of Hardy, Mineral, Grant and Hampshire, Chief Schrader said.

The letters explain the advantages of enlisting in the Naval Reserve for inactive duty, and state that non-veterans between 17 and 18½ are eligible for enlistment.

PE Is Considering Bus Transfer Plan

"A number of obstacles to any early action" were cited yesterday by Henry W. Price, district manager of the Potomac Edison Company, in commenting on requests that have been made of the PE firm for transfer privileges between buses the company operates in its city lines and those operating to and from the Celanese plant.

Price declared that the matter is being studied and investigated from every angle, but pointed out that such an investigation will be necessarily somewhat tedious and lengthy.

The most recent request comes from Celanese staff workers who leave the plant at 5 p. m. They point out that at regular shift change time PE buses run from the plant directly to various parts of the city and feel if such service is not provided them they should be allowed to transfer to city buses.

Price said that Celanese plan service is one which was formerly part of the L. & A. Bus Company and that the changing of ownership did not alter the conditions which prevented the use of transfer privileges. The fares for the local runs and those to Cresaptown which includes the Celanese plant are different due to the types of service, a fact which presents considerable difficulty from the transfer standpoint, the manager explained.

Even greater complications are involved because of the similar conditions in connection with the service to Ridgeley. Price said that the company could hardly, in all fairness to its patrons, grant transfer privileges on one line without permitting the same arrangement on the other. However, the granting of tfansfers to and from the Ridgeley line would put the whole city bus system in interstate business, introducing new rules and regulations involving added restrictions and quite probably requir consideration of a request for a general fare increase.

Price expressed the opinion that the company was far from justified in taking any course which might have such an effect on all riders for the possible benefit to a relatively small number. However, he did state that the company is continuously studying its transportation operation, and as a result of past studies, which included suggestions from the public, the transportation service along the Cresaptown routes has been practically doubled in the two years since the company took over the operation. This includes not only more buses at peak times, but a considerable increase in the original schedules.

Local Policemen March To School

Officers of the City Police Department marched from headquarters to city hall yesterday morning to attend the first of a series of classes being conducted by FBI agents, after a "must" order was issued by Police Commissioner William V. Keegan.

In a letter to the department, Commissioner Keegan emphasized that "all members of the force will attend school," and added that Assistant Chief of Police John J. Treiber would submit a special report showing attendance.

"The budget appropriation for the current fiscal year" Keegan stated, "will not permit payment of wages to officers for attending the school." However, he pointed out that officers not showing up at the sessions would be deemed "insufficiently interested in learning or performing their duties."

Detective Lt. R. Emmet Flynn and Detective Edwin R. Lilya, of the local force, will have charge of the class on traffic control today. Both are graduates of the FBI school.

Firm Withdraws ICC Application

An application of the Steinla Motor and Transportation Company to extend its field of operations to Ohio, West Virginia, Virginia, Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Delaware and the District of Columbia in hauling steel shafts and fittings has been withdrawn by the transportation firm, according to Interstate Commerce Commission officials.

A hearing on the application had been scheduled yesterday, but prior to the opening of the case before an examiner of the ICC a telegram arrived stating that the Steinla firm had withdrawn its application. The petitioning firm would have had to prove "necessity and convenience" in order to obtain a permit for such operations, an ICC official said.

Three railroads, the B. and O., Western Maryland and Pennsylvania, and the Cumberland Motor Express Company planned to oppose the granting of the permit.

Walter C. Capper was retained by the railroads while Frederick A. Puderbaugh was counsel for the latter firm.

Edna Hartsock Files Suit For $1,000 Damage

Edna Hartsock, by her mother, filed suit yesterday in Circuit Court against Joseph C. Stewart, for $1,000 damage charging that she was permanently injured and disfigured because of his negligence in an automobile accident last November near Fort Ashby.

The bill of complaint states that Stewart invited Miss Hartsock to take a ride with him from Cumberland to West Virginia. The girl accepted the ride and contends Stewart drove recklessly without his lights on, and that as a result his car plunged off the road and over a steep embankment on Route 28, five miles north of Fort Ashby.

Offerings In Final Hour Depress Leading Stocks Up To Two Points

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—Offerings in the final hour depressed a number of leading stocks fractions to more than two points in today's market.

Although pressure was not severe, the decline left selected industrials and rails at lows for the day. A few favorites succeeded in retaining plus signs. Transfers totaled 770,000 shares against 850,000 on Tuesday.

American telephone closed off one-eighth at 170⅞. Western union "A" dipped one-half to 17⅞, a new 1946-47 low. Schenley resumed its recent decline and was off three-fourths at 43¾.

Chesapeake and Ohio was down 1⅛ at 51; United States Gypsum 2½ at 87; Chrysler one at 87; Goodrich one at 62; Southern Railway 1⅞ at 41¾; Transcontinental and Western Air one at 18⅜; General Motors one-half at 53½. Others ending lower included United States Steel, Bethlehem, Montgomery Ward, American Smelting, Phelps Dodge, General Electric, Union Carbide, Du Pont and Standard Oil (N. J.).

Gains were held by United Fruit, up one at 47; Allied Chemical, up one at 171; American Can, International Harvester and Woolworth.

Curb losers were Niagara Hudson Power, Pantepec Oil, Raytheon and Electric Bond and Share. Lone Star Gas was higher. Turnover of 230,000 shares equaled Tuesday's transfers.

Highly successful public offering of $50,000,000 of Swift and Company debentures dominated bond dealings. In the bond market itself price trends were indecisive and trading slack. Few changes exceded a point either way.

U. S. Government held quietly steady in the over-the-counter market, the victory loan December 2 ½s of '67-'72 remaining at 102 28-32 bid.

Sales totaled $3,670,000, against $3,961,000 Tuesday.

Sewing Club Described

The girls of the sixth grade of the Hill Street School organized a sewing club at the beginning of the school year, naming it the Oak Leaf Sewing Club. A club member stated that the name was selected because oak is the symbol of strength and because Hill Street School is located on Oak street.

The club was organized at first to make coverings for the visual education equipment. Work completed by the club members includes covers for the microphone, the screen, the opaque projector and the movie projector.

In addition the members made stuffed animals, pin cushions, scarves and pot holders. The next step of the members is to learn to embroider and crochet. Offerings In Final Hour Depress Leading Stocks Up To Two Points

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—Offerings in the final hour depressed a number of leading stocks fractions to more than two points in today's market.

Although pressure was not severe, the decline left selected industrials and rails at lows for the day. A few favorites succeeded in retaining plus signs. Transfers totaled 770,000 shares against 850,000 on Tuesday.

American telephone closed off one-eighth at 170⅞. Western union "A" dipped one-half to 17⅝, a new 1946-47 low. Schenley resumed its recent decline and was off three-fourths at 43¾.

Chesapeake and Ohio was down 1⅛ at 51; United States Gypsum 2½ at 87; Chrysler one at 87; Goodrich one at 62; Southern Railway 1⅞ at 41¾; Transcontinental and Western Air one at 18⅜; General Motors one-half at 53½. Others ending lower included United States Steel, Bethlehem, Montgomery Ward, American Smelting, Phelps Dodge, General Electric, Union Carbide, Du Pont and Standard Oil (N. J.).

Gains were held by United Fruit, up one at 47; Allied Chemical, up one at 171; American Can, International Harvester and Woolworth.

Curb losers were Niagara Hudson Power, Pantepec Oil, Raytheon and Electric Bond and Share. Lone Star Gas was higher. Turnover of 230,000 shares equaled Tuesday's transfers.

Highly successful public offering of $50,000,000 of Swift and Company debentures dominated bond dealings. In the bond market itself price trends were indecisive and trading slack. Few changes exceded a point either way.

U. S. Government held quietly steady in the over-the-counter market, the victory loan December 2 ½s of '67-'72 remaining at 102 28-32 bid.

Sales totaled $3,670,000, against $3,961,000 Tuesday.

eration in the drive to raise funds for use in the fight against infantile paralysis. The auxiliary has donated $10 to the drive. The members also voted $2 monthly to the "cigaret fund" for hospitalized veterans.

Mrs. Mary Smith was appointed chairman for National News, the American Legion Auxiliary's magazine. The annual jingle party was held at the close of the business session, and gifts were exchanged. Refreshments were served.

Jeffries and Albert C. Cook. Re-elected to office were William E. Jenkins, president; William S. Jenkins, vice president; F. Earl Krietzburg, cashier; Ralph P. Bender and David R. Willetts, assistant cashiers and W. Earle Cobey, counsel. Bender and Willetts were named about two months ago to fill the vacancy left by Herbert H. Loar, who resigned to enter private business and accept the appointment of state and county tax collector for this district.

Sewing Club Described

The girls of the sixth grade of the Hill Street School organized a sewing club at the beginning of the school year, naming it the Oak Leaf Sewing Club. A club member stated that the name was selected because oak is the symbol of strength and because Hill Street School is located on Oak street.

The club was organized at first to make coverings for the visual education equipment. Work completed by the club members includes covers for the microphone, the screen, the opaque projector and the movie projector.

In addition the members made stuffed animals, pin cushions, scarves and pot holders. The next step of the members is to learn to embroider and crochet. The club meets every Monday at the home of one of the members, receiving instructions from Mrs. Edgar Miller, Mrs. Harry Thomas and Mrs. John Krietzburg.

Firemen Hold Election

Meeting last week, the Clarysville Fire Department elected Joseph Storey president for the ensuing year. Others named were Herbert Knepp, vice president; I. W. Engle, treasurer; Russell Burkett, secretary; Russell McMurdo, fire chief; Leslie Ashby, assistant chief; Upton Loar, chaplain; William Findley, captain and Arnold Dixon, first lieutenant. Five new members, Daniel McMurdo, William Donahue, William Lyons, George Collins and Arnold Dixon were admitted to membership.

Plans were discussed for the erection of a new concrete and brick two-story building to house the fire truck, provide quarters for business meetings and storage space for equipment. The new station is to be located on a lot between the Krietzburg and Delaney homes, the ground having been donated by Mrs. Sophia Engle.

A plan to lay 500 feet of new water mains was approved, the work to start as soon as weather permits. The mains will be connected to the reservoir, owned by the department, to supply water for fires and also as a reserve water supply for the domestic use of all homes in the community. The water will be piped to provide free water service for 15 homes and three places of business.

The department sponsors a social every Wednesday night at the Clary Club as a means of raising funds to provide money to maintain and purchase new equipment and meet running expenses.

WHY ARE FEMALE BARFLIES MORE DISGUSTING?

I have mentioned before in this column the results of a survey by Robert V. Seliger, a member of the psychiatric staff of Johns Hopkins Hospital, namely the fact that four out of ten confirmed American alcoholics are women.

We will now discuss why said female alcoholics are infinitely more disgusting than the males of the species. This fact is not due to the frenzied varieties of blends which women barflies consume. It is rather due to a certain factor in the nature of women themselves which men have found convenient to overlook.

This factor is based on the simple fact that the average woman, despite her la-de-da surface, is infinitely more ruthless, anti-social, vehement and adventuresome than men.

Women are far from being the meeker sex. To the contrary, although circumstances and convenience have forced them to wear a duco finish, they are still 99 per cent saber tooth tiger.

A man, even in his cups, conforms to certain well known trends. He sighs or laughs, makes love or starts a row. Then goes to sleep. Whatever his alcoholic content, you can thoroughly well bet on the fact that his demonstrations will lie within this limited range.

But God only knows what a woman will do. And she usually does it.

The sky is her limit and she rides a jet rocket through the firmament once she gets tanked up. The quiet ones are the worst. They have more of a shell to bust out of. And when they bust, they bust.

There are no traditions which a woman will not defy, there are no conventions which she will not smash to smithereens when once alcohol releases her repressions. A woman drunk is the foulest thing on earth. Likewise the noisiest. Likewise the most unpredictable.

For a lady, when she is drunk, makes up for all the monotony and restrain which have been imposed upon her during her normal career. And she makes up plenty.

Time was, before the First World War, when a drunk woman was a rare and horrifying phenomenon I lived in a frontier town where there were at least ten saloons to every grocery store. It was also an Army post which in those non-selective days was no orchid. Men imbibed high, wide and handsome. Yet there was only one alcoholic woman amongst those thousands of men—even including the ladies of easy virtue. This confirmed female alcoholic was of fine family and sufficient wealth. She had been amply protected as a girl and was happily married. Yet, when she drank, she could make the most inebriated male look like a soda pop container.

IT ISN'T WHAT'S IN THE BOTTLE THAT MAKES A WOMAN BOOZE HOUND SO DANGEROUS AND UNPREDICTABLE. IT'S THE NATURE OF THE WOMAN HERSELF.

Nor are such demonstrations confined to swank bars and night spots. You will find the same tendency in fanatical club women and Daughters of the Revolution.

WOMEN ARE EXTREMISTS.

Women are extremists because they have had an artificial lid placed on the expression of their emotions. They have gathered perilous and highly explosive fizz through the generations.

Never take any woman at her face value, even when she is at her meekest. Never take a woman at any known value when she is tight. Beat it for the nearest straight-jacket and gallon of sedatives.

Four out of ten alcoholics are women and the number is growing fast. As long as hooch holds the element of excitement and adventure and challenge, women will go for it on all 16 cylinders. Until an outraged and disgusted society slaps them down.

P. S. I am no prohibitionist. I am merely a trifle repelled by blousy, belligerent female booze hounds.

It was also an Army post which in those non-selective days was no orchid. Men imbibed high, wide and handsome. Yet there was only one alcoholic woman amongst those thousands of men—even including the ladies of easy virtue. This confirmed female alcoholic was of fine family and sufficient wealth. She had been amply protected as a girl and was happily married. Yet, when she drank, she could make the most inebriated male look like a soda pop container.

IT ISN'T WHAT'S IN THE BOTTLE THAT MAKES A WOMAN BOOZE HOUND SO DANGEROUS AND UNPREDICTABLE. IT'S THE NATURE OF THE WOMAN HERSELF.

Nor are such demonstrations confined to swank bars and night spots. You will find the same tendency in fanatical club women and Daughters of the Revolution.

WOMEN ARE EXTREMISTS.

Women are extremists because they have had an artificial lid placed on the expression of their emotions. They have gathered perilous and highly explosive fizz through the generations.

Never take any woman at her face value, even when she is at her meekest. Never take a woman at any known value when she is tight. Beat it for the nearest straight-jacket and gallon of sedatives.

Four out of ten alcoholics are women and the number is growing fast. As long as hooch holds the element of excitement and adventure and challenge, women will go for it on all 16 cylinders. Until an outraged and disgusted society slaps them down.

P. S. I am no prohibitionist. I am merely a trifle repelled by blousy, belligerent female booze hounds.

Industrial Arts Subject Of Talk At Hyndman P-TA

By LILLIAN HARDEN CRABTREE

HYNDMAN, Pa., Jan. 15—James Smith, of the Industrial Arts Department of Bedford High School, spoke at the Parent-Teacher Association meeting in the school auditorium Tuesday evening. He stressed the importance of teaching Industrial Arts in the modern high school as it one of the most satisfying subjects for both boys and girls.

Mr. Smith stated that in all high schools there are three classes of students—the successful academic students who will further their education after leaving school; the successful academic students who will seek employment and the non-successful academic student. All three classes have one thing in common—that they will soon be adult citizens.

He displayed a radio cabinet, night stands, magazine rack and other articles made by the industrial arts class in Bedford.

Prof. Lloyd G. Keller introduced the speaker and said that in order to be an accredited Junior-Senior high school that the industrial arts course would have to be added to the curriculum.

The meeting was in charge of Guy Hyre, vice president of the association and Rev. Wendell Allen, pastor of the Methodist Church, had charge of the devotions. Rev. Mr. Allen gave a brief talk on "Parental Responsibility" and stated that delinquent children usually have delinquent parents.

The entertainment part of the program was in charge of J. Elwood Miller of the Music Department. Mr. Miller and several members of the band presented a comedy skit impersonating a "Little German Band."

Group singing was led by Mrs. Myra Smith with Miss Eloise Headland at the piano.

The February meeting will feature a "Founder's Day Program."

Will Give Play

The Junior Class of the Hyndman High School will present a Class Play on the evenings of Feb. 6 and 7 entitled "Drums of Death" under the direction of Miss Verona Lesko.

Potomac Park Plans Charter

Further plans regarding a charter for the Potomac Park Improvement Association were discussed Tuesday night at the Potomac Park Community Evangelical United Brethren Church.

J. Milton Dick, president, said actual wording will be considered at a general meeting next Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. at the church.

The association went on record as favoring a new tax on entertainment and changes in the liquor law as a means of relieving the tax burden on real estate.

Edward Brookman, membership chairman, reported that the association now numbers 160 persons. Dick appointed Garland Paxton chairman of the entertainment committee, to be assisted by Edward Shaffer, Richard Cramer, Wilmer Nunamaker and H. D. Smith.

When Princeton was founded 12 of its 23 trustees were Presbyterian ministers.

March Of Dimes Campaign Opens In Tucker County

By HELEN COLLETT

PARSONS, Jan. 15 — The official opening of the National Foundation, Infantile Paralysis drive opened in Tucker county this week according to Earl Moore and Ernest L. Moon, Tucker county chairmen.

The men stated that several outstanding events are scheduled during the month to help raise the quota of $2,000 for the county. Among the events will be a benefit basketball game scheduled by the American Legion team of Parsons composed of all players who were former high school stars and veterans.

During the last week of January, 10 girls of Parsons will act as usherettes at the Victoria Theater and will take special donations from the theater goers each night during the week. Chairman for that event is Miss Jean Parsons, Hambleton, Margaret Tahaney and Eloise Flanagan, Parsons.

The last event during the week will be the March of Dimes dance. Banks have been distributed to business places throughout the county and all schools have been urged to help with the drive.

The county permanent committee is composed of E. L. Moon as county chairman, Mrs. Gladys Hehle as secretary and chairman of Women's activities; and Miss Edna McVeigh of Thomas as treasurer. Miss Wanda Lea McDonald, chairman of the Educational committee, Mrs. Helen Collett, chairman of Publicity; and

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 15. — I'm laughing out loud. Now it's the Fuller Brush Man we're going to see in the movies. There have been more jokes written to the square inch about him than any other character, with the exception of the farmer's daughter. And who do you think copped this prize — S. Sylvan Simon.

Sylvia Sidney

For two and one-half years Sylvan, one of our better known directors, has been trying to coax the Fuller Brush people into signing on the dotted line. When they finally agreed they came up with a contract of 15 pages of dos and dont's which must be adhered to or else.

There isn't a comic in this business who wouldn't want to play in the "Fuller Brush Man" comedy.

So far, Red Skelton and Milton Berle already have their hats in the ring.

This will be an independent, made after Simon finishes "Mating Call" at Columbia.

I like Joan Crawford. I like Jerry Wald, and I like Charlie Jackson. But my conscience won't let me say that I think "Fall of Valor," Jackson's novel, no matter how it's rewritten to hide its original theme, will be good as a motion picture for Joan Crawford. Joan has been conferring in New York with both Jerry and Jackson on this story.

Jerry sent me a long wire, saying that he and Charlie Jackson had liked the subject matter of the book, and that it would now deal with the evils of divorce.

I can't, by any stretch of the imagination, see how that could make any difference even though the subject is completely eliminated. It can't possibly do Warners or the movies any good to buy a book that the reading public knows deals with an offensive subject.

The engagement of Gene Tierney's sister, Pat, to Jimmy Costello, wealthy paint manufacturer, has been called off. I don't know whether the brawl in which Gene, Pat, Oleg, and Jimmy were in New Year's Eve had anything to do with it, but off it is.

Both Gene and her sister were terribly embarrassed over all the publicity since the fight was none of their doing. And another thing, although Gene and Oleg Cassini will be in New York it won't be at the same time. He goes next week and Gene won't leave until she finishes "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir." However, Cassini will still continue to design his estranged wife's clothes.

Chatter in Hollywood: I think everybody in Hollywood is glad that there will be no mud slinging in the Laraine Day-Ray Hendricks divorce case. It's all being worked out now and when the divorce comes, it will be for the reason usually given in Hollywood — mental cruelty.

The lawyers for both Laraine and Hendricks have been conferring every day. It would be too bad to give people outside of Hollywood a field day and it would do no one any good. In the beginning, Hendricks had threatened to name Leo Durocher and Laraine had several things up her sleeve which she was about to divulge. These will all be forgotten in a dignified case.

Tony Owen, an agent in public and the husband of Donna Reed in private, has bought a story he thinks will be a Protestant "Going My Way." It's called "The Invisible Sun" and is by Mildred Lee.

The story of a Presbyterian minister in a small southern town, it contains a strong plea for tolerance, a theme that will be accented in many movies in 1947.

Tony plans to get the leading Protestant ministers interested and nothing would please him more than for Sam Marx to produce it. It was Tony who took the idea for MGMs atomic bomb movie, "The Beginning Or The End" to Sam.

Gabriel Pascal is in town and as always he's very mysterious. Every time I've ever talked to him he's just on the verge of breaking a big story, but you can talk your head off and still he says it's not ready yet.

He says he has appointments with three or four producers about producing one of Shaw's plays in Hollywood. However, in fairness, we can't sell Pascal short for he's the only one who was ever able to get George Bernard Shaw to consent to having his plays put into the movies.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: In a few weeks Sylvia Sidney will become the bride of Carleton Alsop. . . Joan Crawford gets back from New York late in the week. Greg Bautzer flew back a few days ago. Five will get you ten they'll marry when Joan is legally free to do so. . . . Louis Sobol, fellow columnist is a grandpappy now. His daughter Natalie welcomed a son a few days ago. She is married to a Hollywood doctor. . . . Mrs. Leo Spitz and Shirley Feld hosted an enjoyable cocktail party in honor of Nate Blumberg's daughter Doris who was married to Fred Meyer's son, Stanley, today. . . . Joan Bennett, who was at the Spitz party, was a vision in beige. I don't know how that girl does it but she looks as young as her own daughter Diana. . . . Poor little Sybil Jason is stranded in Montreal, unable to get to Hollywood because of an error in her visa. Her bridegroom, Milton Stewart is here waiting for her. . . . Carole Landis flew in for a talk fest with her agent, Arthur Lyon. There are several movie jobs cooking. Her bridegroom, Horace Schmidlapp gets here next week. . . . Dorothy Morris, MGM starlet married to Marvin Moffee, expects a baby in the early spring. . . . Martha Raye telephoned from Florida that it's not true she is expecting the stork, but says Martha, "My show went over big. Nick and the baby are here with me and I am completely happy.". . . Martha Vickers and the man she loves, Freddie de Cordova, at a table for two at Ciro's. . . . When Ava Gardner walked into Pepe's with Mel Torme she was such an eyeful that every male in the place turned to look at her. . . . Ethel and George Strebes have added a feed box and a water trough to their doll's house in Palm Springs so the riders can give their horses refreshments while they dine inside. . . . Jay Gould, formerly married to Jennifer Bruce, Nigel's lovely daughter, dining tete-a-tete at the Beverly Hills Club. . . . Was Marie McDonald kidding or did she mean it? She was showing her gold-rimmed glasses to some of the people on the MGM set. Said one of them, "Oh, Joan Bennett has gold glasses but her's have rubies." "I really don't think," replied Marie, "that rubies are necessary, do you?"

ENDS CONSTIPATION AFTER 30 YEARS

Eating famous cereal daily brought lasting relief

Wouldn't you welcome a way to end constipation, without harsh laxatives? Then read this sincere, unsolicited letter:

"I was constipated for thirty years and during that time took many kinds of laxatives. All I got was temporary relief. If Stomach Gas or Sour Food Taste Robs You of Sleep

Here's How You May Help, Whether You Eat 500 Pounds or 2000 Pounds of Food In a Year

You can't feel cheerful, be happy and sleep well, if your stomach is always upset. As age advances the "old stomach" needs more help. The reason is this:

Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.

To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains very special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

Avoid punishing yourself with overdoses of soda and other alkalizers to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is SSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people SSS Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of SSS Tonic from your drug store today. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Advice To The Lovelorn

Girl Who Hasn't Heard From Boy In Service Advised to Do Nothing

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I met a boy who is in the service, and before he went into service, he told me he loved me. I heard from him frequently while he was at basic, and then I heard from him when he was on the boat. But ever since he landed, I haven't heard from him, and that was over a month ago. I am afraid he has found someone else over there. What should I do?

CYNTHIA M.

Your question can be answered with a single word, Cynthia. The word is "Nothing."

If you have answered this boy's letters regularly, as I assume you have, then the next move is definitely up to him. When a young man is interested in a girl, and she gives him even the small encouragement of answering his letters, he's going to keep right after her. If he doesn't then it's a safe bet that any interest he may have had in her has waned, and she'd better take the hint instead of putting herself in the position of pursuing a man who doesn't want her.

And remember, Cynthia, that lots of young men will make love to a girl when they know there's soon going to be a whole ocean between them. Sometimes, feeling sentimental on the eve of a departure, they think they mean it, but I'm afraid most of them are just engaging in a pleasant, temporary pastime. So why not just take it that this was the case, and let it go at that?

13-Year-Old Flirt

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 13, who is mature enough to look 16. Fellows flirt with me and ask me to go out with them. Since my mother does not let me go out with boys or even groups of girls, I feel as if I was in a prison.

Now my questions: Should a girl my age be allowed to go to her own church clubs and have fun with boys and girls? Fellows who flirt with me are 17 and 18. Are they too old? It would look absolutely silly to go out with a boy of exactly 13. I'd look older than he does.

F. T. L.

I think that a girl of your age should be allowed to go to afternoon and early evening meetings of boy-and-girl clubs if—and the "if" is important—she knows how to behave herself. Are you quite sure you do? Somehow your question about whether or not boys of 17 and 18 are too old to flirt with makes me wonder.

Personally, I don't think flirting on the part of any 13-year-old is a very pretty sight. She'd much better have her mind on sports and other good times, and leave the playing at romance alone for a few years. The boys may string you along, but no boy of the age you mention is going to take you seriously, and if you take them seriously, they're likely to laugh at you behind your back for a silly little girl.

Frank Talk Is Suggested

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been going with a girl I love very much for about three months, off and on. The reason I don't get to see her very often is that her mother disapproves of me for some reason or other, and doesn't wish her daughter to go out with me, and we have to do it on the side. But this girl doesn't like to deceive her mother, and I don't care for the idea of sneaking around corners much, either.

I would like to know some way of finding out just what her mother has against me, and try to make her approve of the idea I have for the two of us.

T. A. P.

I'm a great believer in the direct method of asking about what you want to know; of going straight to the person you think has the answer. So I'd suggest that you make a polite call on the girl's mother—and I don't mean a telephone call, either—and ask her if she will tell you frankly what her objections are to your friendship with her daughter. Tell her how much you admire her daughter, and say that neither of you want to do anything of which she disapproves. Tell her that if there has been anything in your conduct or attitude that she doesn't like, you want to know it so that you can remedy the difficulty.

Most mothers, I think, would respond in a cooperative manner to a straightforward and manly approach like that.

"I'll be fired for that fool story!"

The managing editor of the New York Herald took a day off on December 21, 1879. So this headline in his paper hit him without warning.

EDISON'S LIGHT— IT MAKES A LIGHT, WITHOUT GAS OR FLAME!

The public promptly shouted "hoax!" Scientists called Edison crazy. And our shocked, angry editor expected to be fired.

But he wasn't. Eleven days later, Thomas Edison held a unique New Year's party in his laboratory at Menlo Park, New Jersey, and invited the world to see his "flameless light." Thousands came and were convinced. The incandescent lamp was real.

Soon small companies were bringing the benefits of Edison's newfangled lamp to the people. Engineers and business men poured in their energy and time . . . risked their own savings . . . overcame all kinds of obstacles . . . broadened and improved the service.

Government didn't do the job. Individuals did. And in the process, they created jobs for many thousands of Americans, as well as a great new service for many millions more.

When Edison opened the first power-plant in 1882, electricity cost 25c a kilowatt-hour. This year, as we mark the 100th anniversary of the great inventor's birth, the average price of household electricity across the country is only 3 1/3c per kilowatt-hour.

Thanks to Edison's imagination and enterprise—thanks to the courage and initiative of many men and women, working under the American business system—this country enjoys the most and the best electric service in the world. And all our lives are richer, safer, more productive.

Jim Kelley To Referee Bucknell U. Bouts

Will Make Debut At Lewisburg, Pa., Tomorrow Night

Assigned Four Home Matches Of Bisons

James E. Kelley, Jr., who has served as the "third man" in ring matches in Allegany county since 1933, will make his debut as referee of college boxing matches tomorrow night at Bucknell University, Lewisburg, Pa.

Kelley received word from Albert E. Humphries of athletic director Bucknell, yesterday to the effect that he had been chosen to referee four home matches on the Bisons' schedule.

In the Bucknell - Georgetown bouts tomorrow night, Kelley's decision in the eight bouts on the program will be official as no judges have been selected for the initial show.

The Bucknell team is coached by Bill Richards, and its other home matches are with American University, of Washington, D. C.; Western Maryland College, of Westminster, and King's Point Merchant Marine Academy, King's Point, N. Y.

Gets Westminster Bouts

In addition to the four matches at Bucknell, Kelley has been advised by Charley Havens, athletic director at Western Maryland College, that he has been selected to referee the return match between Bucknell and the Green Terrors at Westminster, Md., on March 1. The Westminster boxers open the series at Lewisburg, February 1.

Dr. Carl P. Schott, dean of physical education, has informed Kelley that the latter will be considered as a referee for the Eastern Intercollegiate Tournament at State College, Pa., March 7 and 8, and "Jim" may get an opportunity to officiate in the Southern Conference tourney at College Park, Md., February 28 through March 1.

In the matches to be staged at Lewisburg and Westminster, Kelley was chosen in preference to two other well known ring officials.

Made Debut At Luke

"Jim" estimates that he has officiated in 500 amateur and professional matches since 1933. He made his debut in the Devon Club shows at Luke, Md., as assistant to Dr. Paul Wilson in 1933. He assisted the late Ed Brockman in professional boxing shows here and recently worked pro bouts as "Buddy" McQuade's assistant.

Kelley, who resides with his wife and two sons at 502 Baltimore avenue, was formerly a member of the Cumberland Police Department and is now a member of the police department at the Celanese plant. He is a crack pistol shot, having won numerous prizes, and was one of the organizers of the Cumberland Police Boys' Club.

The Jayvees led for three periods, 11-5, 21-18 and 35-32 but the All-Americans tied it up at 39-39 at the end of the regulation game. In the extra three minutes, "Soup" Lancaster broke the ice with a two-pointer and James followed up with a pair of field goals. PROF. PAVESE DIES OF HEART ATTACK

BALTIMORE, Jan. 15 (AP)—Prof. Generoso Pavese, who won the world's fencing championship in an eight-hour stand at Madison Square Garden in 1895, died at Johns Hopkins Hospital of a heart attack today at 81.

He gave Theodore Roosevelt fencing lessons at the White House after fighting at San Juan Hill as a cavalry captain and accompanied "T.R." on an African hunting trip.

Pavese was a native of Florence, Italy, and came to the United States in 1893 to fence at the Chicago exposition of that year. He claimed no one ever wrested the world's championship from him after he stood off 30 opponents in the Madison Square Garden session.

In 1927, at 62, he retired as fencing master at the U.S. Naval Academy, a post he held six years. Well into his 70's, he continued to give fencing instructions at Loyola College here and at the local Y.M.C.A. He had been ill of heart trouble about a year.

Nats Buy Ferrick

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 15 (AP) — Tom Ferrick, righthanded pitcher, has been sold by the St. Louis Browns to the Washington Senators for the $7,500 waiver price, the Browns' officials announced today. Ferrick won four and lost one game for St. Louis last year.

Navy Quint Wins

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 15 (AP) — The Navy Basketball team ran roughshod over an outclassed Gettysburg quintet today to turn in a 71-39 victory, as Rear Adm. James L. Holloway, who took over as academy superintendent earlier in the day, cheered the Middies.

Winter Fish Story: Dry Land Cat Catch

ORD, NEB.—(AP)—Bill Earnest, a trapper, noticed the tail of a fish showing at the mouth of a mink den. He pulled on it and found a catfish, alive and unharmed. The mink evidently had dragged it to the hole as Earnest approached and then found the hole too small. Earnest believes that catching a 4½ pound catfish in the winter on dry land with the help of a mink established some kind of fish-story record.

Boxing Tournament Dates Are Announced

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Jan. 15 (AP) —University of Maryland athletic officials today set Feb. 28 and March 1 as the dates of the Southern Conference boxing tournament at Ritchie Coliseum here.

Conference representatives designated Maryland as host school some time ago but did not fix the dates. Only four schools in the loop sponsor boxing teams — North Carolina, South Carolina, Clemson and Maryland.

Jeff Heath Signs

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 15 (AP) — The St. Louis Browns announced today that Jeff Heath, a frequent holdout in past years, today became the first player to sign and return his 1947 contract to the club. Terms of the contract were not disclosed.

The Seattle, Wash, outfielder, obtained in a trade with Washington early last June, batted .278 last year.

Trippi Gets Offers

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 — ((AP)) — Charley Trippi, Georgia's All-America halfback and baseball star said tonight that he had received "very fine offers" from the combined New York Yankees and from the Chicago Cardinals of the National Football League and declared he would decide tomorow morning which offer to accept.

Sheehe Wins First Bout — Remember Danny Pavese? — Harry G. Stark Resigns — Zone Defense Is Banned

By C. V. BURNS

Leo Houck, coach of the Penn State College boxing team, says Jack Sheehe, of Oakland, Md., looked good in his first collegiate match and if he keeps on improving will be a logical contender in the Eastern Intercollegiate Tournament at State College, March 7 and 8.

Jack made his debut last Friday with a victory over a representative of the Miami, Fla., University team.

Houck's son pulled a fast one on his dad in the Penn State-Miami series as it was his victory that decided the match. Young Houck was a member of the Miami team.

Jack Sheehe is a brother of Paul Sheehe, local restaurateur.

Penn State's boxers have matches scheduled with Western Maryland, Virginia, Army, Syracuse, Wisconsin and Michigan State.

Based on a five-year statewide average, 30 per cent of Maryland's apprehended fish and game law violators are acquitted or given suspended sentences, according to computations compiled from the Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission's annual reports. The five-year period includes cases tried before magistrates from 1940 to 1945.

Carroll county's 55 per cent of suspensions or acquittals is high for the state.

Next is Allegany county with 51 per cent. Out of a total of 215 cases tried in Allegany county, 111 were acquitted or given suspended sentences.

Only 96 out of 258 cases or 37 per cent were acquitted or given suspended sentences in Garrett county, the report shows.

Kent county with 9 per cent (12 suspensions or acquittals out of 138 cases) is low for the state. Frederick county is next with 10 per cent (19 out of 194 cases).

The Rally Sheet of the League of Maryland Sportsmen, Inc., commenting on the recent killing of two adult and one cub bear in Garrett county, recalls that two centuries ago, bears were so plentiful in the state and so destructive to domestic animals and crops that a bounty was put on them to reduce their numbers.

Worcester county, for instance, by Act in 1744, was permitted to pay a reward of 100 pounds of tobacco for every bear killed.

"The passing of two centuries has seen virtually the elimination of the bear from the Old Line state," the paper comments. "Occasionally, as in the recent case, one or two of these fine native mammals appears in the higher and wilder spots at the western end of the state. Farmers and stock raisers, of course, benefited from the virtual extermination of these creatures, thus hastening it on.

"The Maryland scene is poorer for their passing."

Harry G. Stark's resignation as chairman of the registration and membership committees of the South Atlantic Association of the Amateur Athletic Union has been accepted and his successor will be elected at a meeting to be held tonight at the Lord Baltimore Hotel, Baltimore.

Stark turned in his resignation in November and has remained at his post until a successor is named.

His job involved a tremendous amount of field bookkeeping and other office work, consuming many hours of his time throughout the year.

Stark, a Baltimore attorney, is a representative of the Baltimore YMCA and will remain on the Board of Managers of the South Atlantic Association.

Harry handled all applications for sanctions for amateur boxing shows in Cumberland since the sport was revived here in October, 1945. All membership cards issued to local boxers were cleared through Stark's office.

Robert Moses "Lefty" Grove was a special guest at a dinner held by Clemmer-McGuffin Post No. 13, American Legion, Staunton, Va., Monday, in honor of its championship junior baseball team.

The ex-major league southpaw ace attended the regular meeting of the Staunton Kiwanis Club on the same day at which time he showed several baseball films.

During the 1946 baseball season the Staunton junior Legion team copped the District No. 7 title by defeating Waynesboro and Winchester, and lost to Alexandria in th eregional playoff.

Prof. Generoso Pavese, former fencing master at the United States Naval Academy, who died yesterday in Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, was the father of Danny Pavese, well known professional lightweight, who boxed here under the management of Calton "Funny" Newnam in the 1920s.

Danny, a native of Baltimore, formerly fought out of Newark, N. J., before making his home in Cumberland. In his heyday he met Charley White, Willie Ritchie and other topnotch 135-pounders.

Newnam recalled yesterday that Danny, in addition to matches here, appeared in shows at Pittsburgh and Altoona, Pa., and Columbus, Ohio.

Pittsburgh's Ironmen, Detroit and St. Louis are the teams hit by the new ruling of the Basketball Association of America, which has banned the use of the zone defense, or at least the stationary variety of the defensive formation.

Walter Kennedy, publicity director of the pro loop, says that the move was made because the zone defense slowed down the game, kept scoring down and bored the customers. "And after all the fans pay the freight," Kennedy added.

The ruling was passed with the full consent of the 11 owners and penalties will be assessed by league officials after the report of the game is made.

Eddie Giosa To Fight Montgomery On Monday

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 15 (AP) — Trained down to 138 pounds for prefight examination, Eddie Giosa said today he isn't afraid he may be repeating an old mistake in tackling Lightweight Champion Bob Montgomery in a non-title 10-rounder next Monday.

"I have to admit I was out of my class when I fought Ike Williams a year ago—and got knocked out," Giosa declared, "but Montgomery would be in the same position—out of his class—if he went into the ring with Williams today. That's because Ike is still at his peak and Bob is on the toboggan."

153 Tee Off Today 'n $10,000 Tourney

RICHMOND, Calif., Jan. 15 (AP) — Headed by such ranking stars as U. S. Open Champion Lloyd Mangrum and the country's leading money winner, Ben Hogan, a fast field of 153 professionals and amateurs tee off here tomorrow in the first round of the $10,000 Richmond 72-hole Open Golf Tournament.

Mangrum, always a threat, filed a belated entry from Los Angeles after previously deciding not to play because of business reasons. Also lending additional class to the event was the last minute entry of ex-national open title holder, Lawson Little, who reported an ailing shoulder had responded to treatment.

Hogan automatically shared cofavoritism in spite of a poor showing in the recent Bing Crosby tournament at Pebble Beach, where he shot three rounds in the high 70s.

Jimmie Sheckard Dies Of Injuries

Former Cub Was Struck By Automobile Sunday

LANCASTER, Pa., Jan. 15 (AP) — Struck by an automobile, James Tilden (Jimmy) Sheckard of the famous Chicago Cub "S" outfield died today at the age of 68.

Jimmy, who spent 14 years in the big leagues after the turn of the century, suffered head injuries Sunday night when hit while walking along a highway to his job as attendant at a gasoline service station.

The Rev. Robert J. Pilgrim of Lancaster, named by State Policeman C. E. Simmons as driver of the car, took Sheckard to a hospital. No charges were filed.

Sheckard, in ill health for a year, played with the National League Chicago Cubs from 1906 to 1910, roving the outfield with Jimmy Slagle and Frank Schulte in the great "S", which combined with the immortal Tinker-to-Evers-to Chance machine. With Pitcher Mordecai Brown, they gave the Cubs world championships in 1907 and 1908.

One of the greatest left fielders of his day, Sheckard twice led the National League in fielding, piling up a .964 average for the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1902 and .986 for Chicago in 1906.

Tops as a leadoff man, Jimmy established a National League mark in 1911 by drawing 147 bases on balls, just one short of Babe Ruth's record of 1920 and 23 less than Ruth's 1923 major league performance.

Jim Kelley To Referee Bucknell U. Bouts

Will Make Debut At Lewisburg, Pa., Tomorrow Night

Assigned Four Home Matches Of Bisons

James E. Kelley, Jr., who has served as the "third man" in ring matches in Allegany county since 1933, will make his debut as referee of college boxing matches tomorrow night at Bucknell University, Lewisburg, Pa.

Kelley received word from Albert E. Humphries of athletic director Bucknell, yesterday to the effect that he had been chosen to referee four home matches on the Bisons' schedule.

In the Bucknell - Georgetown bouts tomorrow night, Kelley's decision in the eight bouts on the program will be official as no judges have been selected for the initial show.

Gets Westminster Bouts

In addition to the four matches at Bucknell, Kelley has been advised by Charley Havens, athletic director at Western Maryland College, that he has been selected to referee the return match between Bucknell and the Green Terrors at Westminster, Md., on March 1. The Westminster boxers open the series at Lewisburg, February 1.

Dr. Carl P. Schott, dean of physical education, has informed Kelley that the latter will be considered as a referee for the Eastern Intercollegiate Tournament at State College, Pa., March 7 and 8, and "Jim" may get an opportunity to officiate in the Southern Conference tourney at College Park, Md., February 28 through March 1.

In the matches to be staged at Lewisburg and Westminster, Kelley was chosen in preference to two other well known ring officials.

Made Debut At Luke

"Jim" estimates that he has officiated in 500 amateur and professional matches since 1933. He made his debut in the Devon Club shows at Luke, Md., as assistant to Dr. Paul Wilson in 1933. He assisted the late Ed Brockman in professional boxing shows here and recently worked pro bouts as "Buddy" McQuade's assistant.

Kelley, who resides with his wife and two sons at 502 Baltimore avenue, was formerly a member of the Cumberland Police Department and is now a member of the police department at the Celanese plant. He is a crack pistol shot, having won numerous prizes, and was one of the organizers of the Cumberland Police Boys' Club.

Frostburg Freshmen Beat Jayvees, 45-39

Coming from behind in the fourth period, to tie up the contest, the WL Little All-Americans scored three baskets in an overtime period to down the Frostburg State Teachers' College junior varsity five, 45-39, in a contest played yesterday on the college court.

Tally James garnered 11 markers to lead the scorers of the winning team. The Jayvees led for three periods, 11-5, 21-18 and 35-32 but the All-Americans tied it up at 39-39 at the end of the regulation game. In the extra three minutes, "Soup" Lancaster broke the ice with a two-pointer and James followed up with a pair of field goals. PROF. PAVESE DIES OF HEART ATTACK

BALTIMORE, Jan. 15 (AP)—Prof. Generoso Pavese, who won the world's fencing championship in an eight-hour stand at Madison Square Garden in 1895, died at Johns Hopkins Hospital of a heart attack today at 81.

He gave Theodore Roosevelt fencing lessons at the White House after fighting at San Juan Hill as a cavalry captain and accompanied "T.R." on an African hunting trip.

Pavese was a native of Florence, Italy, and came to the United States in 1893 to fence at the Chicago exposition of that year. He claimed no one ever wrested the world's championship from him after he stood off 30 opponents in the Madison Square Garden session.

In 1927, at 62, he retired as fencing master at the U.S. Naval Academy, a post he held six years. Well into his 70's, he continued to give fencing instructions at Loyola College here and at the local Y.M.C.A. He had been ill of heart trouble about a year.

Nats Buy Ferrick

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 15 (AP) — Tom Ferrick, righthanded pitcher, has been sold by the St. Louis Browns to the Washington Senators for the $7,500 waiver price, the Browns' officials announced today. Ferrick won four and lost one game for St. Louis last year.

Navy Quint Wins

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 15 (AP) — The Navy Basketball team ran roughshod over an outclassed Gettysburg quintet today to turn in a 71-39 victory, as Rear Adm. James L. Holloway, who took over as academy superintendent earlier in the day, cheered the Middies.

Winter Fish Story: Dry Land Cat Catch

ORD, NEB.—(AP)—Bill Earnest, a trapper, noticed the tail of a fish showing at the mouth of a mink den. He pulled on it and found a catfish, alive and unharmed. The mink evidently had dragged it to the hole as Earnest approached and then found the hole too small. Earnest believes that catching a 4½ pound catfish in the winter on dry land with the help of a mink established some kind of fish-story record.

Boxing Tournament Dates Are Announced

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Jan. 15 (AP) —University of Maryland athletic officials today set Feb. 28 and March 1 as the dates of the Southern Conference boxing tournament at Ritchie Coliseum here.

Conference representatives designated Maryland as host school some time ago but did not fix the dates. Only four schools in the loop sponsor boxing teams — North Carolina, South Carolina, Clemson and Maryland.

Jeff Heath Signs

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 15 (AP) — The St. Louis Browns announced today that Jeff Heath, a frequent holdout in past years, today became the first player to sign and return his 1947 contract to the club. Terms of the contract were not disclosed.

The Seattle, Wash, outfielder, obtained in a trade with Washington early last June, batted .278 last year.

Trippi Gets Offers

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 — (AP) — Charley Trippi, Georgia's All-America halfback and baseball star said tonight that he had received "very fine offers" from the combined New York Yankees and from the Chicago Cardinals of the National Football League and declared he would decide tomorow morning which offer to accept.

Sheehe Wins First Bout ○ ○ ○ Remember Danny Pavese?

Harry G. Stark Resigns ○ ○ ○ Zone Defense Is Banned

By C. V. BURNS

Leo Houck, coach of the Penn State College boxing team, says Jack Sheehe, of Oakland, Md., looked good in his first collegiate match and if he keeps on improving will be a logical contender in the Eastern Intercollegiate Tournament at State College, March 7 and 8.

Jack made his debut last Friday with a victory over a representative of the Miami, Fla., University team.

Houck's son pulled a fast one on his dad in the Penn State-Miami series as it was his victory that decided the match. Young Houck was a member of the Miami team.

Jack Sheehe is a brother of Paul Sheehe, local restaurateur.

Penn State's boxers have matches scheduled with Western Maryland, Virginia, Army, Syracuse, Wisconsin and Michigan State.

Based on a five-year statewide average, 30 per cent of Maryland's apprehended fish and game law violators are acquitted or given suspended sentences, according to computations compiled from the Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission's annual reports. The five-year period includes cases tried before magistrates from 1940 to 1945.

Carroll county's 55 per cent of suspensions or acquittals is high for the state.

Next is Allegany county with 51 per cent. Out of a total of 215 cases tried in Allegany county, 111 were acquitted or given suspended sentences.

Only 96 out of 258 cases or 37 per cent were acquitted or given suspended sentences in Garrett county, the report shows.

Kent county with 9 per cent (12 suspensions or acquittals out of 138 cases) is low for the state. Frederick county is next with 10 per cent (19 out of 194 cases).

The Rally Sheet of the League of Maryland Sportsmen, Inc., commenting on the recent killing of two adult and one cub bear in Garrett county, recalls that two centuries ago, bears were so plentiful in the state and so destructive to domestic animals and crops that a bounty was put on them to reduce their numbers.

Worcester county, for instance, by Act in 1744, was permitted to pay a reward of 100 pounds of tobacco for every bear killed.

"The passing of two centuries has seen virtually the elimination of the bear from the Old Line state," the paper comments. "Occasionally, as in the recent case, one or two of these fine native mammals appears in the higher and wilder spots at the western end of the state. Farmers and stock raisers, of course, benefited from the virtual extermination of these creatures, thus hastening it on.

"The Maryland scene is poorer for their passing."

Harry G. Stark's resignation as chairman of the registration and membership committees of the South Atlantic Association of the Amateur Athletic Union has been accepted and his successor will be elected at a meeting to be held tonight at the Lord Baltimore Hotel, Baltimore.

Stark turned in his resignation in November and has remained at his post until a successor is named.

His job involved a tremendous amount of field bookkeeping and other office work, consuming many hours of his time throughout the year.

Stark, a Baltimore attorney, is a representative of the Baltimore YMCA and will remain on the Board of Managers of the South Atlantic Association.

Harry handled all applications for sanctions for amateur boxing shows in Cumberland since the sport was revived here in October, 1945. All membership cards issued to local boxers were cleared through Stark's office.

Robert Moses "Lefty" Grove was a special guest at a dinner held by Clemmer-McGuffin Post No. 13, American Legion, Staunton, Va., Monday, in honor of its championship junior baseball team.

The ex-major league southpaw ace attended the regular meeting of the Staunton Kiwanis Club on the same day at which time he showed several baseball films.

During the 1946 baseball season the Staunton junior Legion team copped the District No. 7 title by defeating Waynesboro and Winchester, and lost to Alexandria in th eregional playoff.

Prof. Generoso Pavese, former fencing master at the United States Naval Academy, who died yesterday in Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, was the father of Danny Pavese, well known professional lightweight, who boxed here under the management of Calton "Funny" Newnam in the 1920s.

Danny, a native of Baltimore, formerly fought out of Newark, N. J., before making his home in Cumberland. In his heyday he met Charley White, Willie Ritchie and other topnotch 135-pounders.

Newnam recalled yesterday that Danny, in addition to matches here, appeared in shows at Pittsburgh and Altoona, Pa., and Columbus, Ohio.

Pittsburgh's Ironmen, Detroit and St. Louis are the teams hit by the new ruling of the Basketball Association of America, which has banned the use of the zone defense, or at least the stationary variety of the defensive formation.

Walter Kennedy, publicity director of the pro loop, says that the move was made because the zone defense slowed down the game, kept scoring down and bored the customers. "And after all the fans pay the freight," Kennedy added.

The ruling was passed with the full consent of the 11 owners and penalties will be assessed by league officials after the report of the game is made.

Eddie Giosa To Fight Montgomery On Monday

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 15 (AP) — Trained down to 138 pounds for prefight examination, Eddie Giosa said today he isn't afraid he may be repeating an old mistake in tackling Lightweight Champion Bob Montgomery in a non-title 10-rounder next Monday.

"I have to admit I was out of my class when I fought Ike Williams a year ago—and got knocked out," Giosa declared, "but Montgomery would be in the same position—out of his class—if he went into the ring with Williams today. That's because Ike is still at his peak and Bob is on the toboggan."

Moorefield High Defeats LaSalle In Final Quarter

Jackets' 17-Point Rally Tops Explorers, 40-27

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., Jan. 15 — After being held on even terms for three periods, Moorefield High School's Yellow Jackets staged a garrison finish to defeat LaSalle High School, of Cumberland, here tonight by the score of 40 to 27 in the opening game of the series between the teams.

LaSalle did a fadeout in the final stanza scoring only four points while the home team racked up 17. Don Smith accounted for seven points during the winning rally. George Hott and Dwight Kessel scored eight markers each in the final half.

Hott and Kessel paced the Jackets' attack with 12 and 10 points while Bobby Vanderhout was the chief scorer for LaSalle with 11 markers to his credit.

153 Tee Off Today In $10,000 Tourney

RICHMOND, Calif., Jan. 15 (AP) — Headed by such ranking stars as U. S. Open Champion Lloyd Mangrum and the country's leading money winner, Ben Hogan, a fast field of 153 professionals and amateurs tee off here tomorrow in the first round of the $10,000 Richmond 72-hole Open Golf Tournament.

Mangrum, always a threat, filed a belated entry from Los Angeles after previously deciding not to play because of business reasons. Also lending additional class to the event was the last minute entry of ex-national open title holder, Lawson Little, who reported an ailing shoulder had responded to treatment.

Hogan automatically shared co-favoritism in spite of a poor showing in the recent Bing Crosby tournament at Pebble Beach, where he shot three rounds in the high 70s.

Leading School Teams Will Hook Up Tonight

William "Huck" Miers and Richard "Dick" McElwee will officiate in the contest between Keyser High School's undefeated quint and Fort Hill's Sentinels on the Keyser High School court at 8 o'clock.

Preparing for a capacity crowd, Keyser High School announced last night that 200 reserved seats will go on sale at the door tonight. Reservations may be made in advance by telephoning the high school. 100 seats are in the bleachers and a like number are chairs around the gymnasium floor.

Four stitches were required to close the wound and Blamer wore a patch over his swollen left eye yesterday. If he fails to start, Marvin Lee will take his place.

The Catamounts will conclude their trip after their game with Bluefield College Friday at Bluefield. The game originally set for Saturday with Shenandoah College at Dayton, Va., has been cancelled.

Jimmie Sheckard Dies Of Injuries

Former Cub Was Struck By Automobile Sunday

LANCASTER, Pa., Jan. 15 (AP) — Struck by an automobile, James Tilden (Jimmy) Sheckard of the famous Chicago Cub "S" outfield died today at the age of 68.

Jimmy, who spent 14 years in the big leagues after the turn of the century, suffered head injuries Sunday night when hit while walking along a highway to his job as attendant at a gasoline service station.

The Rev. Robert J. Pilgrim of Lancaster, named by State Policeman C. E. Simmons as driver of the car, took Sheckard to a hospital. No charges were filed.

Sheckard, in ill health for a year, played with the National League Chicago Cubs from 1906 to 1910, roving the outfield with Jimmy Slagle and Frank Schulte in the great "S" which combined with the immortal Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance machine. With Pitcher Mordecai Brown, they gave the Cubs world championships in 1907 and 1908.

One of the greatest left fielders of his day, Sheckard twice led the National League in fielding, piling up a .964 average for the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1902 and .986 for Chicago in 1906.

Tops as a leadoff man, Jimmy established a National League mark in 1911 by drawing 147 bases on balls, just one short of Babe Ruth's record of 1920 and 23 less than Ruth's 1923 major league performance.

Bankers Elect "Jock"

Attention Taxpayers!

Is it fair that Charles N. Wilkinson can vote to exempt the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, his employer, from approximately $40,000 per year in taxes, amounting to $400,000.00 in a ten year period?

Why should Charles N. Wilkinson, member of the Board of County Commissioners of Allegany County, take any part or vote upon the application of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company for exemption from taxation for a period of ten years on its machinery located in the City of Cumberland? Since Mr. Wilkinson is an employee of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, we feel he is not qualified to act in the matter of the exemption from taxes when the proposal is voted on by the Allegany County Commissioners.

It is our opinion that in a case of this nature, it would be more applicable if Mr. Wilkinson would decline his vote for the application of the Kelly-Springfield's exemption. If this is not to Mr. Wilkinson's liking, why doesn't he exempt all companies with machinery in the county from taxation?

We know other companies, at this particular time, are enjoying the privilege of exemption from taxes on machinery. But, we feel that these special privileges have to be eliminated, and may as well begin now.

What do you think, Mr. Wilkinson?

• THE SAME TIRE YOU BUY AT WARDS

Last year...
RIVERSIDES WON
404 of 525 Auto Races!

YES . . . THE SAME TIRES YOU BUY IN WARDS STORES WON 77% OF ALL RECORDED RACES, LAST YEAR!

Think of it . . . the WINNERS of 3 out of 4 recorded races in 1946 chose Riversides. Yes, auto-race drivers who risk their lives on their tires . . . who can choose any tires, deliberately buy regular "stock" Riversides right in Wards Stores. Not specially built tires, mind you, but the very same tires that YOU buy for your car! Here is ample reason why you should buy Riversides . . . Riversides for more miles of greater safety!

Attention Taxpayers!

Is it fair that Charles N. Wilkinson can vote to exempt the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, his employer, from approximately $40,000 per year in taxes, amounting to $400,000.00 in a ten year period?

Why should Charles N. Wilkinson, member of the Board of County Commissioners of Allegany County, take any part or vote upon the application of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company for exemption from taxation for a period of ten years on its machinery located in the City of Cumberland? Since Mr. Wilkinson is an employee of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, we feel he is not qualified to act in the matter of the exemption from taxes when the proposal is voted on by the Allegany County Commissioners.

It is our opinion that in a case of this nature, it would be more applicable if Mr. Wilkinson would decline his vote for the application of the Kelly-Springfield's exemption. If this is not to Mr. Wilkinson's liking, why doesn't he exempt all companies with machinery in the county from taxation?

We know other companies, at this particular time, are enjoying the privilege of exemption from taxes on machinery. But, we feel that these special privileges have to be eliminated, and may as well begin now.

What do you think, Mr. Wilkinson?

Radio in Review

By JOHN CROSBY

Atom Bombs On Manhattan Again

The opening of the next war, if such a disaster should befall, is already becoming a fixed concept in the popular mind. There has been a good deal of imaginative literature written about it and there will be a lot more. The pattern is already well established and creative writers appear to take it for granted that it can't happen any other way.

John Crosby

I imagine almost everyone is fairly familiar with the pattern. First there is the rupture in diplomatic relations with the other Great Power which is seldom if ever specified. Then come the quivers of national uncertainty, the commentators on the radio with their speculations, and the first excited flash that something high in the heavens, travelling at great speed, is headed for New York. The first bomb is always aimed squarely at New York, never any other city, and hits it squarely on the lower tip where most of the skyscrapers are concentrated.

After that comes a babble of horror-stricken radio reports ("The destruction is unbelievable! The Empire State Building lying on its side . . ."); a couple of vignettes on the street ("What can have happened; What could have caused it?" and then, inevitably, there is a telephone operator from Washington trying and failing to raise New York. ("My God, Mamie, I been trying for an hour! Washington calling New York! Washington calling New York! Something terrible must have happened, Mamie." . . .) The music blots out Mamie and then the narrator speaks up in a voice of doom: "Yes, something terrible has happened, Mamie . . ."

This formula was followed without any great deviation in the first of an admirable series of broadcasts on the implication of atomic energy undertaken by WMCA in New York (Fridays 9:30 p. m.) one of the most vigorous of the nation's independent stations. This dramatization was a heavyweight affair, thoroughly frightening and also, I'm afraid, just a little routine—especially that Washington telephone operator.

After the drama ended, Dr. Philip Morrison, who helped assemble the Hiroshima bomb at Tinian and later evaluated the damage for the War Department at Hiroshima, spoke of the futility of attempting or even considering defense against atomic bombs. The penalty for a single failure, he pointed out, was disaster, particularly since far more powerful bombs than that used at Hiroshima had subsequently been developed. During the next few weeks, WMCA will present other aspects of the problem, including secrets of the bomb, the length of time it will take other nation's to make the bomb, and peacetime uses of atomic energy.

Without attempting to belittle in any way the splendid purposes of this series of broadcasts, or of any of the other imaginative literature designed to keep the American public aware of the dangers of atom warfare, I'd like to point out that forecasts of any war are always faulty and that preconceived ideas are almost uniformly dead wrong.

As far back as 1926, General Giulio Douhet, Mussolini's first Under Secretary for Air, put forth a theory of mass air warfare which was to hold a morbid fascination for popular fiction writers for two decades and provided countless Sunday feature writers with spine-chilling articles.

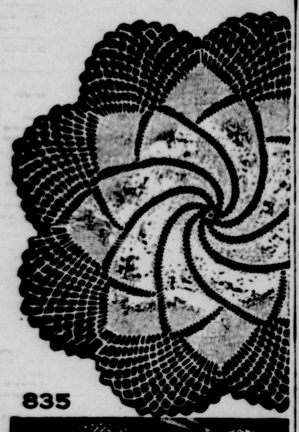

Douhet believed that victory could be won by mass bombings on key cities which would raise carnage among civilians, and paralyze the cities by destruction of key points such as reservoirs, power plants and transportation. It would all be over in forty-eight hours.

Douhet's theory made a far greater impression on Europeans than on our own ocean-protected citizenry and its impact had much to do with the building of the Luftwaffe. It undoubtedly did much to influence Neville Chamberlain in the signing of the Munich pact. Actually, as events proved, the theory was full of holes. Cities and nations proved far more resistant to air warfare than Douhet had imagined. Come to think of it, none of the pre-World War II predictions came very close to the mark and many of them turned out to be utterly ridiculous.

About the only certain thing you can say about the next war is that it will be frightful but the exact shape of its frightfulness is almost impossible to foretell. I should say the only weakness in an otherwise admirable broadcast was the standardized version of the opening shot in that war. Manhattan's towering buildings are an inviting target for the creative writer but if the Empire State Building gets knocked down too often, the listener or reader will become accustomed to the idea and then bored by it. That's hardly the idea.

Rent Ceilings To Be Subject For Debate On Radio

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—Now its the rent that you pay that is coming up for radio debate. It will be in the Thursday night America's Town Meeting on ABC at 8:30 and will be questioned in this manner: "Should Rent Ceilings Be Lifted?"

Rep. Albert Gore of Tenneessee is to take one side of the question and Herbert U. Nelson, real estate official, the other. There will be two interrogators, R. J. Thomas of CIO and Douglas Whitlock, attorney.

Edward G. Robinson, becoming a rather frequent radio guest star lately, is slated for another in the Music Hall on NBC at 9. . . . An hour later, another movie-ite, Anne Baxter, is to show up in the Magazine Theater of CBS. She will do an adaptation of "Once In a Blue Moon."

Licia Albanese, formerly the regular singer in this program, will return as a guest of the Alfredo Antonini concert of MBS at 9:30. Another visitor is to be Robert Weede, operatic baritone. . . . Guesting, too, on MBS is to be Frances Langford at 8. Her vehicle is to be Mark Warnow's Soundoff, now a Hollywood produced broadcast.

After a week's lapse because of a world forum broadcast, the Story of Song resumes on NBC at 11:30. The program, as conducted by Frank Black, will be devoted for a second time to Richard Wagner's "Ring of Nibelung."

Radio in Review

By JOHN CROSBY

Atom Bombs On Manhattan Again

The opening of the next war, if such a disaster should befall, is already becoming a fixed concept in the popular mind. There has been a good deal of imaginative literature written about it and there will be a lot more. The pattern is already well established and creative writers appear to take it for granted that it can't happen any other way.

John Crosby

I imagine almost everyone is fairly familiar with the pattern. First there is the rupture in diplomatic relations with the other Great Power which is seldom if ever specified. Then come the quivers of national uncertainty, the commentators on the radio with their speculations, and the first excited flash that something high in the heavens, travelling at great speed, is headed for New York. The first bomb is always aimed squarely at New York, never any other city, and hits it squarely on the lower tip where most of the skyscrapers are concentrated.

After that comes a babble of horror-stricken radio reports ("The destruction is unbelievable! The Empire State Building lying on its side . . ."); a couple of vignettes on the street ("What can have happened; What could have caused it?" and then, inevitably, there is a telephone operator from Washington trying and failing to raise New York. ("My God, Mamie, I been trying for an hour! Washington calling New York! Washington calling New York! Something terrible must have happened, Mamie." . . .) The music blots out Mamie and then the narrator speaks up in a voice of doom: "Yes, something terrible has happened, Mamie . . ."

This formula was followed without any great deviation in the first of an admirable series of broadcasts on the implication of atomic energy undertaken by WMCA in New York (Fridays 9:30 p. m.) one of the most vigorous of the nation's independent stations. This dramatization was a heavyweight affair, thoroughly frightening and also, I'm afraid, just a little routine—especially that Washington telephone operator.

After the drama ended, Dr. Philip Morrison, who helped assemble the Hiroshima bomb at Tinian and later evaluated the damage for the War Department at Hiroshima, spoke of the futility of attempting or even considering defense against atomic bombs. The penalty for a single failure, he pointed out, was disaster, particularly since far more powerful bombs than that used at Hiroshima had subsequently been developed. During the next few weeks, WMCA will present other aspects of the problem, including secrets of the bomb, the length of time it will take other nation's to make the bomb, and peacetime uses of atomic energy.

Without attempting to belittle in any way the splendid purposes of this series of broadcasts, or of any of the other imaginative literature designed to keep the American public aware of the dangers of atom warfare, I'd like to point out that forecasts of any war are always faulty and that preconceived ideas are almost uniformly dead wrong.

As far back as 1926, General Giulio Douhet, Mussolini's first Under Secretary for Air, put forth a theory of mass air warfare which was to hold a morbid fascination for popular fiction writers for two decades and provided countless Sunday feature writers with spine-chilling articles.

Douhet believed that victory could be won by mass bombings on key cities which would raise carnage among civilians, and paralyze the cities by destruction of key points such as reservoirs, power plants and transportation. It would all be over in forty-eight hours.

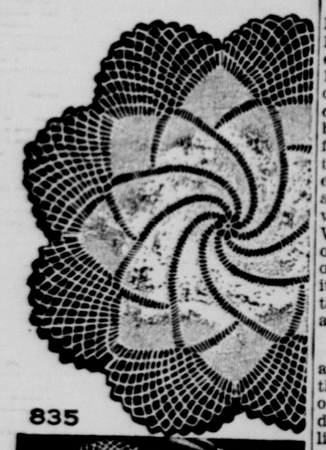

Douhet's theory made a far greater impression on Europeans than on our own ocean-protected citizenry and its impact had much to do with the building of the Luftwaffe. It undoubtedly did much to influence Neville Chamberlain in the signing of the Munich pact. Actually, as events proved, the theory was full of holes. Cities and nations proved far more resistant to air warfare than Douhet had imagined. Come to think of it, none of the pre-World War II predictions came very close to the mark and many of them turned out to be utterly ridiculous.

About the only certain thing you can say about the next war is that it will be frightful but the exact shape of its frightfulness is almost impossible to foretell. I should say the only weakness in an otherwise admirable broadcast was the standardized version of the opening shot in that war. Manhattan's towering buildings are an inviting target for the creative writer but if the Empire State Building gets knocked down too often, the listener or reader will become accustomed to the idea and then bored by it. That's hardly the idea.

"Now that you carried me over the threshold, carry me right out again."

Ways For County To Boost Revenue Are Considered

Legislators Discuss Slot Machine Tax

Various methods of raising additional revenues for Allegany County for the fiscal year 1947-48 were discussed Tuesday at an executive meeting of State Senator Robert B. Kimble and the Allegany County Delegation, William H. Geppert, a member of the House of Delegates, said last night.

Geppert mentioned six sources of revenue that were considered and said that practically every one has been successfully employed in other counties of the state.

Increased Administrative Cost

The senator and the delegation recognize the need for increased revenues in this county because of the added cost of administration of the county government, including the school system, Geppert said, and hope to be able to do something about it.

Among the methods considered at the meeting were:

1. The possibility of increasing the real estate tax rate.
2. Increasing the amusement tax.
3. Tax on all gaming devices.
4. The possibility of a wholesale liquor dispensary operated by the county.
5. Tax on all alcoholic beverages.
6. Tax on alcoholic beverage licenses.

Numerous other forms of raising revenue also were considered at the meeting, according to Geppert, who said all methods were discussed generally. He said there were no expressions of opinion as to which of the methods was preferable, and added that there will be further discussions of the problem in the near future before any decision is reached.

Will Meet With Board

The subject, he said, is scheduled to be considered at 10 a. m. Wednesday, January 22, when members of the Board of County Commissioners are scheduled to meet with the delegation at Annapolis.

Geppert explained that if the suggestion of a wholesale liquor dispensary operated by the county should be enacted into law, it would mean that the county would be going into the liquor business and would resell liquor to retail outlets.

Such a law has been in effect in Montgomery County for several years, he added, and that county has realized almost as much as $400,000 a year as revenue.

The suggestion to tax gaming devices as a method of increasing revenue would mean placing of a tax on tip boards, slot machines and all other devices for gaming.

Elks To Initiate Bedford's Members

Degree Team To Go To Pennsylvania

The degree team of Cumberland Lodge No. 63, B.P.O. Elks, has been invited to conduct the initiation of upwards of 100 members of Bedford Lodge No. 1707 on the night of Wednesday, February 12, Edwin A. Davidson, exalted ruler of the Bedford lodge, said last night.

Davidson said the glee club of the Cumberland lodge also has been invited to participate in the program, to be known as Cumberland night, and added that Cumberland Elks may use one or more buses to make the trip to Bedford.

Officers of the Bedford lodge will entertain the Cumberland degree team at dinner at the Arandale Hotel, operated by the Elks, at 6:30 p. m. and initiation of the grand exalted ruler's class for peace will follow in the Bedford High School auditorium. After the initiation a dance will be held at Arandale Hotel.

The Bedford lodge was organized June 20 with four men and now has grown to a membership of 175, Davidson said. The initiation of the new members next month, the anniversary of the founding of the Elks order, will boost the membership close to be the 300 mark.

Three Indictments Placed On Docket

Three indictments returned by the January term Grand Jury were entered on the criminal dockets yesterday, one for receiving stolen goods.

Floyd Bertery Mitchell, Ridgeley, W. Va., will be tried next week on charges of receiving stolen goods. He allegedly accepted a pistol from three Pennsylvania youths, and offered to sell it for them.

Police said the three youths were arrested last month and confessed to a series of petty robberies in and near Bedford, Pa.

The other indictments were on paternity charges and were docketed against Claude Kimmell, Jr., and Herman Raley. Both are out on bond, while Mitchell is being held in County Jail, as his bond was revoked yesterday.

Permit Is Granted For Super-Market

John Stewart and Owen Hitchins secured a building permit in the city engineer's office yesterday to construct a one-story concrete block building, to measure 50 by 139 feet, at 306-308-310 North Centre street on the old Glisan garage property, at an estimated cost of $15,000.

The building, which will house a new American Stores super-market, will have a concrete footer foundation 24 by 12 inches deep, and the walls will have 8 by 16-inch pilasters on a 12-foot center on the outside. The roof will be of built-up slag.

J. S. Cook and Son are the contractors, and plans are furnished by the American Stores Corporation and Cook.

Held For Sheriff

A man identified as George Harvey, 135 Bedford street, was taken into custody at 11 p. m. Tuesday night and ordered held for Sheriff Edward Muir. He was taken to the County Jail yesterday.

Child Study Group Conference Opens Today At 10 A. M.

4 Counties To Send Visitors To Session

A four-county conference dealing with child study, will open today and continue through Saturday noon, at Frostburg State Teachers College, under the direction of Dr. Daniel Prescott, of the University of Chicago.

Approximately 30 persons, representing school supervisors, high school principals, and leaders of child study groups will attend from Allegany, Garrett, Washington and Frederick counties.

Miss Compton To Speak

The program, which is under the direction of the State Department of Education, is being planned by Miss Grace Alder, state supervisor of education, and will be opened by Miss Lillian Compton, president of Frostburg State Teachers College.

A two-hour lecture will follow the opening speach by Miss Compton and then the group will devote the remainder of the meetings, which will be held in the morning and afternoon, to the processing of case studies.

The conference was described by Miss Compton as the winter meeting in the second year of study in the child program. The program was begun last year to enable educators, through a direct study of selected children, to plan a course more beneficial to students.

Last year three meetings were held at each of the state's teachers' colleges in Frostburg, Salisbury, Towson and Bowie, and the same schedule is being planned this year.

Following the afternoon session today, visitors to the conference, along with members of the college faculty will be entertained at a social tea in the dining room of the college, Miss Compton said.

Will End Saturday

The morning lecture will be given by an assistant of Dr. Prescott, and intermediate lectures may be given through the conference. The meeting is scheduled to end Saturday at 1 p. m.

Group leaders attending the conference will hold a series of meetings with teachers involved in the program in their respective counties shortly after they return, Miss Compton explained.

From Allegany County seven high school principals are expected to attend, along with the elementary supervisors and Charles L. Kopp, school superintendent, and Richard Rizer, assistant superintendent.

Hitchins Is Named To Advisory Body

Owen E. Hitchins, The Dingle, has been appointed by Gov. William Preston Lane to an advisory committee to aid the Board of Revenue Estimates in working out a state tax program for the next biennium, The News learned yesterday.

The governor is expected to announce today names of other Maryland residents who will serve on the committee.

Hitchins, a member of the Sherbow Commission and the State Tax Commission, was asked by Gov. Lane Tuesday to serve on the committee which will assist the Board of Revenue Estimates in the problems involved in raising additional revenue. The committee will meet at the call of the board.

Gov. Lane, in his inaugural address, told the Legislature that budget requests from state departments had increased $18,000,000 above the present budget. If the Sherbow Commission plan for distribution of $13,000,000 annually to counties and municipalities is enacted, the governor said that much more also would be needed.

Four Cars, PE Bus Are Involved In Accident That Delays Traffic

A four car-bus accident tied traffic for several minutes last night at 7:14 o'clock on the corner of Baltimore and South Mechanic streets, and caused considerable damage to the bus and two of the cars involved.

A Potomac Edison bus, headed for Pennsylvania avenue made a right turn from Baltimore street, as the red light changed, and was crowded to the left side of the street by a car driven by Rev. Kenneth Harington, RFD 5, city, which was also turning down the street, Officer E. M. Powell said.

The bus crashed against a car parked beside a red line, and shoved it against a second car, also parked along the illegal space, which in turn shoved a third automobile against the rear of a fourth.

The last two cars were legally parked, Officer Powell declared, and the other two were parked while he was making the rounds on the upper end of Baltimore street, he added.

Five passengers on the bus were transferred to a "special" while a mechanic repaired a damaged clutch in the PE vehicle. The first car, bearing an Ohio license, but described as belonging to Arthur Terabassi, Chicago, Ill., was damaged on both rear and the left front fenders besides the trunk door. Several dents were also noted along both of back doors as a result of the impact, Officer Powell asserted.

The trunk door of the second car, bearing a West Virginia license was twisted and the rear fender damaged. It belongs to Harding Tysinger, Wiley Ford, who said he was parked at the rear door of the Star Restaurant to pick up garbage, Powell said.

The other two cars were not damaged, the officer declared, but the bumpers were locked together, when they were shoved by the impact. The front wheels of the Ohio car were forced up on the pavement when the bus struck it, Officer Powell said.

No charges were placed against any of the drivers, with the exception of the two illegal parking tickets, the officer said. Approximately 50 persons gathered on the corner to see the damaged vehicles and it was several minutes before a traffic lane could be opened.

Pulp Mill Worker Awarded 70 Days Disability Time

Jury Fails To Find Permanent Injuries

A Circuit Court jury yesterday awarded Aloysis E. Fair, Midland, half of a disability time he claimed from the State Industrial Accident Commission, but ruled out a claim for permanent disability.

Fair, who was represented by Milton Gerson and Harold E. Naughton, declared he lost 141 days work, and suffered permanent injury to his left eye while at work in the West Virginia Pulp and Paper plant, Luke, September 5, 1945.

Went To Dispensary

The plaintiff's attorney's stated that Fair went to the dispensary at the plant when "something blew into his eye," and Dr. Thomas Bess, Keyser, examined him there. Dr. Bess noted that the eye was bloodshot but could find nothing in it and gave Fair a solution to apply to his eye.

Horace P. Whitworth, company attorney, called attention to the fact that the Accident Commission, composed of qualified men, denied Fair the compensation after hearing all the evidence, and added that no new evidence was presented.

The claimant's attorney pointed out that Fair was on the job when the trouble started, but Dr. Bess failed to observe anything wrong with the eye and that later the claimant was forced to undergo hospitalization and treatment which definitely proves he lost time and also suffered pain as a result of the injury that originated at the plant.

The jury returned a positive finding on three of four counts in the case, awarding Fair 70 days disability but ruled out the possibility of a permanent injury.

Chief Judge William A. Huster was on the bench.

The claimant, in her petition, said that on August 5, 1946, she was knocked prostrate on the cement floor of the super-market when a handcart from the warehouse struck her with great force. Her right arm and elbow were permanently injured, she said.

The petitioner was represented by Estel C. Kelly. The company was represented by the firm of Capper and Jenkins.

Attorneys announced today that the case brought by John M. Melius against Daniel F. McMullen, as trustee, and the F. W. Woolworth Company, has been removed. The case was scheduled to the tried this week. Kelly represents Melius in the matter, John M. Carskaden represents McMullen and the company is represented by Capper and Jenkins.

Hearing Is Held On Application For Bus Service

A nine-hour hearing was held yesterday in the grand jury room of the Post Office Building before a joint board of the Interstate Commerce Commission on the application of Robert Lee Emery, Jr., Martinsburg, W. Va., owner of Emery's Motor Coach Lines, to provide both through and local schedules connecting Morgantown, W. Va., Oakland and all intermediate points directly to Cumberland.

The board consisted of Lawrence B. Dunn, Washington, D. C., federal hearing examiner, and Mortimer W. Smith, Charleston, representing the West Virginia Public Service Commission.

The hearing was completed at 7 p. m. and the case retired until a transcript of the testimony is prepared and the joint board makes its report to the ICC. A decision is not expected for at least six weeks.

If the application is granted, Emery said, he plans to operate new and modern motor coaches with fares as low as 50% less than the present existing fares of the Osgood Bus Line now serving Oakland and Morgantown.

Eleven Witnesses Testify

Eleven witnesses appeared in behalf of the applicant, and numerous petitions with more than 200 signers testifying their desire for and support of such service were presented. Emery said he would operate a through coach from Morgantown via Cumberland to either Washington, D. C., or Leesburg, Va., the eastern end of the line, for a distance of 249 miles without charge, if the application is granted.

Gordon Hirtle, executive secretary of the Morgantown Chamber of Commerce, appeared at the hearing but did not support either bus line. Frank P. Corbin, Morgantown, owner of the Osgood Bus Line, testified that his coaches have been operating between Morgantown and Oakland for nine years with no complaints as to service, and stated that the route would not support two bus lines.

C. S. Booser, Harrisburg, Pa., attorney for the Blue Ridge Transportation Company, who also appeared to protest granting the application, stated that the proposed route is already adequately serviced over Blue Ridge lines via Uniontown, Pa.

Cites Shopping Radius

Emery stated that if a certificate were granted, the proposed service would extend the shopping radius of Cumberland to cover Oakland and the surrounding area in Garrett county. He said that he would operate buses to provide connecting schedules with the new Baltimore and Ohio Railroad passenger train, "The Cincinnatian," which operates from Baltimore to Cincinnati through Keyser, W. Va.

The application calls for extension of present operations from Keyser over Routes 220, 50, 42 and Maryland Route 38 and West Virginia Route 7, serving Elk Garden, Kitzmiller, Deer Park, Oakland, Terra Alta, Kingwood and Morgantown, as well as service between Deer Park and Westernport via Maryland Route 135, serving Swanton, Bloomington and Luke.

Temporary extension of Osgood Line operations from Deer Park to Allegany Front expires March 1, it was stated.

Among those who gave testimony favoring the application were five Oakland residents, Mayor A. G. Hesen, H. L. Bittner, Paul Naylor, Prentis Debery, a member of the Oakland City Council; and Walter W. Dawson, prosecuting attorney for Garrett county; and Mayor John C. Freeland and Walter Mott of Keyser.

Attorneys for Emery were George M. Beltzhoover, Jr., Charles Town, W. Va., and James E. Wilson of the law firm of Roberts and McInnis, Washington, D. C. Corbin, who is an attorney, appeared without counsel.

Authorities Seek Two Boys Missing For Long Time

Trail Of One Youth Leads To Mississippi

Local authorities are continuing their efforts to locate two teenage boys who left their homes here in September and October, State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris said yesterday.

One of the youths is Robert P. Capaldi, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Capaldi, 115 Frederick street, who has been missing since October 14.

The other is William Edward Baker, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Baker, 514 Baltimore avenue, who disappeared September 26, 1946.

Harris said authorities came within two days of locating Capaldi last month when it was learned he was working on a farm in Mississippi, but when Mississippi officials reached the farm, the youth had been gone for two days.

Parents of the Baker boy appeared before the County Commssioners Tuesday to request their aid in locating the youth, and yesterday Commissioner C. N. (Jerry) Wilkinson conferred with State's Attorney Harris regarding steps that could be taken to press the search.

Harris said yesterday afternoon that circulars describing the boy will be sent to the 48 states and the District of Columbia in a further effort to locate him. It was reported he intended to head for the Pacific Coast when he left home.

The Baker boy was described as being five feet eight inches tall and weighing 135 pounds. He has brown eyes, dark complexion and straight dark brown hair.

The Capaldi boy is five feet four inches tall and weighs about 100 pounds. He has blond hair, fair complexion and a cauliflower ear on the left side, authorities said.

Three Youths Held On Theft Charges

Three youths, who escaped from a Pittsburgh, Pa., Industrial School for boys, Sunday night, and who police say stole a lady's pocketbook Monday in a Greensburg, Pa., theater, were arrested here early yesterday morning.

Police said the boys, were apprehended at 12:35 a. m. in the Queen City Railroad station when a railroad policeman became suspicious of them as they purchased tickets to travel to Fairmont, W. Va.

The boys, were identified as Arthur Miller, 13, Uniontown, Pa.; John Mesko, Jr., 11, Magnolia, Ohio, and Jerry Downey, 11, McKeesport, Pa. Juvinal officers have already taken Mesco and Downey back to their homes, but Miller was being held in the city jail last night.

The three youths, according to police, admitted breaking out of the industrial school Sunday night and thumbing a ride to Greensburg, where they attended a show and stole a pocketbook in the theater. Miller was carrying $15 when they were arrested, police said.

One officer declared that the boys thumbed a ride toward Cumberland from Greensburg, and were picked up by three Columbus, Ohio, youths, who were also arrested here Tuesday night on charges of stealing an automobile.

Police said they had not learned why the three boys were committed to the industrial school originally, nor could they give any reason why the boys were buying tickets to Fairmont. One officer declared he didn't think they knew where they were going, "just going."

Mesko was carrying a toy pistol and the other two youths had flashlights with them, police declared. The pistol, however, was described as too small, to be used as an imitation for a real gun.

The industrial school was notified of the apprehension of the three youths, shortly after they were brought to police headquarters, but said they would be unable to verify the escape until later in the morning, police stated.

Each youth will be returned to the juvenile authorities of his home town, since it is required that they be re-committed to the industrial school, police explained.

The three Ohio youths, who were arrested Tuesday night, admitted yesterday that they had stolen the car they were riding in, after they first declared it belonged to one of the boys father, State Trooper William Baker, who made the arrest, said. They are being held in County Jail awaiting the arrival of Columbia police.

Emphasis is to be placed in the next few months upon a program of recruiting, Capt. Powell declared, in order to bring his company and Company C, commanded by Capt. Robert Matlick, up to normal strength.

Four men enlisted in Headquarters Company last night, including Lino J. Franchi, Armando Franchi, Carl Garland Stierstorfer and Paul J. Jenkins.

Dairies And Union Reach Agreement On New Contract

Inside Workers Get 15 Cent Wage Boost

The threat of a strike of workers of five Cumberland area dairies was averted early last night when the negotiating committee of Local 924, Dairy Workers Union, and managers of the Queen City, Farmers, Liberty, Mason and Llewellyn dairies reached an agreement on a new contract.

The settlement was announced by James Crockett, commissioner of conciliation, at 9:30 p. m. at a joint meeting in the Fort Cumberland Hotel.

Crockett said the agreement provided a 15 cent overall wage increase for inside employees of the five dairies. The union withdrew a request for a $1 daily increase in the basic salary of drivers-salesmen, he added.

The increase is retroactive to January 1 and the contract agreed upon at last night's meeting will be effective until December 31, 1947.

Specific rates agreed upon call for $1 an hour for pasteurizers and ice cream makers, 90 cents an hour for all other inside workers and new inside workers will be paid 80 cents per hour for the first 90 days and will then receive 90 cents an hour.

Representing the dairies at the session were Edgar A. Dashiell, Queen City Dairy, Inc.; J. H. Laher, Liberty Milk Company; B. A. Mason, Mason Dairy; Curtis Cox, Farmers Dairy, and the Llewellyn Dairy.

Jack F. Moore, president; J. F. Garlitz, vice president, E. N. Screen, vice president, and A. W. Beeghly, secretary, represented the union. Other members of the negotiating committee were Reggie Wolfe, A. W. Haycock, Eugene Sipes, J. T. Fisher, G. E. Eversole, Harry Bell and Robert Lippold.

Liquor Rationing To End In West Va.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 15 (AP)—The State Liquor Control Commission announced today that rationing would be lifted on all products sold by its state stores effective with their opening at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

The commission said it apparently had sufficient stocks on hand to assure there would be no further restrictions on the sale of alcoholic goods.

"We are lifting rationing until there's another war, and we hope there's never another war," said Commissioner Charles Green.

Controls were lifted once before since the war ended, but West Virginia had to return to the two-fifths-a-month system because supplies became exhausted.

Rationing was lifted again last December 31 for the duration of the holidays, then was restored on January 2.

During the latter months of the system, various brands have been excluded from the ration list.

Green explained that some bonded whisky and all straight and Scotch liquors would continue to be scarce.

Emery Employes Are Granted Pay Increase

The approximately 25 employes of the Cumberland division of Emery's Motor Coach Lines have been granted a general wage increase amounting to about 8 per cent, and additional safety bonuses have been offered to the 17 drivers of the division for the coming year, according to Robert Lee Emery, Jr., owner.

Emery estimated payrolls will increase by about $500 monthly because of the wage hike and the bonus offer. Both were effective January 1. He said a $500 cash bonus has been posted in which drivers with no chargeable accidents will share on a monthly basis during the year, in addition to the previous monthly safety bonus.

Route 4 Youth Hurt In Motorcycle Mishap

Ways For County To Boost Revenue Are Considered

Legislators Discuss Slot Machine Tax

Various methods of raising additional revenues for Allegany County for the fiscal year 1947-48 were discussed Tuesday at an executive meeting of State Senator Robert B. Kimble and the Allegany County Delegation, William H. Geppert, a member of the House of Delegates, said last night.

Geppert mentioned six sources of revenue that were considered and said that practically every one has been successfully employed in other counties of the state.

Increased Administrative Cost

The senator and the delegation recognize the need for increased revenues in this county because of the added cost of administration of the county government, including the school system, Geppert said, and hope to be able to do something about it.

Among the methods considered at the meeting were:

1. The possibility of increasing the real estate tax rate.
2. Increasing the amusement tax.
3. Tax on all gaming devices.
4. The possibility of a wholesale liquor dispensary operated by the county.
5. Tax on all alcoholic beverages.
6. Tax on alcoholic beverage licenses.

Numerous other forms of raising revenue also were considered at the meeting, according to Geppert, who said all methods were discussed generally. He said there were no expressions of opinion as to which of the methods was preferable, and added that there will be further discussions of the problem in the near future before any decision is reached.

Will Meet With Board

The subject, he said, is scheduled to be considered at 10 a. m. Wednesday, January 22, when members of the Board of County Commissioners are scheduled to meet with the delegation at Annapolis.

Geppert explained that if the suggestion of a wholesale liquor dispensary operated by the county should be enacted into law, it would mean that the county would be going into the liquor business and would resell liquor to retail outlets.

Such a law has been in effect in Montgomery County for several years, he added, and that county has realized almost as much as $400,000 a year as revenue.

The suggestion to tax gaming devices as a method of increasing revenue would mean placing of a tax on tip boards, slot machines and all other devices for gaming.

The building, which will house a new American Stores super-market, will have a concrete footer foundation 24 by 12 inches deep, and the walls will have 8 by 16-inch pilasters on a 12-foot center on the outside. The roof will be of built-up slag.

Child Study Group Conference Opens Today At 10 A. M.

4 Counties To Send Visitors To Session

A four-county conference dealing with child study, will open today and continue through Saturday noon, at Frostburg State Teachers College, under the direction of Dr. Daniel Prescott, of the University of Chicago.

Approximately 30 persons, representing school supervisors, high school principals, and leaders of child study groups will attend from Allegany, Garrett, Washington and Frederick counties.

Miss Compton To Speak

The program, which is under the direction of the State Department of Education, is being planned by Miss Grace Alder, state supervisor of education, and will be opened by Miss Lillian Compton, president of Frostburg State Teachers College.

A two-hour lecture will follow the opening speach by Miss Compton and then the group will devote the remainder of the meetings, which will be held in the morning and afternoon, to the processing of case studies.

The conference was described by Miss Compton as the winter meeting in the second year of study in the child program. The program was begun last year to enable educators, through a direct study of selected children, to plan a course more beneficial to students.

Last year three meetings were held at each of the state's teachers' colleges in Frostburg, Salisbury, Towson and Bowie, and the same schedule is being planned this year.

Following the afternoon session today, visitors to the conference, along with members of the college faculty will be entertained at a social tea in the dining room of the college, Miss Compton said.

Will End Saturday

The morning lecture will be given by an assistant of Dr. Prescott, and intermediate lectures may be given through the conference. The meeting is scheduled to end Saturday at 1 p. m.

Group leaders attending the conference will hold a series of meetings with teachers involved in the program in their respective counties shortly after they return, Miss Compton explained.

From Allegany County seven high school principals are expected to attend, along with the elementary supervisors and Charles L. Kopp, school superintendent, and Richard Rizer, assistant superintendent.

Four Cars, PE Bus Are Involved In Accident That Delays Traffic

A four car-bus accident tied traffic for several minutes last night at 7:14 o'clock on the corner of Baltimore and South Mechanic streets, and caused considerable damage to the bus and two of the cars involved.

A Potomac Edison bus, headed for Pennsylvania avenue made a right turn from Baltimore street, as the red light changed, and was crowded to the left side of the street by a car driven by Rev. Kenneth Harington, RFD 5, city, which was also turning down the street, Officer E. M. Powell said.

The bus crashed against a car parked beside a red line, and shoved it against a second car, also parked along the illegal space, which in turn shoved a third automobile against the rear of a fourth.

The last two cars were legally parked, Officer Powell declared, and the other two were parked while he was making the rounds on the upper end of Baltimore street, he added.

Five passengers on the bus were transferred to a "special" while a mechanic repaired a damaged clutch in the PE vehicle. The first car, bearing an Ohio license, but described as belonging to Arthur Terabassi, Chicago, Ill., was damaged on both rear and the left front fenders besides the trunk door. Several dents were also noted along both of back doors as a result of the impact, Officer Powell asserted.

The trunk door of the second car, bearing a West Virginia license was twisted and the rear fender damaged. It belongs to Harding Tysinger, Wiley Ford, who said he was parked at the rear door of the Star Restaurant to pick up garbage, Powell said.

The other two cars were not damaged, the officer declared, but the bumpers were locked together, when they were shoved by the impact. The front wheels of the Ohio car were forced up on the pavement when the bus struck it, Officer Powell said.

No charges were placed against any of the drivers, with the exception of the two illegal parking tickets, the officer said. Approximately 50 persons gathered on the corner to see the damaged vehicles and it was several minutes before a traffic lane could be opened.

Pulp Mill Worker Awarded 70 Days Disability Time

Jury Fails To Find Permanent Injuries

A Circuit Court jury yesterday awarded Aloysis E. Fair, Midland, half of a disability time he claimed from the State Industrial Accident Commission, but ruled out a claim for permanent disability.

Fair, who was represented by Milton Gerson and Harold E. Naughton, declared he lost 141 days work, and suffered permanent injury to his left eye while at work in the West Virginia Pulp and Paper plant, Luke, September 5, 1945.

Went To Dispensary

The plaintiff's attorney's stated that Fair went to the dispensary at the plant when "something blew into his eye," and Dr. Thomas Bess, Keyser, examined him there. Dr. Bess noted that the eye was bloodshot but could find nothing in it and gave Fair a solution to apply to his eye.

Horace P. Whitworth, company attorney, called attention to the fact that the Accident Commission, composed of qualified men, denied Fair the compensation after hearing all the evidence, and added that no new evidence was presented.

The claimant's attorney pointed out that Fair was on the job when the trouble started, but Dr. Bess failed to observe anything wrong with the eye and that later the claimant was forced to undergo hospitalization and treatment which definitely proves he lost time and also suffered pain as a result of the injury that originated at the plant.

The jury returned a positive finding on three of four counts in the case, awarding Fair 70 days disability but ruled out the possibility of a permanent injury.

Chief Judge William A. Huster was on the bench.

Hearing Is Held On Application For Bus Service

A nine-hour hearing was held yesterday in the grand jury room of the Post Office Building before a joint board of the Interstate Commerce Commission on the application of Robert Lee Emery, Jr., Martinsburg, W. Va., owner of Emery's Motor Coach Lines, to provide both through and local schedules connecting Morgantown, W. Va., Oakland and all intermediate points directly to Cumberland.

The board consisted of Lawrence B. Dunn, Washington, D. C., federal hearing examiner, and Mortimer W. Smith, Charleston, representing the West Virginia Public Service Commission.

The hearing was completed at 7 p. m. and the case retired until a transcript of the testimony is prepared and the joint board makes its report to the ICC. A decision is not expected for at least six weeks.

If the application is granted, Emery said, he plans to operate new and modern motor coaches with fares as low as 50% less than the present existing fares of the Osgood Bus Line now serving Oakland and Morgantown.

Eleven Witnesses Testify

Eleven witnesses appeared in behalf of the applicant, and numerous petitions with more than 200 signers testifying their desire for and support of such service were presented. Emery said he would operate a through coach from Morgantown via Cumberland to either Washington, D. C., or Leesburg, Va., the eastern end of the line, for a distance of 249 miles without charge, if the application is granted.

Gordon Hirtle, executive secretary of the Morgantown Chamber of Commerce, appeared at the hearing but did not support either bus line. Frank P. Corbin, Morgantown, owner of the Osgood Bus Line, testified that his coaches have been operating between Morgantown and Oakland for nine years with no complaints as to service, and stated that the route would not support two bus lines.

C. S. Booser, Harrisburg, Pa., attorney for the Blue Ridge Transportation Company, who also appeared to protest granting the application, stated that the proposed route is already adequately serviced over Blue Ridge lines via Uniontown, Pa.

Cites Shopping Radius

Emery stated that if a certificate were granted, the proposed service would extend the shopping radius of Cumberland to cover Oakland and the surrounding area in Garrett county. He said that he would operate buses to provide connecting schedules with the new Baltimore and Ohio Railroad passenger train, "The Cincinnatian," which operates from Baltimore to Cincinnati through Keyser, W. Va.

The application calls for extension of present operations from Keyser over Routes 220, 50, 42 and Maryland Route 38 and West Virginia Route 7, serving Elk Garden, Kitzmiller, Deer Park, Oakland, Terra Alta, Kingwood and Morgantown, as well as service between Deer Park and Westernport via Maryland Route 135, serving Swanton, Bloomington and Luke.

Temporary extension of Osgood Line operations from Deer Park to Allegany Front expires March 1, it was stated.

Among those who gave testimony favoring the application were five Oakland residents, Mayor A. G. Hesen, H. L. Bittner, Paul Naylor, Prentis Debery, a member of the Oakland City Council; and Walter W. Dawson, prosecuting attorney for Garrett county; and Mayor John C. Freeland and Walter Mott of Keyser.

Attorneys for Emery were George M. Beltzhoover, Jr., Charles Town, W. Va., and James E. Wilson of the law firm of Roberts and McInnis, Washington, D. C. Corbin, who is an attorney, appeared without counsel.

Authorities Seek Two Boys Missing For Long Time

Trail Of One Youth Leads To Mississippi

Local authorities are continuing their efforts to locate two teenage boys who left their homes here in September and October, State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris said yesterday.

One of the youths is Robert P. Capaldi, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Capaldi, 115 Frederick street, who has been missing since October 14.

The other is William Edward Baker, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Baker, 514 Baltimore avenue, who disappeared September 26, 1946.

Harris said authorities came within two days of locating Capaldi last month when it was learned he was working on a farm in Mississippi, but when Mississippi officials reached the farm, the youth had been gone for two days.

Parents of the Baker boy appeared before the County Commissioners Tuesday to request their aid in locating the youth, and yesterday Commissioner C. N. (Jerry) Wilkinson conferred with State's Attorney Harris regarding steps that could be taken to press the search.

Harris said yesterday afternoon that circulars describing the boy will be sent to the 48 states and the District of Columbia in a further effort to locate him. It was reported he intended to head for the Pacific Coast when he left home.

The Baker boy was described as being five feet eight inches tall and weighing 135 pounds. He has brown eyes, dark complexion and straight dark brown hair.

The Capaldi boy is five feet four inches tall and weighs about 100 pounds. He has blond hair, fair complexion and a cauliflower ear on the left side, authorities said.

Three Youths Held On Theft Charges

Three youths, who escaped from a Pittsburgh, Pa., Industrial School for boys, Sunday night, and who police say stole a lady's pocketbook Monday in a Greensburg, Pa., theater, were arrested here early yesterday morning.

Police said the boys, were apprehended at 12:35 a. m. in the Queen City Railroad station when a railroad policeman became suspicious of them as they purchased tickets to travel to Fairmont, W. Va.

The boys, were identified as Arthur Miller, 13, Uniontown, Pa.; John Mesko, Jr., 11, Magnolia, Ohio, and Jerry Downey, 11, McKeesport, Pa. Juvinal officers have already taken Mesco and Downey back to their homes, but Miller was being held in the city jail last night.

The three youths, according to police, admitted breaking out of the industrial school Sunday night and thumbing a ride to Greensburg, where they attended a show and stole a pocketbook in the theater. Miller was carrying $15 when they were arrested, police said.

One officer declared that the boys thumbed a ride toward Cumberland from Greensburg, and were picked up by three Columbus, Ohio, youths, who were also arrested here Tuesday night on charges of stealing an automobile.

Police said they had not learned why the three boys were committed to the industrial school originally, nor could they give any reason why the boys were buying tickets to Fairmont. One officer declared he didn't think they knew where they were going, "just going."

Mesko was carrying a toy pistol and the other two youths had flashlights with them, police declared. The pistol, however, was described as too small, to be used as an imitation for a real gun.

The industrial school was notified of the apprehension of the three youths, shortly after they were brought to police headquarters, but said they would be unable to verify the escape until later in the morning, police stated.

Each youth will be returned to the juvenile authorities of his home town, since it is required that they be re-committed to the industrial school, police explained.

The three Ohio youths, who were arrested Tuesday night, admitted yesterday that they had stolen the car they were riding in, after they first declared it belonged to one of the boys father, State Trooper William Baker, who made the arrest, said. They are being held in County Jail awaiting the arrival of Columbia police.

Dairies And Union Reach Agreement On New Contract

Inside Workers Get 15 Cent Wage Boost

The threat of a strike of workers of five Cumberland area dairies was averted early last night when the negotiating committee of Local 924, Dairy Workers Union, and managers of the Queen City, Farmers, Liberty, Mason and Llewellyn dairies reached an agreement on a new contract.

The settlement was announced by James Crockett, commissioner of conciliation, at 9:30 p. m. at a joint meeting in the Fort Cumberland Hotel.

Crockett said the agreement provided a 15 cent overall wage increase for inside employees of the five dairies. The union withdrew a request for a $1 daily increase in the basic salary of drivers-salesmen, he added.

The increase is retroactive to January 1 and the contract agreed upon at last night's meeting will be effective until December 31, 1947.

Specific rates agreed upon call for $1 an hour for pasteurizers and ice cream makers, 90 cents an hour for all other inside workers and new inside workers will be paid 80 cents per hour for the first 90 days and will then receive 90 cents an hour.

Representing the dairies at the session were Edgar A. Dashiell, Queen City Dairy, Inc.; J. H. Laher, Liberty Milk Company; B. A. Mason, Mason Dairy; Curtis Cox, Farmers Dairy, and the Llewellyn Dairy.

Liquor Rationing To End In West Va.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 15 (AP)—The State Liquor Control Commission announced today that rationing would be lifted on all products sold by its state stores effective with their opening at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

The commission said it apparently had sufficient stocks on hand to assure there would be no further restrictions on the sale of alcoholic goods.

"We are lifting rationing until there's another war, and we hope there's never another war," said Commissioner Charles Green.

Controls were lifted once before since the war ended, but West Virginia had to return to the two-fifths-a-month system because supplies became exhausted.

Rationing was lifted again last December 31 for the duration of the holidays, then was restored on January 2.

During the latter months of the system, various brands have been excluded from the ration list.

Green explained that some bonded whisky and all straight and Scotch liquors would continue to be scarce.

Emery estimated payrolls will increase by about $500 monthly because of the wage hike and the bonus offer. Both were effective January 1. He said a $500 cash bonus has been posted in which drivers with no chargeable accidents will share on a monthly basis during the year, in addition to the previous monthly safety bonus.
